IT IS WITH A FEELING OF HUMILITY and a deep sense of responsibility that I approach the tasks which have been set before me in this new office. To follow in the footsteps of Allen Fowler and Ken White is an honor more justly deserved by many another but one for which I am deeply grateful. They have made such a record of achievement, and have established such an example of sincere application and outstanding ability, that the duties which go with the honor seem to me difficult indeed. The die is cast, however, and with the counsel of an able Executive Committee and the always efficient help of The Central Office, I shall look forward with pleasure to undertaking the task.

If mere size be any criterion of either importance or achievement, Delta Sigma Pi seems to have that. With an initiated membership of over 22,000, and with 60 actively functioning undergraduate chapters, it is obvious that the Fraternity is an important factor in the life of the various campuses upon which it is represented, and in the business life of the nation where its alumni are found. Despite the tremendous growth in the last few years, there are still a considerable number of campuses with eligible undergraduates whose affiliation would be profitable to them and valuable to us, but where there is no chapter. Those situations will continue to be observed and whenever petitions are available, they will have careful and conscientious consideration. Perhaps it is not beyond the realm of possibility that the record of the two years immediately preceding can be duplicated.

Size, in my opinion, is seldom a good measure of value, and I do not believe it to be so with us. It is of much greater moment to consider what service we, as an organization, render to society, and to the individual communities in which we live, and to evaluate the benefits activities can bring to our individual members. Our service to society could be considered as the sum total of the individual contributions of our members, minus the contributions which those individuals would make if they were not members. To justify our existence, therefore, we must each of us endeavor to make some contribution which we otherwise might not make. Most of us perhaps do not devote as much time as we might to those civic, charitable, and political jobs which abound in our communities. It seems to me that the price of leadership is the duty to see that those jobs are manned and that if each of us would undertake to do just a little bit more in that respect, the sum total contribution of Delta Sigma Pi will be enormous.

Much important work has been done by the Committee on Business Research in the past few years. There is room in this field for a non-partisan, unprejudiced survey of one or more of the many facets of our economic structure, which our members are qualified particularly well to render and are in positions of strategic importance to initiate and support. It is hoped that during the next few years at least one of the proposed projects can be developed to a place where it is of real service and value to business. Akin to such a project is the impetus which we as individuals and as an organization can give to individual research both on and off the college campus. The necessity has never been greater for all of us to know more accurately what is happening to us economically than now. Despite all of the work of this nature which is being done, there is need for more and more of it, particularly of the kind we are especially qualified to do.

There is growing within our alumni ranks an activity of great importance to our members and to management: the Alumni Placing Service. In reviewing the activities of the various Alumni Clubs represented at Baltimore, I was amazed at their extent and imbued with a desire to coordinate and extend them much further. The reception which the so-called "Iowa Plan" has had in the Midwest is a startling commentary upon the real need of management for such service and upon the immense value which it can have to our graduating Deltasigs. I would urge every Alumni Club to become familiar with this plan and to actively promote its use in its own community.

The idea has been suggested that we should have an endowment fund in the form of a Trust, separate in organization from the Fraternity, which will be a perpetual source of assistance to students of management everywhere, irrespective of fraternal affiliation. A very able committee has already been appointed to make recommendations for such a plan, and it is my hope that before too long that development can be completed and accepted.

It is my impression that too many of our alumni members are overlooking the stimulus which is available to them through the meeting with one another in alumni meetings. Some of our alumni organizations are well integrated, closely knit, highly active groups; others of them are not nearly as active as they might be. The value of association of this kind will be what you choose to make it; if you will give but a little of your time and energy, you will find that you will be repaid a hundredfold. If you are out of the habit of attending Alumni Club meetings, find out when and where the next one is and be there.

Our active chapter organization seems to be in splendid shape. It was very interesting to me to see the large number of chapters which obtained perfect ratings in the 1949 Chapter Efficiency Contest. Under the standards set, any chapter can and should get that score. The contest is important in that it furnishes statistical evidence that the undergraduate activities of our Fraternity are alive, vital, and fulfilling the purpose of our existence. Let's all be alive and do the job we have undertaken.

Fraternity Acclaims Seventeenth to be a Most Successful Grand Chapter Congress

ON FRIDAY EVENING, September 9, the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress of Delta Sigma Pi, which was held in Baltimore, Maryland, at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, came to a close much to the regret of hundreds of Deltasigs and their wives who were in attendance. The fraternalism evidenced at this convention, both at the business sessions and also at the social functions, will earmark this Grand Chapter Congress as really outstanding in the history of the fraternity. Legislation adopted and the introduction of several new ideas, which will now become a permanent part of future meetings should greatly strengthen the internal structure of Delta Sigma Pi.

No new attendance record was set, but the Deltasigs that attended brought the figure close to the all-time high set in Philadelphia in 1939. The Baltimore Hospitality Reception on Tuesday evening preceding the official opening of the Grand Chapter Congress was an innovation, which proved to be a huge success in that it provided a place and fitting occasion for the many visiting members to become acquainted. The "Chapter Officer's Training Program" with its panel discussions of the various phases of the Chapter Efficiency Contest generated additional interest in the contest and revealed many techniques practiced by the chapters which, when applied to all chapters, will increase the over-all efficiency of the fraternity. The Ladies' Program took on new significance too at this Grand Chapter Congress, when the Pink Poodles, a counterpart of the Yellow Dogs, was organized and the first litter of Pink Pups was born.

Kappa Chapter at the University of Georgia (Atlanta Division) once again was present at a Grand Chapter Congress with the largest delegation and walked off with the Attendance Trophy. Recognition must also be given to the delegation from our youngest chapter, Gamma Iota at the University of New Mexico, for the very attractive display of campus scenes and paraphernalia exclusive to their section of the country. They also are credited with having traveled the greatest distance, more than 2,000 miles, to attend the convention.

Further highlighting the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress was the initiation of Charles P. McCormick, president of McCormick and Company, as the fourth Honorary Member-at-Large of Delta Sigma Pi. A most impressive initiation was conducted by the Grand Council on Wednesday afternoon and it was promptly followed by the Grand Chapter Congress Banquet at which Brother McCormick gave the principal address of the evening. His address was broadcast over radio station WFBR, along with those of Grand President Allen L. Fowler and Earl Bunting, of Mu Chapter at Georgetown University and managing director of the National Association of Manufacturers, New York City.

At the recommendation of the Grand Council, the Congress voted to expand the number of members on the Grand Council and to divide the fraternity into six regions geographically with a Grand Council member in each Region, elected by the chapters in that Region. This assures representation on the Grand Council of all Regions and by a member of their own choice.

With this constructive legislation enacted, the Congress then proceeded to elect as Grand President Walter C. Sehm, Alpha Epsilon Chapter, of St. Paul, Minnesota. The following were elected to the Grand Council: in the Midwestern Region, Henry C. Lucas, Alpha Delta Chapter, of Omaha; in the Southwestern Region, William R. Merrick, Beta Iota Chapter, of Dallas; in the Western Region, Frank C. Brandes, Kappa Chapter, of San Francisco; and at-large, J. Harry Feltham, Chi Chapter, of Baltimore, and Rudolph Janzen, Alpha Epsilon Chapter, of Minneapolis. Members having served only two years of their four year terms include: in the Eastern Region, Robert G. Busse, Beta Omicron Chapter, of Boston; in the Southeastern Region, Howard B. Johnson, Kappa Chapter, of Atlanta; and in the Central Region, John F. Mee, Nu Chapter, of Bloomington, Indiana. Past Grand President Fowler will continue on the Grand Council for a period of two years by virtue of his office.

The Grand Council met all day Monday and Tuesday prior to the official opening of the convention and the new Grand Council of Delta Sigma Pi also met on Saturday following the Congress. One of their major actions was to accept the very attractively prepared petitions from Michigan State College and Florida State College. The granting of chapters to these fine petitioning groups was announced on Wednesday following the introduction of the members of the delegation from Michigan State College who were invited to attend certain business and social functions of the Grand Chapter Congress as special guests.

Baltimore Hospitality Reception

In order to provide a meeting place and proper atmosphere in which the Deltasigs and their wives from all parts of the country could meet the Baltimore Grand Chapter Congress Committee arranged a special reception on the evening prior to the opening of the convention. The Caswell Room of the Lord Baltimore Hotel was reserved for this event and was very appropriate because of its large size and its accessibility from the lobby of the hotel. Several hundred Deltasigs with their wives gathered there in the early evening and enjoyed the refreshments that were served. The fraternalism and friendliness that was created by this function carried through the entire Grand Chapter Congress.

Business Meetings

On Wednesday morning all of the Official Delegates, and many other members of Delta Sigma Pi, gathered in the Calvert Room of the Lord Baltimore Hotel to dispose of the business before the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress. Pennants of the numerous universities represented were prominently displayed in this room. On behalf of the Baltimore Alumni Club and Chi Chapter, at Johns Hopkins University, Charles Steinbock, Jr., welcomed all of the visiting Deltasigs and urged them to make the most of their stay in Baltimore. Grand President Fowler then officially called the meeting to order. His report of progress for the period since the Sixteenth Grand Chapter Congress was then presented to the Congress. The growth of the fraternity from 42 to 60 active chapters was emphasized. The establishment of a fund for a permanent national headquarters office building and a retirement fund for the Central Office employees was also announced. Future subsidizing of Regional meetings was also another forward step taken by the fraternity and brought out in Grand President Fowler's report.

After the Congress unanimously approved the report of Grand President Fowler, Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright called each delegate to the speaker's platform and a portfolio containing many printed reports and publications pertinent to the Grand Chapter Congress was presented to each. The results of the 1949 Chapter Efficiency Contest were announced and the awards of Life Memberships were made to the head masters of the 23 chapters which had a perfect score of 100,000 points. Brother Wright's report as Grand Secretary-Treasurer covered the activities of The Central Office during the last two years and he pointed out the increased chapter visitation conducted by The Central Office staff, and also the expansion of its many publications. He predicted a very successful future for the fraternity.

The Executive Committee report was submitted by its chairman, Grand President Fowler, while Harold O. Duncan of Atlanta made his report as chairman of the Committee on Business Research. The Delegate's Luncheon interrupted the business session at this point, but time was utilized at the luncheon tables to discuss the plans for the various Regional meetings during the coming year. After lunch, Glen Galles of Minneapolis presented his report as chairman of the Committee on Alumni Activities, and Grand Secretary-Treasurer H. G. Wright introduced the initial showing of "The Story of Delta Sigma Pi." Colored slides will be used to tell this story and the complete presentation will be available for the use of chapters within the next year. Henry C. Lucas of Omaha read the report of John F. Mee, chairman of the Alumni Placing Service, who was unable to attend the Grand Chapter Congress on account of the death of his mother. The report of the Committee on Life Memberships was then presented by its chairman, J. Harry Feltham of Baltimore.

The balance of the afternoon was devoted to the "Chapter Officer's Training Program." The first part of this program consisted of a slide presentation of the various forms and publications used by the chapters and The Central Office to facilitate individual chapter operation. The purpose and the use of each form was explained by J. D. Thomson, Assistant Grand Secretary-Treasurer. The balance of the "Chapter Officer's Training Program" was held on Thursday in the form of a panel discussion. Each phase of the Chapter Efficiency Contest was thoroughly analyzed under the direction of the following Grand Council members who served as panel leaders: Robert G. Busse, Beta Omicron Chapter, leader of the panel on membership; Henry C. Lucas, Alpha Delta Chapter, leader of the panel on scholarship; J. Elwood Armstrong, Chi Chapter, leader of the panel on professional activities; Rudolph Janzen, Alpha Epsilon Chapter, leader of the panel on finance; and Howard B. Johnson, Kappa Chapter, leader of the panel on chapter administration. The alumni held concurrent panels where the topics of Alumni Club Activities, led by Glen Gales of Alpha Epsilon Chapter, Alumni Placing Service, led by Henry C. Lucas of Alpha Delta Chapter, Business Research, led by Harold O. Duncan of Kappa Chapter, and Life Membership, led by J. Harry Feltham of Chi Chapter were discussed. Past Grand President Kenneth B. White served as the leader of the panel on General Alumni Welfare.

Friday morning found the active chapter delegates and alumni together again to hear a proposal by Henry C. Lucas of Alpha Delta Chapter, for the expansion of Alumni Placing Service activities. This proposal, which includes the preparation and mailing of a brochure, listing our graduating seniors, was well received by the delegates. Plans were made to proceed with this project and the mailing of the brochure to several hundred firms throughout the country. James J. Moore then led a panel on the American Way of Life, the theme of the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress. At this point of the program, the proposed constitutional amendments were considered and, after some very earnest discussion, they were passed upon. One of these amendments provides for the filing of future constitutional changes by March 1, and the notification of all chapters and alumni clubs of this proposal by The Central Office must be made by April 15. This will permit adequate time for the chapters and alumni clubs to consider any change before voting upon it at a Grand Chapter Congress. Another major change in our constitution and by-laws was the division of the fraternity into six Regions with a Grand Council member to represent each region and elected by that region.

Following the recess for lunch, the chairman of the Committee on Nominations, J. Elwood Armstrong of Chi Chapter was called upon to make his report. Walter C. Sehm, Alpha Epsilon Chapter, of St. Paul, Minnesota, was unanimously elected Grand President. William R. Merrick, Beta Iota Chapter, of Dallas, Texas, was elected to the Grand Council to represent the Southwestern Region, and Henry C. Lucas, Alpha Delta Chapter, of Omaha, Nebraska, was elected to represent the Midwestern Region, by a caucus of the delegates in those regions. Two candidates for the Grand Council members-at-large were then nominated: J. Harry Feltham, Chi Chapter, of Baltimore, Maryland, and Rudolph Janzen, Alpha Epsilon Chapter, of Minneapolis, Minnesota. These were also elected unanimously by the delegates. The new officers were sworn in by Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright, and each said a few words in acceptance. This concluded the afternoon session and brought to a close the business of the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress. A feeling of a job well done accompanied the delegates as they left the meeting on Friday, and the wisdom of their decisions will be even more evident as the years pass. The Dinner-Dance followed in the evening.

The Grand Chapter Congress Banquet

In the late afternoon of the first day of the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress, 275 Deltasigs gathered in the dignified surroundings of the Calvert Room of the Lord Baltimore Hotel to witness the initiation of Charles P. McCormick, president of McCormick and Company, as the fourth Honorary Member-at-Large of Delta Sigma Pi. This ceremony was ably performed by the members of the Grand Council, who were attired in white dinner jackets. Following the formal initiation, a short interval elapsed while preparations were completed for the banquet that followed, and the members then reassembled for the banquet and the festivities of the evening.

Dulany Foster, Chi Chapter, ably served as toastmaster. After introducing various fraternity officials seated at the head tables, Brother Foster turned the program over to Grand Secretary Wright who introduced the past Grand Council Members who were in attendance including several past Grand Presidents. Plaques in testimony of their past service to the fraternity were also presented to these past Grand Council Members by Brother Wright. At 9:00 P.M. the meeting was again turned over to "Duke" Foster who announced our program which was broadcast over radio station WFBR. Grand President Fowler was then introduced and he stated the purpose of the fraternity, its size and scope, and the progress that had been made recently, so that the radio audience would be familiar with Delta Sigma Pi. Earl Bunting, of Mu Chapter, was then called upon to introduce Charles P. McCormick, our fourth Honorary Member-at-Large, who gave the principal talk of the evening. His address, The Freedom of Responsibility is published elsewhere in this issue of The DELTASIG, along with the addresses of Grand President Fowler and Earl Bunting. The radio broadcast was also heard at the Ladies' Banquet in another banquet room in the hotel and it was featured as the main part of their program.

Following the radio broadcast, Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright again took the rostrum and presented a beautiful embossed certificate of membership to Brother McCormick. Each of the Grand Council members had signed it and it was mounted on a wooden plaque. It was then Grand President Fowler's turn to do some presenting. Before making his announcement, however, he reminded the brothers of the two awards that had just been created by the Grand Council: one to be given to the outstanding Deltasig for accomplishment in the business world, and the other to the outstanding Deltasig in recognition of fraternity work over and beyond the call of duty. This led up to the announcement that the first award for outstanding accomplishment for the fraternity would be presented to H. G. Wright for his twenty-five years of service as Grand Secretary-Treasurer, which anniversary he was celebrating that very week. A thunderous applause followed this announcement and, probably for the first time in his career, "Gig" was not equal to the occasion.

Other awards were made to past Grand Council members, Herbert W. Wehe, Lambda Chapter; and Fred W. Floyd, Beta Nu Chapter; and to past Grand Presidents, Eugene D. Milener and John L. McKewen, both of Chi Chapter. All other past Grand Presidents and Grand Council members are to receive a similar award in testimony of their service to the fraternity; however, actual presentation was made only to those recipients in attendance.

Delegates' Luncheon

To honor the delegates and to give them an opportunity to become better acquainted with each other, a special luncheon was held the first day of the convention, when all undergraduate chapter delegates were the guests of the Grand Council. However, the luncheon was not restricted to delegates alone

The attendance records for all previous Dinner Dances were broken by the 336 persons that were present. Dinner was served first, then there was a short program and the introduction of the new Grand President and other officers of the fraternity, followed by the traditional Diamond Badge Drawing and the grand march. The newly elected Grand President and Mrs. Sehm led the grand march.

and about 200 brothers were in attendance. A table was assigned to the delegates from each Region of the fraternity and the member of the Grand Council representing that region presided at that table. The subject of Regional meetings was of prime importance and tentative plans were laid to hold a Regional meeting in practically every region of the fraternity during the next college year. This luncheon also afforded the delegates an opportunity to discuss mutual problems and it served as the appropriate place to make new friends.

Stag Party

A jovial group of Deltasigs boarded seven buses on Thursday evening and headed for a crab feast at Crystal Beach which is about 15 miles from Baltimore. After all of the buses had arrived there, papers were spread and the centers of the many tables were heaped with steaming hard-shelled crabs. Native Easterners needed no coaxing and soon broken shells and claws were much in evidence. The rest of the group, however, approached the crabs with more caution and reserve. Nevertheless, before long they, too, had learned the science of dismembering the crab and were enjoying the feast set before them. Following this was a buffet supper and liquid refreshment.

A troupe of dancing girls and four-piece band added to the entertainment supplied by the Kappa Chapter delegation which arrived at the Stag Party. The large number of Deltasigs present curtailed the activities of the Yellow Dogs, but they did manage to convene and initiate all those who were qualified. On the buses returning to Baltimore, group singing of favorite songs brought the evening to a pleasant close.

Dinner Dance

A new record was set when 336 members and their guests attended the Dinner Dance on the last evening of the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress. The Calvert Room of the Lord Baltimore Hotel provided the setting for this fitting finale and the festivities which started promptly at 7:00 P.M. continued until 2:00 A.M. on Saturday. Grand Secretary-Treasurer H. G. Wright ably served as master of ceremonies. After introducing all of the many prominent Deltasigs and their wives in attendance from all sections of the country he announced the winner of the Grand Chapter Congress Attendance Trophy to be Kappa Chapter at the University of Georgia, Atlanta Division. This was the third straight trophy for them as they also won it in Philadelphia in 1929 and in Minneapolis in 1947.

Grand President Allen L. Fowler was then honored by the fraternity with the presentation of a testimonial attractively mounted plus a diamond Delta Sigma Pi badge and guard. The large ovation that accompanied this presentation attested to the popularity of Allen Fowler and the admiration of Deltasigs for the man who had done an outstanding job as Grand President. Plaques were also presented to J. Elwood Armstrong, Chi Chapter; and Kenneth B. White, Gamma Chapter, the latter also being past Grand President. These awards were in recognition of the contribution made to the fraternity by these two members.

A large wooden box, containing the stubs of the registration tickets, was then brought to the platform and Brother Wright announced the plan to be used in determining the winner of the Delta Sigma Pi diamond badge. Several ladies were called upon to select 17 stubs from the box. These were then shuffled and turned up one by one, with the last stub being the winner. The suspense was great as the names on the first 16 stubs were announced. They were: Tim Preece, Mu Chapter; Robert C. Timmins, Alpha Iota Chapter; Dowell H. Chandler, Gamma Iota Chapter; Bill Purkins, Beta Kappa Chapter; Fred Kouri, Beta Theta Chapter; Thomas Coyne, Chi Chapter; William B. Baxter, Kappa Chapter; Edward W. Withorn, Kappa Chapter; Edward A. Coll, Jr., Beta Nu Chapter; Leon Alyanakian, Beta Nu Chapter; William M. Conner, Chi Chapter; Robert Fontenot, Beta Zeta Chapter; Leroy Hayden, Alpha Beta Chapter; W. L. Canton, Chi Chapter; George W. Lindsay, Chi Chapter; and O. Englar Gilbert, Chi Chapter. The winner and owner of the seventeenth stub was William W. Cornish, of Theta Chapter at the University of Detroit, who happily claimed his prize.

A grand march, led by the new Grand President Walter C. Sehm and Mrs. Sehm, preceded the dancing which lasted into the morning hours and provided a fitting conclusion to the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress of Delta Sigma Pi.

Ladies' Activities

Under the capable direction of Mrs. John L. McKewen, a very entertaining and worthwhile program was conducted for the ladies attending the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress. The 88 women in attendance constituted a record for a Grand Chapter Congress. A separate registration and assembly room was maintained during the entire convention for their benefit and this room was staffed by the wives of members of the host chapter and alumni club, and twenty-nine of these women served on the Ladies' Program Committee.

Upon registering, each woman was given a badge similar to the one worn by the men. Several pages of the Grand Chapter Congress daily newspaper were devoted to their activities every day. The first event was the Baltimore Hospitality Reception held on Tuesday evening in conjunction with the men. Many acquaintances were renewed and new friends made at this opening affair. It also provided an excellent opportunity for all in attendance to meet the Grand Officers and their families. On Wednesday morning a Coffee Hour was held for the women exclusively and, after becoming better acquainted over coffee and doughnuts, the group was divided into smaller parties which then left on a shopping tour of Baltimore's famous Antique Row. A Baltimorean acted as guide on this excursion and the interest shown in Baltimore shops was so extensive that many women had difficulty in making the banquet in the Caswell Room of the Lord Baltimore Hotel that evening. The banquet destination where a delicious buffet-supper awaited them. In addition to entertaining contests and games, the Pink Poodles, an organization for the women similar to the now famous Yellow Dogs for the men, was instituted. The Pink Poodles are to perpetuate their new organization by initiating all eligible members at future Congresses.

Friday was unplanned and it gave the women an opportunity to prepare for the Dinner-Dance which was to be held that evening. The dance was a gala affair and the presence of the ladies was instrumental in making it the success it was. On the basis of remarks made, the ladies' activities were most enjoyable and thanks are in order to Marie McKewen, Edna Moore, Eleanor Lawson, Betty Feltham, and to the balance of the committee that did such an excellent job.

THE DIAMOND BADGE is received by William Cornish of Theta Chapter at Detroit from Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright.

Our Fourth Honorary Member-at-Large

Charles P. McCormick, the fourth Honorary Member-at-Large of Delta Sigma Pi, was initiated by the members of the Grand Council at the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress. Brother McCormick is the president and chairman of the board of McCormick & Company, Inc., the world's largest spice and extract importing and manufacturing firm, which has its offices in Baltimore, Maryland. Among Brother McCormick's long list of business associations and responsibilities are: chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank, Richmond, Virginia; chairman of the board of the Baltimore Colts Football Club, Inc.; member of the governing body of the International Labor Conference; president of the Baltimore Better Business Bureau; chairman of the International Transport Committee of U.S. Chamber of Commerce; and director of the Boys Club of America, Inc.

Brother McCormick recently served the United States as Employer Delegate to the 32nd International Labor Organization Conference in Geneva, Switzerland. The International Labor Organization is tripartite in character. Each member government sends to the Conference two delegates representing government, one delegate representing employers, and one representing workers. The United States Employer Delegate is chosen upon joint recommendation of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the National Association of Manufacturers. Sixty governments, including all nations of major importance, are members of the I.L.O.

In addition to all of his other duties, Brother McCormick still finds time to write business books. His book, "Multiple Management" is already in its seventh edition, while his latest book, "The Power of People," was just published in September. His system of management has received international recognition, and his book describing this system has been printed in several languages. In 1946 he was the recipient of the Citation and Medal for Human Relations presented by the Society for the Advancement of Management.

Brother McCormick is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University and also holds an LL.D. degree from Presbyterian College. He now serves on the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland in College Park, Maryland.

The main feature on the evening's program was the presentation of the men's program, which was being broadcast on Station WFBR from another room in the same hotel.

Thursday afternoon the visiting ladies again went touring, this time to the many historic spots in and around Baltimore. Buses were provided and guides were on hand to point out the important spots of interest. That evening while the traditional stag party was in progress, its counterpart, a Doe Party, was held for the women at the lovely country home of Brother and Mrs. John E. Motz. Chartered buses took the ladies to their

Grand Chapter Congress Radio Program

Grand President's Address

By Allen L. Fowler, Beta Nu Chapter, Grand President of Delta Sigma Pi

A portion of the program of The Grand Chapter Congress Banquet which was held in the Calvert Room of the Lord Baltimore Hotel on Wednesday evening, September 7, 1949, was broadcast over radio station WFBR. The radio program was one half hour in length and came about the middle of the evening's program. Dulany Foster of Chi Chapter who also served as toastmaster of the Banquet, served as the announcer. Grand President, Allen L. Fowler, was introduced by Brother Foster. Brother Fowler's address not only acquainted the radio audience with Delta Sigma Pi, but it also reminded the Brothers of the progress that had been made during the last two years and the plans that would be put into operation in the immediate future. The Delta Sigma Pi radio broadcast also served as the feature part of the Ladies Program which was being held in another room in the same hotel.

THIS TRULY is a proud and happy occasion for me because it symbolizes the fruition of hard work by all the members of the team on which I have played for the past two years. This affair tonight is one of the high spots of my administration, although I must frankly admit to a twinge of regret, because it also marks the beginning of the end of my term of office.

ALLEN L. FOWLER,
Pennsylvania

It has been a privilege to serve as your Grand President for the past two years, and to have had a part in the great development which has taken place. But, in case you don't know it, the task of being Grand President is not an easy one. I guess, as a matter of fact, it is as tough as one chooses to make it, but like most tough jobs, it has its compensations, and to me they have been many. Furthermore, the team you selected to work with me has been wonderfully cooperative and helpful.

I am proud indeed of some of our material accomplishments to which many of you heard me refer in my report of stewardship this morning. Sixty strong and splendid chapters, an excellent future outlook for further expansion, the starting of a reserve fund for a permanent central headquarters building, great expansion of our alumni placement effort, of which you are yet to hear the details, expansion of our publications, the establishment of a Central Office retirement plan, and numerous other constructive actions. I am proud of the brass at this head table, proud that they see something in Delta Sigma Pi that makes them want to join with us. Gentlemen, I guess I'm just proud of Deltasig.

But, most of all, I am proud that Delta Sigma Pi is maintaining her rightful place in the forefront of the fight for the preservation of what we call, perhaps for want of a more descriptive name, our American Way of Life, through the encouragement of a better understanding of business ethics and through the taking of a leading part in those matters which contribute to the welfare of the community as a whole. This Way of Life with which we are blessed is worth fighting for and, believe me brothers, a fight is what it is going to take to preserve it.

I said this is a proud and happy moment for me, and it is. But I am sure there are prouder and happier moments to come in the future in watching, and participating I hope, in the continuing fulfillment of the destiny of Deltasig. For I firmly believe that we do have a destiny. In addition to trying to be practical and objective in viewing our potentialities, I am something of an idealist. I believe that we have some spiritual, as well as material, obligations. I firmly believe that business is in need of spiritual leadership. I know that human happiness is an important product of business. And I believe that education and business have a joint responsibility to leave no step untaken, no stone unturned, that is necessary to protect and preserve our way of life.

We have an unparalleled opportunity, in our day and time, to do a constructive job. And when I say "we" I should include every living soul in this, our Country, but I'm speaking now only of Delta Sigma Pi, as a leader in the job of "recommending the blessing of liberty and freedom," in the words of the immortal Father of our Country, George Washington, in his Farewell Address, "to the applause, the affection, and the adoption of every nation which is yet a stranger to it." It has been truly said that the price of freedom is objective study, informed thinking and constructive action. Intelligent adherence to this concept must lead us along the right track.

Probably you will hear tonight from far more talented tongues than mine, and you will hear our theme thoroughly expounded and pounded, but brothers you will hear from no one with a more deep-seated affection for Delta Sigma Pi, or one who believes more earnestly in our ability to achieve those objectives, both social and business, to which we are dedicated. If there is one thought above all others that I want to leave with you, it is that we of Deltasig have become a power in the business world, and that with that power comes a responsibility to hew to the line in our chosen field, the building of intelligent and interested members of professions and business institutions, the conduct of business on the highest ethical plane, and the perpetuation of our fraternity as a vehicle designed to maintain a closer relationship and a better understanding between the businessman and the student, who is the businessman of tomorrow. And, finally, to express the hope that each of us, in his own way and to the best of his ability, will strive to have it said of him, "he was a man of commerce, a Delta Sigma Pi, the world is better because he dwelt upon it."

Introduction of Charles P. McCormick

By Earl Bunting, Mu Chapter, Managing Director of the N.A.M.

Grand President Fowler was followed on the radio program by Earl Bunting of Mu Chapter, the Managing Director of the National Association of Manufacturers of New York City. Brother Bunting had made the trip to Baltimore for the sole purpose of attending our Grand Chapter Congress Banquet that evening. His face was most familiar to many of the delegates and members present because of his extensive visitation of university campuses during the last college year on behalf of the American Way of Life program of the N. A. M. Our fourth Honorary Member-at-Large, Charles P. McCormick, was introduced by Brother Bunting on this program.

EARL BUNTING, Georgetown

IT GIVES ME great pleasure to join with you in the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress of this great international fraternity.

Perhaps one of the greatest concerns facing all Americans is that of peace. The present confusion at home and abroad, and the strains upon our domestic economy, probably all come back to this question of peace. Mrs. Bunting recently had a letter from a woman friend of hers on the West Coast who described a new home which this lady and her husband had moved into, about seventeen miles out in the country from the city in which her husband's business was located. She described the view and the quiet, peaceful surroundings, and then made this statement:

"Peace is more than the absence of war. It is a mode of living in which we enjoy the warm fellowship of friends and neighbors. It is freedom from the confusion of disorderly thinking, and an opportunity to get away from the tension which has become such a vital part of this era in which we live."

Because each member of this organization has a special, professional interest in business, I would like to take a few minutes to discuss with you and our radio audience some of the things which business and businessmen can do at this crucial time. American business is in the forefront of the struggle of the American people to advance as free and prospering individuals. Because this is so, business is frequently the first target for those of opposing ideologies who are out to scuttle all that the American people have gained or hope to gain.

Businessmen have a very definite responsibility for leadership in America's economic life. So far as it lies within the power of business management to keep our economy shipshape it provides an unmatched source of livelihood, opportunity and progress to the entire American people. There will always be improvements so long as there is business management with a hand left free. The job that has been done can stand up under any inspection—has met and will meet any test of management's integrity, competence and devotion.

Our responsibility starts with self-governing individual citizens back home, who must be ready and willing to build the personal integrity they possess into our great framework of government of the people, by the people and for the people. Business and industry are integral parts of the American opportunity system. It is our responsibility to keep this fact before the public. This is as it should be. This is the way we would have it.

We must primarily address ourselves to clear-thinking, independent-minded and whole-souled Americans, among all walks of life and in all income groups, who recognize and reject the short-term benefit that results in a long-term headache. We must preserve our great two-party system, which has demonstrated its value and usefulness. Regardless of party, we must, as patriotic citizens, in either party, make certain that in our own communities the candidates chosen are really men of intelligence, integrity and courage.

The American public knows that in the last analysis, government can't do things for people. Government can only provide the atmosphere in which people can do things for themselves. We must return to that fundamental concept of government which was established by the founders of this nation in our Constitution and our great Bill of Rights. Our government needs for us to do things for IT, instead of any longer pursuing a false philosophy of expecting the government to do things FOR US. Let's give to our school boards, our town councils, our boards of county commissioners, our state legislatures, our national congress, men of intelligence, integrity and courage—men who will serve our country well.

And let's preserve our American way of life. It is not ours alone. It is ours to pass on as good as we received—as much better as we can make it—an inviolable trust that no generation which comes after us can rejoice in unless we restore it and preserve it and perfect it throughout our time. We stand today in the vanguard of service to the eternal principles that are and forever can be maintained as the whole American people's heritage.

Let's find more men of the high character, rare courage and demonstrated capacity and ability in business who will take their full share of public and civic responsibility as typified in the person of Mr. Charles P. McCormick, whom you have today initiated as an honorary member-at-large of Delta Sigma Pi. No greater honor could be bestowed upon a man of business, no greater man could be found for such recognition.

Measured by any standard, Charles McCormick is a success. In business he is President and Chairman of the Board of McCormick & Company, not only a leading firm in the field of spices, extracts and allied products, whose business is on a world-wide basis, but a concern which has, under its able head, pioneered in many revolutionary managerial reforms.

In addition to holding directorships in many other corporations in manufacturing, banking, insurance and other forms of business, our honored Brother McCormick has found time to serve his government, his state, his city and his own school board. His most recent public service was performed as the U. S. Employer Delegate to the 32nd International Labor Organization Conference in Geneva, where he was elected to the governing body, became vice-chairman of the Technical Assistance Committee and is junior vice-president of the organization. As the U. S. Employer delegate, Mr. McCormick was appointed by our government upon the joint recommendation of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the National Association of Manufacturers.

It is my pleasure to present to you and to the radio audience a great citizen, a great humanitarian, a great businessman, Mr. Charles P. McCormick:

The Freedom of Responsibility

By Charles P. McCormick, Honorary Member-at-Large

ALTHOUGH YOU HAVE BEEN OFFICIALLY WELCOMED to Baltimore, may I take this opportunity to extend an unofficial but warm welcome from the businessmen of our city. We appreciate deeply your choosing Baltimore for your Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress of Delta Sigma Pi. In fact, we feel doubly honored after learning that this is the first meeting of the fraternity in the East since 1939.

Secondly, I want to express my genuine and sincere appreciation for the honor you have bestowed upon me tonight by accepting me as an honorary member of Delta Sigma Pi. I accept this award, knowing full well that there are many, many Baltimoreans who are much better qualified for such recognition. Please be assured I am mindful that honors are like good wine—they should be taken in small doses so that the “after effects” will not intoxicate the ego.

I am very much aware of the fine records of accomplishment which the members and honorary members of Delta Sigma Pi have achieved over the years. As a neophyte, I am most appreciative for the warm friendliness which has been extended, and I promise to do whatever I can to justify your judgment and to further strengthen the high principles of this fraternity.

Because one of your objectives is to “Further the civic and commercial welfare of the community,” I have been asked to speak briefly on what I call the freedom of responsibility. It is my firm conviction that this freedom is every bit as important as the allied freedoms of speech, assembly, and religion which are a vital part of our everyday life.

Freedom naturally is the hope of mankind throughout the world. In far too many countries all freedoms have been extinguished completely, and in others there remains little more than a dim spark, nurtured by the hands and hopes of a courageous few. But freedom without a strong sense of responsibility can mean chaos. In acknowledging our heritage of freedom from the Old World, I want to emphasize that an acute sense of responsibility and optimism, based on realistic analyses of our problems are essential to make freedom work.

Generally speaking, we recognize and publicize our nation as the sanctuary of freedom. But there are far too few of us who are willing to forget the “party line” and the “five per cent,” and make personal sacrifices for the protection and welfare of our future generations. As typical Americans we should love our country, be willing to die for it, and to make some serious return to our community, to our state and to our nation for our privilege of being an American. We must pool our know-how, our knowledge, and our social and economic skills to develop and preserve our freedom. There are many places where we can start to build.

Consider for a moment the political mire in which we have been floundering during these important post-war years. Have we been doing anything about it? My answer is “Little or very little.” Too many of us in business take a gloomy view of politics and government, and even go so far as to remain apart from all manner of civic activities. As members of the “cracker barrel and hot-stove league,” we love to talk about wasteful government expenditure and bad politics and criticize freely according to our customs of long standing. But we are not likely to do much about it.

Not only does the average head of a business avoid participation in politics and government, but he vetoes participation in these activities by subordinate executives and employees, the assumption being that it takes time and energy from business duties and may develop enemies for the business and its activities through political contacts. This type of individual steps down from his throne of isolation only when he wants something for himself, his own business, or his own group in business.

Needless to say, this attitude on the part of a businessman, or any member of our social structure, is basically unsound in a democracy. It is a perfect example of ignorance and disregard of the freedom of responsibility. It is to the mutual advantage of business and the community that our free competitive system of enterprise be conducted in a community which is a good place in which one may live and work; one in which the employees of a business and their families may live in a reasonable measure of contentment at reasonable costs in the true American tradition.

Any community, inevitably, is a reflection of the kind of people in it, just as the character of a business reflects the character of the top management. Government is so important in the community that, if it is left to second raters and professional politicians, sooner or later the effect will be felt throughout the entire area. No business can live for itself alone, just as no person can live for himself. It is literally bound to the community by many ties for its very existence. To some extent, it will prosper or decline as the community prospers or declines. As a citizen of the community, a man has the private right to build a fortune, if he so chooses. But, he has an equally binding responsibility not to disrupt the community's routine while exercising this particular privilege. Whether we like it or not, our community responds according to our attitude toward its government and its allied activities.

To paraphrase Winston Churchill, never before in the history of the world has any country given so much to so many. This opportunity to exercise the freedom of responsibility and contribute to the welfare of our fellow man has been made possible largely because of our private competitive enterprise system, the best way to achieve the greatest good for the greatest number. If we are to continue to bulwark the world economy, then we must be free of unnecessary government regulations. These controls designed to protect the individual can be a distinct threat to our liberties. Government guaranteed security, like that in the welfare States of Europe, can be carried to the point of leaving the citizen no incentive of opportunity and no freedom of choice. It can happen here unless we, as businessmen and American citizens, take the time to participate in government and other civic activities.

Measured by the standards of literature and art, we may not be a great nation. But we have the strength of youth and untold wealth in the young men who hold the future of this country in their hands. They cherish their heritage; they know the value of their citizenship; they recognize the responsibility of freedom. Their courage and strength has been thoroughly tested on the field of battle, and they have been hardened to fight for their rights and the rights of others. In my eyes, the young men of today are the greatest generation this country has ever produced, and there are thousands of them holding membership in this fraternity.

Keep your organization strong and remain true to your principles. Accept and meet the challenge offered by the freedom of responsibility. With its sincere and proper discharge we can build an even stronger nation which will preserve a free world and fulfill the fondest hopes of our forefathers.

Finally, I urge you to have faith—faith in yourselves, faith in your fraternity, and faith in the future. There's an old saying which runs like this: “Faith is to believe what we cannot see, and the reward of faith is to see what we believe.”

The Grand Council of Delta Sigma Pi

Walter C. Sehm, Grand President

Brother Sehm is a product of the University of Minnesota, the home of the Golden Gophers of gridiron fame. While there he became a member of Alpha Epsilon Chapter in 1924, its first year of existence, and he served as its scribe. He received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Business Administration from the University of Minnesota and later the degree of Bachelor of Law from the Minnesota College of Law.

Walt has been active for many years in the Twin Cities Alumni Club of Delta Sigma Pi of which he has been a member since 1926. He served as president of this club in 1948-49 when it celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary in conjunction with a similar celebration of Alpha Epsilon Chapter. In 1947 he made material contributions to the success of our Sixteenth Grand Chapter Congress which was held in Minneapolis, Minnesota, at the Radisson Hotel.

At the present time he practices law in St. Paul, Minnesota, and is a partner in the firm of Smith and Sehm. Among his extensive business connections are his association with the Minnesota Bar Association, the St. Paul Association of Officemen, the St. Paulits, Inc., and active membership on the board of directors of some dozen prominent corporations. He has also served on the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Executive Committee of the Boy Scouts of America of the St. Paul area, and as a member of the National Safety Council.

WALTER C. SEHM,
Minnesota
Grand President

Frank C. Brandes

Brother Brandes was initiated into Kappa Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi in April 1931, and was one of the most active workers of Delta Sigma Pi in the South until his business required that he be transferred to the West Coast in 1944. His undergraduate activities included serving as head master of Kappa Chapter for two terms, during which period they finished in first place in the Chapter Efficiency Contest.

When he became an alumnus he was appointed Province Officer which position he held until he was elected to the Grand Council in 1936. Brother Brandes served diligently on the Grand Council until his transfer to the West Coast forced him to resign due to the fact that Delta Sigma Pi was not active in that region at that time, and his participation in fraternity operation would have been greatly handicapped. Frank was very active in the arrangements of the Twelfth Grand Chapter Congress which was held in Atlanta in 1936.

He also attended the previous Grand Chapter Congress which was held in Chicago and was in charge of the program of papers that was presented there.

FRANK C. BRANDES,
Georgia-Atlanta

Brother Brandes resides in San Francisco and is manager of the Retail Credit Company's office there. He has been connected with this company for many years and has been manager of their offices in Kansas City and Portland.

Allen L. Fowler

No doubt everyone is familiar with the name and outstanding work of Allen L. Fowler, the immediate past Grand President of Delta Sigma Pi. He has been active in fraternity work for many years and has served on both the Grand Council and Executive Committee. Allen graduated from the Evening School of Accounts and Finance of the University of Pennsylvania in 1921. While there, he became a member of Tau Delta Kappa, a local commerce fraternity which became the Beta Nu Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi in 1932.

With the exception of five years, Brother Fowler has been associated with the nationally known engineering firm of Day & Zimmermann, Inc., since 1919. At the present time he is the manager of the Investigations and Reports Department and a director of Day & Zimmermann, Inc. He is also a Certified Public Accountant, having received his degree from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Brother Fowler is the president of the Philadelphia Control of the Controllers Institute of America. Just recently he was elected to the board of directors of Controllers Institute of America and also chairman of the Committee on Budget and Finance.

ALLEN L. FOWLER,
Pennsylvania
Past Grand President

J. Harry Feltham

The name of Harry Feltham needs no introduction to the three hundred brothers in attendance at the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress. Harry was general chairman of this convention and the efficiency with which it was conducted speaks highly for his capability and his intense interest in Delta Sigma Pi. Brother Feltham was initiated into Chi Chapter at Johns Hopkins University in 1923. During his undergraduate days he held many chapter offices and later he served the Baltimore Alumni Club in several capacities.

For two or three different periods during the past 15 years, Brother Feltham has led the National Committee on Life Membership. His sparking of this very important national project has built the National Endowment Fund to its present size of $62,000, and increased our Life Membership roster to 1,500 members. Harry justly takes a great deal of pride in the growth of our Life Membership program and in the number of Life Members in Chi Chapter and in the Baltimore Alumni Club. For many years, they both have led the fraternity in numbers from a percentage standpoint.

Brother Feltham makes his home in Baltimore and is associated with one of the leading brokerage houses of that city, Robert Garrett & Sons.

Robert G. Busse

Bob's activity in Delta Sigma Pi affairs has been both constant and extensive since 1936 when, as a member of Phi Sigma Beta, the local professional commerce fraternity from the University of Newark, he attended the Twelfth Grand Chapter Congress in Atlanta. He acted as spokesman and headmaster of the group and became chancellor of Beta Omicron Chapter after its installation into the fraternity. After Brother Busse's graduation from Newark, until the beginning of World War II, the duties of Province Officer were handled by him. In addition, he has taken an active part in the operation of the Newark Alumni Club and served three terms on their Board of Governors.

Brother Busse majored in accounting while at the University and obtained a B.S. in Business Administration. Very active, also, in school activities, he served as president of the Junior and Senior classes, vice-president of the Student Council, and was a member of the varsity basketball team. Bob is, at present, employed by the Burroughs Adding Machine Company as Senior Field Representative and has been employed in various capacities by the Company since 1939. Prior to this, he served as the assistant business manager of the Essex County Vocational School Board, cost accountant for the Hoffman Beverage Company of Newark and as a clerk at the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey. Now residing in Wellesley, Massachusetts, Bob participates in civic affairs, among which are the Community Chest and Red Cross.

ROBERT G. BUSSE,
Rutgers

William R. Merrick

Bill was initiated into Beta Iota Chapter at Baylor University in 1931. He attended Rice Institute in Houston, Texas, before he became a student at Baylor University. It was at Baylor that Brother Merrick received his degree of Bachelor of Science in Business Administration. Brother Merrick was very active on the football, basketball and track teams of these two universities. In addition to his undergraduate activities in Delta Sigma Pi, Bill served as president of the Dallas Alumni Club in 1947-48. He has been an active member of this Club since 1939.

WILLIAM R. MERRICK,
Baylor

Brother Merrick is well known to the Deltasigs in the Southwest because of his chapter visitation and participation in the installations there during the past few years. He served on the ritual teams which installed Beta Upsilon Chapter at Texas Tech., Beta Phi Chapter at Southern Methodist, Beta Chi Chapter at Tulsa, and Beta Psi Chapter at Louisiana Tech. He also traveled several hundred miles to attend the installation of Gamma Delta Chapter at Mississippi State College.

From 1934 to 1942, Bill was associated with Safeway Stores, Inc., and concurrently, from 1936 to 1942 he owned and operated a number of retail food stores. In 1942, Brother Merrick entered the U. S. Navy where he served in the Medical Corps with 25 months of foreign duty.

Rudolph Janzen

While attending the University of Minnesota, Brother Janzen became a member of our Alpha Epsilon Chapter in 1924. The following year he was the treasurer of the chapter and also graduated from the university. Rudie was instrumental in organizing the first housing corporation of Alpha Epsilon Chapter and served many years as treasurer and, then later as its president.

Minneapolis is not the only locality to benefit from Brother Janzen's activity. When living in Des Moines, Iowa, he became affiliated with the Delta Sigma Pi alumni club there and, shortly after, was elected vice-president. He also pursued his alumni club interests in his next home, which was Milwaukee. In 1933, Brother Janzen was elected president of the Milwaukee Alumni Club and, later, when returning to Minnesota, was elected president of the Twin Cities Alumni Club. Before becoming a member of the Grand Council in 1942, Rudie was a Province Officer of Delta Sigma Pi for several years.

Rudie is the secretary of Gladness Bakeries, Inc., a wholesale bakery which operates in the northern Midwest. The latter has two very large bakeries located in the cities of Minneapolis and Milwaukee which distribute their products to several states. Rudie purchases many of the materials for Gladness Bakeries, Inc., and he is a member of the Twin Cities Purchasing Agents Association.

RUDOLPH JANZEN,
Minnesota

H. G. Wright, Grand Secretary-Treasurer

In September of this year, Brother Wright celebrated his twenty-fifth year as Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Delta Sigma Pi. He is a charter member of Beta Chapter, and first became a grand officer of the fraternity in 1920, when he was elected Grand President. After serving two terms as Grand President, he became Grand Secretary-Treasurer in 1924. During this period of time, the fraternity developed and progressed steadily until today it can boast of sixty-two active chapters and members throughout the United States and Canada.

H. G. WRIGHT,
Northwestern
Grand Secretary-Treasurer

"Gig" graduated from Northwestern University in 1919, after having served as treasurer and head master of Beta Chapter and president of the Commerce Club of Northwestern. He has served as chairman of the committee that purchased the fine chapter house that is occupied by Beta Chapter. Until several years ago, he acted as secretary-treasurer of this housing corporation. "Gig" is also the author of a history of Beta Chapter, a bound volume containing a very interesting account of the first twenty-five years of Beta Chapter.

Prior to his becoming active in fraternity work, Gig was president of the H. G. Wright Coal Company, a wholesale coal concern in Chicago. In 1926, when he established The Central Office, he gave up this business so that he could devote all his time to the development of the fraternity. From the very beginning of the Professional Interfraternity Conference, "Gig" has been the representative of Delta Sigma Pi, a charter member. He has also held the offices of president and secretary-treasurer in this organization. He is also executive secretary of the Association of Independent Optical Wholesalers.

John F. Mee

Although John is a member of our Nu Chapter at Ohio State University, he is now associated with Indiana University as chairman of the Department of Management and director of the Bureau of Personnel Relations and Placement. John is also serving as auditor of revenue for the State of Indiana, and is a member of the Arbitration Panel of the Governor of Indiana. For several years, Brother Mee headed the National Committee on Alumni Placing Service of Delta Sigma Pi.

JOHN F. MEE,
Ohio State

In World War II he served in the U. S. Army Air Forces, holding the rank of Colonel. During his five years of service he was awarded the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal, several campaign ribbons and four battle stars. Prior to his military service, John was director of placement and instructor in Business Organization at Ohio State University. He has also taught at the University of Maine where he received his A.M. degree. While at the University of Maine, he acted as merchandising representative for a radio station.

Brother Mee's activities have included the writing of several books: Factory Budgets, Co-operation of Trade Associations and Schools of Business, Personnel Problems in War Economy, and a Personnel Recruiting Manual. He is a member of the Academy of Management, American Trade Association Executives, American Marketing Association, American Economic Association, Reserve Officers Association, and the Masonic Order.

Henry C. Lucas

In July, 1948, at the annual meeting of the Grand Council, which was held in Baltimore, Brother Lucas was elected to fill a vacancy on the Grand Council created by the resignation of Daniel C. Kilian at that time. Henry, who is a member of Alpha Delta Chapter, was reelected to the Grand Council at the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress.

HENRY C. LUCAS,
Nebraska

Born in Omaha, Nebraska, he attended schools there and later received his B.S. degree in Business Administration at the University of Nebraska. While he was at the university, he became a member of Delta Sigma Pi. Unceasingly active since that time, he was on hand to play an important part in the installation of Beta Theta Chapter at Creighton in 1930. Shortly after, he was appointed a Province Officer, in which capacity he served Delta Sigma Pi for many years.

During the depression, Brother Lucas was instrumental in reactivating a chapter in spite of extraordinary odds. Several other chapters have been reactivated since the war as a result of the effort and contacts made by him during the course of his travels as an auditor and contracting officer for the army. Everywhere Henry traveled, he made it a point to look up Deltasigs. He also became a regular visitor to the Chicago and the Twin Cities Alumni Club meetings.

At the present time, Henry is in the advertising field, and is serving as auditor and office manager of Mathur, Inc., of Omaha, Nebraska. His home is in Omaha and he is the father of a daughter and a son, nine and five years old respectively.

Fraternity Installs Four New Chapters

LAST SPRING saw the installation of six new chapters in the ranks of Delta Sigma Pi. Two of these installations, Gamma Delta Chapter at Mississippi State College and Gamma Epsilon Chapter at Oklahoma A. & M. College, were reported in detail in the May 1949 issue of The DELTASIG. The other four installations were: Gamma Zeta Chapter at Memphis State College, Gamma Eta Chapter at the University of Omaha, Gamma Theta Chapter at Wayne University in Detroit and Gamma Iota Chapter at the University of New Mexico. The addition of these fine chapters to our fraternity increases our chapter roll to 60 chapters, a new high for Delta Sigma Pi. The two charters granted at the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress further increases our active chapter roll to 62.

Gamma Zeta Chapter at Memphis State College

Gamma Zeta Chapter was installed at Memphis State College at Memphis, Tennessee, on Saturday, April 9, 1949. Upon arrival, the many visitors were taken for a tour of the city of Memphis and the Memphis State College campus. Registration followed at 11:30 A.M. at the King Cotton Hotel. Among those in attendance were Grand President Fowler of Philadelphia, Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright of Chicago, and a sizeable delegation from Alpha Phi Chapter at the University of Mississippi. After the registration had been completed, luncheon was held at the Peabody Hotel.

The ritualistic ceremonies commenced at 2:00 P.M., with the ritual team being composed of the following members: Allen L. Fowler, Pennsylvania, Grand President; H. G. Wright, Northwestern, Grand Secretary-Treasurer; Joseph Cerny, De Paul, Province Officer of Alpha Phi Chapter; Louis K. Brandt, Mississippi; Robert D. Church, Mississippi; Ralph A. Roll, Mississippi; Winfield C. Dunn, Mississippi; Louis L. Vise, Jr., Mississippi; Warren W. Robinson, Mississippi; and Robert B. Ellis, Mississippi. After the formal initiation had been completed, a fellowship hour ensued. The latter proved to be very enjoyable and served to further acquaint the members of the newly installed chapter with the aims of the fraternity.

That evening at 7:00 P.M. the formal installation banquet was held at the King Cotton Hotel, and H. G. Wright, Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Delta Sigma Pi served as toastmaster. A cordial welcome was extended to the new chapter by R. M. Robison, dean of Memphis State College. The history of the department of business administration was described by E. I. Crawford, who is at present head of this department. Roy N. Tipton, a member of Gamma Zeta Chapter, told the story of the founding of Sigma Delta, our petitioning group at Memphis State College.

Allen L. Fowler then presented the charter to Gamma Zeta Chapter and instructed the new members as to their responsibilities in the organization. Wilton A. Herring, Jr., chancellor of Gamma Zeta Chapter, accepted the charter in a short speech to those assembled for the occasion. The featured guest of the evening was Sam M. Nickey, who is president of the Southern Hardwood Traffic Association. Mr. Nickey's address was both timely and of exceptional interest to the members. Fraternal felicitations were then extended by the Grand Officers and official delegates of Delta Sigma Pi.

History of Memphis State College

Memphis State College owes its inception to the General Education Bill passed by the Tennessee Legislature in 1909. The General Education Bill of that year provided for the establishment of the State Normal Schools of Tennessee, and placed their control in the hands of the State Board of Education. Realizing the potentialities of Memphis, this body decided to place one of these institutions in Memphis and to name it

West Tennessee State Normal School. The college was opened for students in the fall of 1912. A faculty of fifteen, including the president and the dean, was chosen to carry on the work. Besides these there were a bursar, a secretary and a matron who helped in administering the school. Of these, six had Bachelor's degrees and seven had Master's. All had broad backgrounds of experience and training behind them.

The curriculum of the institution was divided into two courses, the Academic Course and the Normal Course, The Academic Course was equivalent to four years of high school training and prepared teachers for the elementary grades; the

THE IMPORTANT MOMENT of the Gamma Zeta Chapter at Memphis State College arrived with the presentation of the Delta Sigma Pi Charter to Wilton A. Herring, Jr. by Grand President Fowler.

Normal Course included two years of college work and led to the diploma, which was "a life certificate of qualification to teach in any of the public schools of the State." School administration lay in the hands of the president and the dean, and these, in turn, were directly responsible to the State Board of Education, which was vested with final authority. The faculty was divided into nine departments, organized with "heads" and assistants. Thus organized, the school which was later to become Memphis State College, began its fruitful labor in the field of education.

In 1916 the school began to flex its muscles and expand its curriculum by separating the commercial course from the mathematics, and the domestic arts and sciences from the manual arts. Further growth was manifested in the addition of several new courses: notably Greek, Spanish, and several review courses. The school was reinforced with four new teachers and two scholarship assistants to help in this added responsibility. The General Education Law passed in 1925 authorized the maintenance of Teachers Colleges in the three grand divisions of the State, and in accordance therewith the State Board of Education converted the Normal Schools into Teachers Colleges, requiring high school graduation for entrance and offering a four year course of college work, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science. In the school year 1930-1931 the requirements for graduation were raised to 198 quarter hours and 198 quality credits. Six of these quarter hours were given for participation in the physical education courses.

In addition to the subjects usually included in a liberal arts curriculum, it offered courses which were required for entering schools of medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, engineering, law and other professions. This work is fully recognized by the professional schools of the country. Today, in addition to a minimum of approximately 45 hours in the major, each student is required to complete 27 or more hours in a minor in a different department. Memphis State College is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Its credits are accepted in any of the colleges or universities throughout the country. In the past war Memphis State College gallantly manifested its patriotism by being host to a unit of the Army Specialized Training Program and by contributing its graduates and students to the many branches of the service.

Memphis State College, thanks to the Tennessee Sales Tax Law, is spreading out in buildings and curriculum. The current appropriations for the college have increased by 75 per cent. All of the bonds used for the new constructions around the college are backed by sales tax money. This new construction, some of which has already begun, includes a student union building, an enlargement of the cafeteria, a new three-floor classroom building, a home economics building, additions to the gymnasium, improvements in the library, and improved utilities. Memphis State College has progressed tremendously since its beginning. It began with several hundred students in 1912. Today its halls echo with the sound of 2310 voices. Several hundred applicants for admission have been refused in recent years because of the lack of facilities, but with the completion of the building program and the addition of new courses Memphis State College will be able, conservatively speaking, to accommodate 3500 students.

Department of Business Administration

The Department of Business Administration at Memphis State College had its origin in 1914 when Professor Dean, then head of the Education Department and often referred to as "the father of business education at Memphis State," included in the curriculum of the department of mathematics the basic courses, shorthand and typing, and some work in bookkeeping. These courses immediately became very popular. Students from local high schools were permitted to enroll as no commercial work was offered in the city school. Practically from the first, the commerce course enrollment exceeded the enrollment in mathematics with the result that two years later, in the fall of 1916, a Department of Commerce was organized, a department which has been in operation without a break to the present time. In the early 20's, under such teachers as Mr. Poindexter and Mr. Boswell, several additional courses appeared. These included commercial geography, bookkeeping, business organization, advanced accounting and office practice.

The city of Memphis was growing rapidly and by 1925 was becoming a commercial and industrial center. The city limits had extended practically to the college campus. The city high schools had greatly expanded their programs and the need for high school teachers both locally and over the western part of the state was acute. This resulted in a change of status for the Normal School. By legislative act, it was designated "West Tennessee Teachers College," and it was authorized to offer a full four-year course leading to the degree, Bachelor of Science. This opened a less restricted possibility for inclusion of commerce courses. Popular demand forced legislative action in 1941 which changed the name of the school to Memphis State College. This provided opportunity for an expanded business curriculum and more extensive preparation for positions in commerce.

Mr. J. M. Smith was elected to the presidency of the college in the summer of 1946. One of his first acts was curricular expansion and departmental improvement. Dr. Edward I. Crawford was appointed to head the Commerce Department and the name of the department was changed to Department of Business Administration. During the 1946-1947 college year, enrollment in the department quadrupled and the faculty was increased to six full-time teachers. In the college year of 1948-1949, 2310 students were enrolled in the college. Of this number 645 are majors in the Department of Business Administration. Four specific majors are now available with schedules of 60 to 70 quarter hours of departmental offerings in each. A student may major in accounting, business management, sales management or secretarial administration. Minors are also offered in these fields for students who major in other departments.

The college has developed an enviable reputation among businessmen in Memphis and surrounding territory as a source of supply of superior office and clerical help; and among school principals and superintendents as a place to find high caliber teachers of commerce subjects. The curriculum is both broad and intensive. Memphis is today the fastest growing industrial center in the Mid-South. It is the center of cotton shipments for Arkansas, Tennessee and parts of Mississippi. It carries on an enormous export business to Europe, South America and the Orient. Local business alone shows every evidence of being able to absorb all of the business trainees the college can produce for many years to come. The future outlook for the college is very bright. There is every reason to believe that in the very near future graduate work will be introduced into the college, and the prospects for its receiving university status seem not too remote. It is a growing, developing college in a growing city which is expanding industrially and commercially.

The History of Sigma Delta

Through the combined effort of Dr. Edward I. Crawford, head of the Department of Business Administration at Memphis State College, and Ernest W. Pegram, Jr., a member of Kappa Chapter of the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi, Sigma Delta was organized. The original suggestion came from

THE OFFICERS of Gamma Zeta Chapter at Memphis State with Grand President Fowler and Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright on the date of their installation.

Ernest Pegram, a transfer student from the University of Georgia, Atlanta Division. He approached Dr. Crawford as to the feasibility of a local business fraternity as the initial step toward affiliation with Delta Sigma Pi. Dr. Crawford was enthusiastic over the prospect and through subsequent conversations and meetings, a business fraternity at Memphis State College became a reality. On May 17, 1948, Dr. Crawford met with a group of fifty men, majors in the Business Administration Department, and all members of the old Business Administration Club of the college, and the new fraternity was organized. It adopted the name, Sigma Delta, meaning the sum of balanced business activities. By unanimous vote, the fraternity decided to petition Delta Sigma Pi for a charter to operate a chapter at Memphis State. The following officers were elected at the first meeting: Head Master, Ernest Pegram; Senior Warden, Charles Gaglio; Junior Warden, William Duke; Treasurer, Frank Sasso; Scribe, William Doyle; Historian, George Kimbrell, Master of Ceremonies and Festivities, Charles Pope. George Kimbrell was appointed to head the petitioning committee.

The second meeting of Sigma Delta was held two weeks later. A constitution which had been prepared by the officers was presented to the group. After appreciable discussion on the various articles, the constitution was adopted. One additional officer was called for in the constitution, and a special election was held to fill this office. Alma Primm was unanimously elected chancellor. H. G. Wright, Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Delta Sigma Pi, paid a visit to the campus a few days after the second meeting. The head master called the group together in special session the afternoon of Brother Wright's visit to hear a report from him regarding preliminary activities before a local fraternity could be nationalized. The first professional tour, arranged by Brother Grover Bass, chairman of the professional committee, was a visit to the Memphis plant of the International Harvester Company. The tour was under the escort of the plant safety director. Thirty members of the fraternity took advantage of this opportunity. The second professional tour was an escorted trip through the First National Bank of Memphis, a financial institution whose operations require the use of 20 floors in the First National Bank Building. The fraternity met in the Board of Director's room. It was broken up into small groups, each of which was taken through the entire organization by officials of the bank. A complimentary luncheon was served to the members at the Peabody Hotel. A professional tour was made through the Memphis Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, and another through the plant of the International Business Machines Company.

Mr. R. B. Coleman, personnel director of Sears, Roebuck, and Company, was the speaker at one of the professional programs of the fraternity. Mr. Brown Burch, manager of the Memphis office of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner, and Bean, delivered an address at another meeting. His topic concerned the relationship between the investment house and the customer. The fraternity sponsored an all-college assembly at which a film depicting the manufacture of automobile tires was shown by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company. J. D. Thomson, Assistant Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Delta Sigma Pi, visited the campus during the summer. At a special luncheon meeting of some of the officers and other members, he presented some pertinent facts regarding the petition of Sigma Delta. Later he secured the necessary information relative to enrollment and other factors of the college and the group. The Sigma Delta Newsletter, under the editorship of Jimmie McIntyre, has been issued monthly since the fraternity was organized. This publication of group activities, personal items, editorials, and articles by faculty members and others, is sent to all members. It has received much favorable comment.

The fraternity has been holding its meetings at the Claridge Hotel. New officers were elected at the first meeting in the fall quarter; Head Master, Ernest Pegram; Senior Warden, Grover Bass; Junior Warden, Ralph Murchison; Treasurer, Doyle Savage; Scribe, Otis Gray; Historian, George Kimbrell; Master of Ceremonies and Festivities, Francis Garell; Chancellor, Wilton Herring. Rushing activities included a smoker at the Claridge Hotel attended by about 20 prospective pledges who had been carefully checked as to character, scholarship qualications, and desirability as members. Fourteen of these were inducted as neophytes at a pledging ceremonial held early in November. President Smith was a guest at the smoker. He made a talk, outlining his hope and aspirations for the future of the college, and welcoming Sigma Delta to the campus. He expressed a keen desire to see the fraternity affiliated with the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi.

Gamma Eta Chapter at the University of Omaha

The very attractive Administration Building at the University of Omaha was the scene of the installation of our Gamma Eta Chapter at that university on Saturday, April 23. Grand President Fowler, Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright, Assistant Grand Secretary-Treasurer Thomson, and Grand Council Member Lucas were on hand, as well as delegations from Alpha Delta Chapter at Nebraska, Alpha Eta Chapter at South Dakota and Beta Theta Chapter at Creighton, to properly install this new chapter into the fraternity.

The visiting delegations met for lunch with Dean Lucas, Nu Chapter, now head of the Division of Business Administration at Omaha, and Joseph Dellere, Alpha Delta Chapter, assistant business manager of Omaha University. Following this informal luncheon, the entire delegation proceeded to the university where the members of Delta Beta Phi, our petitioning group at Omaha University, were awaiting initiation. The informal ceremonies were held in several rooms of the Administration Building and the formal ritual was conducted in the auditorium. The facilities were exceptionally fine and added a great deal of dignity to the ceremonies.

The installation banquet was also held in the auditorium and Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright of Chicago served as toastmaster. A warm welcome was extended to the new chapter by Dr. P. Milo Bail, president of the University of Omaha. The history of the Division of Business Administration was narrated by Carl W. Helmsteadter, dean of the College of Applied Arts and Sciences. Dean John W. Lucas, a member of our Ohio State Chapter, predicted a successful future for the Division of Business Administration. The founding of Delta Beta Phi was then depicted by Glen C. Appleby of Gamma Eta Chapter. The presentation of the Gamma Eta charter and an analysis of the responsibilities involved in its acceptance were made by Grand President Fowler. James H. Hergert, head master of Gamma Eta Chapter, accepted it on its behalf and pledged to uphold the purposes and ideals of Delta Sigma Pi. The official delegates and Grand Officers of the fraternity were then introduced and expressed a few words of welcome in conclusion of the program.

History of the University of Omaha

The University of Omaha was born of an agitation to bring the main center of Bellevue College to Omaha. The campaign resulted in the organization of a Board of Trustees for the purpose of establishing a non-sectarian, coeducational institution of higher learning. Some of the members of the Board of Trustees of the University of Omaha were also members of the Board of Trustees of the Bellevue College, founded many years ago and located at Bellevue, some fourteen miles south of Omaha, which had then closed its doors, or was shortly thereafter to do so. These members advocated the use of the buildings and campus of the former Bellevue College as an ideal site for the new institution, but it was decided that the location was too remote and that the school should be located within the city and should bear the name of the University of Omaha. Before the movement was far underway, Bellevue College, which at first had endorsed the plan, withdrew from the enterprise. The board was incorporated as the University of Omaha on October 8, 1898, and later, at the board's request, Dr. Daniel E. Jenkins, dean of the faculty at the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, became president.

Educational work began September 14, 1909, with 26 students enrolled. Prior to this time less than one-half of one per cent of Central High School graduates had gone to the college at Bellevue. Nineteen of the original number of students enrolled at the new university came from Central High. Eleven of the number completed the four year course. The school began with five instructors. Money was raised by popular subscription to obtain the reserve and residence. The university grew and thrived on yearly subscriptions and the gradual accumulations of a small endowment. The first of these donations was made by Mrs. M. O. Maul in 1911, who gave a tract of land which sold for $14,000. This was applied to the building of the John Jacobs Memorial Gymnasium. In 1916, George A. Joslyn gave $25,000 toward the erection of a main building, afterward named Joslyn Hall. The following year, Mrs. Joslyn gave two pieces of Farnam Street property to the university; the income to be used for maintenance of the institution.

A new departure came in 1928 when the state legislature adopted a measure permitting cities of the metropolitan class to vote on establishing and maintaining municipal universities. Legislation for a municipal university here was begun by the Greater Omaha Association and in May, 1930, the people of the city voted to place the university under municipal sponsorship.

The enrollment of the University of Omaha has increased from 26 students in 1909 to a combined day and evening enrollment at the present time of more than 4,000 students. Although the bulk of the school's enrollment comes from the city itself, the institution does draw students from many other states.

Important progress has also been made in the academic field. At the present time the university is fully accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. It is a member of the American Association of Urban Universities, the Association of American Colleges, the National University Extension Association, and the American Council on Education. The University of Omaha is on the approved list of the Association of American Universities and is accredited by the American Association of University Women. Although the war made campus additions impossible, extensive plans were laid during the war period for construction to be undertaken upon the cessation of hostilities. The first unit of four buildings included in a ten-year building plan is now under construction. A large fieldhouse-gymnasium is scheduled for completion by the fall of 1949. In addition to the fieldhouse, three other structures are contemplated and will be built as funds become available. The plan includes a library, an applied sciences building and a student union building.

Division of Business Administration

Anticipating the increasing importance of a business curriculum, a College of Commerce and Finance, which offered four-year courses, was added to the University of Omaha in 1925. In 1942 a College of Applied Arts and Sciences was established with a Division of Business Administration. A four-year program leading to the Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration has been offered for some time. The Division of Business Administration supervises a Department of Retailing, as well as fields of specialization in accounting, marketing, finance, personnel management and secretarial work. A constantly growing enrollment in the Division of Business Administration is indicative of the whole-hearted acceptance by the residents of not only this area, but of the entire country, of the University of Omaha and the Division of Business Administration. The latter has grown rapidly from an enrollment of 54 students, in the first semester of the college year 1944-1945, to 607 students in the first semester of 1948-1949. In response to the requirements of increased registration the staff of the Division of Business Administration has been greatly expanded. In 1936 and 1937 there were only two instructors. This number increased to four in 1942 and to 13 in 1948.

The businessmen in Omaha and this vicinity are enthusiastic about the program offered at the university as evidenced by the fact that a large proportion of each graduating class finds employment with expanding business in and near Omaha.

Those who have left this area have established reputations not only for themselves but also for the University of Omaha. It is felt that although the rate of growth will decrease somewhat as the effects of the war disappear, the Division of Business Administration will continue to grow and to steadily play a more and more important role in the university.

The History of Delta Beta Phi

Delta Beta Phi Fraternity came into existence on December 4, 1947, the first commerce fraternity on the campus of the University of Omaha. This fraternity began organizing in October, 1947. In that same month, after numerous conferences with Dean John W. Lucas, a member of Nu Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi since October 10, 1926, an organizing committee composed of A. D. Agee, Glen C. Appleby, Bruce Chevalier, F. Alec Phillips, Harry P. Jassmann and James Hergert, was formed. Phillips was named the chairman of the temporary committee while Agee was appointed to act as the secretary. During the months of November and December, a struggle to become organized in such a manner as to be able to affiliate with a national commerce fraternity began. The aim of the group from its very inception was to one day petition the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi for a chapter.

Late in November of 1947, Harry Jassmann, assisted by Hergert, Appleby and Miller, presented a constitution based on the national fraternity chapters' at the Universities of Nebraska and Creighton. This constitution was accepted at the first meeting of the Delta Beta Phi Fraternity. Approximately 27 male students registered in the Division of Business Administration attended the organization meeting. In spite of its newness and inexperience of its members, this group carried on during the balance of the school year a well-developed professional program which included several interesting, as well as educational, professional meetings and an industrial tour. Among the speakers were Hugh A. Wickert, assistant chief accountant of Fairmont Foods Company; Silas Barton, public relations manager of Safeway Stores, Incorporated; Thomas A. Maxwell, C.P.A., treasurer of the Omaha Federal Land Bank; Mr. Schinrock, manager of the industrial department of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce; W. W. Keenan, president of the Van Sant School of Business; and P. P. Purdham, head of Burns-

Potter and Company. A three-hour tour of the Farm Crops Processing Corporation was made on March 25 by Delta Beta Phi Fraternity and a dinner dance was held at the Rome Hotel. J. D. Thomson, Assistant Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Delta

Gamma Theta Chapter at Wayne University

The sixth chapter to be installed during the 1948-1949 college year was Gamma Theta Chapter at Wayne University, Detroit, Michigan, on May 7, 1949. In addition to the presence of three Grand Council members, delegations from both Xi Chapter at the University of Michigan and Theta Chapter at the University of Detroit were in attendance. Registration took place at 12:30 P.M. in the Tea Lounge at the Wayne Student Center on campus. At 2:00 P.M. the ritualistic initiation was conducted by the following ritual team: Allen L. Fowler, Grand President, Pennsylvania; H. G. Wright, Grand Secretary-Treasurer, Northwestern; J. Elwood Armstrong, member of the

At 6:00 P.M. a reception was held at the Belcrest Hotel, and it was followed by the installation banquet. H. G. Wright, Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Delta Sigma Pi, acted as toastmaster for the occasion and greetings were extended to the new chapter by Dr. David D. Henry, president of Wayne University. The history of the School of Business Administration was recounted by Walter C. Folley, who is dean of the school; while Neil D. Winters, senior warden of Gamma Theta Chapter, described the founding of Beta Alpha Sigma. Grand President Fowler then presented the charter to Gamma Theta Chapter, at the same time stressing the responsibilities that this entailed. Harry L. Brown, head master of the newly installed chapter, accepted the charter on behalf of the group. A fraternal welcome was voiced by J. Elwood Armstrong of the Grand Council and R. C. Schmidt, a past Grand President of the fraternity. Greetings were also extended by the official delegates of Delta Sigma Pi in attendance at this installation.

History of Wayne University

In honor of General Anthony Wayne, heroic Indian fighter of the Northwest, the name Wayne was adopted and applied to that university now located in the heart of Detroit, the automobile center of the world. Wayne University was officially established by the Detroit Board of Education in 1933. In that particular year, five schools of collegiate rank were brought together to form the nucleus of the present institution of learning. There were: The Detroit College of Medicine, founded in 1868, the Detroit Teachers College, originally established in 1881, the College of the City of Detroit, opened in 1915, the Detroit College of Pharmacy, begun in 1923, and the Detroit City Law School, established in 1927. Rapid expansion soon brought into the fold the College of Engineering, along with the School of Public Affairs and Social Work, the School of General Studies, the Graduate School, the College of Nursing and the School of Business Administration. At present, Wayne University ranks among the 20 largest universities in the country on the basis of enrollment and, in recent years, its freshman classes have been equaled or surpassed in size by very few schools.

At the close of World War II, Wayne University, like so many other schools all over the United States, was deluged with its share of student-veterans and regular students. From the cramped conditions of 1946, the university, with the cooperation of city officials, has acquired Webster Hall, one of the finest hotels in Detroit. This magnificent structure, located about a block away from the main building, gave Wayne much needed dormitory space, an excellent student center, a cafeteria, snack bar, game rooms and a swimming pool. Enrollment in the spring semester of 1948 was over 17,000 matriculated and non-matriculated students. Instruction for these students is now being supplied by 500 full and part-time instructors. The crowded conditions that once existed are being alleviated as the expansion program moves ahead on schedule.

Closely integrated with the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Detroit Technical Library and the Detroit Public Library, Wayne more than contributes its share toward composing the beautiful and impressive cultural center of Detroit. The proximity of Wayne University to the Detroit Public Library is particularly advantageous to advanced students in the university. However, this has in no way deterred the university from assembling a large and active library of its own. Wayne's library resources have been augmented annually, the 1936 inventory of 109,000 volumes increased to 253,000 in 1945. At the present time it contains more than 296,000 volumes, plus approximately a 100,000 uncatalogued pamphlet and government document section. Included in the latter figure are many rare books of the Kresge-Hooker collection, a scientific library donated to the university in 1943.

School of Business Administration

The Wayne University School of Business Administration, organized in 1945, is concerned with research and study in those fields pertaining to business and industry. The primary objective of the school is to provide students with the fundamental knowledge necessary to equip them to become useful citizens in their communities as well as members of business and industry. The three major responsibilities of the School of Business Administration are: first, to instill in the student a desire to learn how to live and how to think, second, to prepare the student to take a responsible position in the commercial world, and lastly, to assist the student in procuring proper placement.

Since the growth and development of the school depends, to a great extent, upon the relationships existing between the school and business and industry, a selected group of executives has been chosen and is known as the Businessmen's Advisory Committee. The members of this committee were selected because of their executive positions and extensive knowledge in their particular fields. The Student Services Section, an administrative organization providing personnel services for students, is concerned with enforcement of rules, evaluation of credits, vocational counseling and the placement of graduates where maximum use may be made of their training and abilities. All business administration students are encouraged to participate in the student activities program of the university. The School of Business Administration carries on extensive business research, awarding fellowships to outstanding students. The Packaging and Material Handling Institute is an integral part of the research program.

The Department of Personnel Methods is the agent of the American Institute of Accountants, Committee on Selection of Personnel, for conducting the committee's College and Professional Accounting Testing program. This department also produces Industrial Training Abstracts designed to serve personnel directors and their assistants. The Department of Personnel Methods offers institutes and conferences for personnel executives in commercial and industrial establishments. The university recognizes that rapid changes in the industrial world make many demands upon the individual. It realizes that the continuing education of people and their return to profitable employment is one of its major responsibilities and opportunities.

In the School of Business Administration curriculums in the following area are offered: Accounting, advertising and market-

Readily accessible to Wayne University are Detroit's many leading industries with valuable facilities available to the student body. Students profit by the merging of the life of the university with that of the community. They find greater opportunities for practical experience in the professions, in business and general educational work. The Wayne campus of the future is already off the drawing boards and in the construction state. The entire university site will be arranged into three major groups. ing, banking and finance, business organization and management, foreign trade, general business, government and business, personnel methods, retailing, insurance and secretarial science. Students wishing to pursue a curriculum in any one of the above areas elect the Pre-Business Administration curriculum during the freshman and sophomore years in the College of Liberal Arts. After successfully completing the junior college work and after admission to the School of Business Administration, the student enters the curriculum established in the particular area in which he desires to study. The school grants Bachelor of Arts and Science degrees and in the graduate field it offers Master of Science and Arts degrees. The School of Business Administration is at present fulfilling the requirements for acceptance into the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business.

The History of Beta Alpha Sigma

Beta Alpha Sigma, a professional business administration fraternity, was founded in April, 1948, by six undergraduates who were brought together by Mr. Edward Eriksen of the accounting faculty. At the first meeting, it was decided that the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi be contacted to see if Beta Alpha Sigma could eventually qualify for a chapter at Wayne University. The dean of the school, Mr. Walter C. Folley, gave his approval and offered to aid in any way possible. A pledge program was opened in May and the results were highly gratifying. Grand Secretary-Treasurer H. G. Wright referred the group to J. Elwood Armstrong, member of the Grand Council, who resided in Detroit. Brother Armstrong and Paul Pickner, past head master of Theta Chapter of the University of Detroit, were present June 1 to provide valuable information concerning the benefits and responsibilities of becoming affiliated with the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi.

After completing the necessary arrangements, Beta Alpha Sigma was recognized by the university officials on January 19, 1949, and university privileges were extended at that time. As part of the pledging program, set up to insure a continuity of the group and its purposes, a pledge party was held at the home of the fraternity advisor, John J. Rath, on February 4. Many of the men are at present employed part or full-time in the business field and the members have benefited from the discussion groups and meetings that have served to supplement academic training with practical knowledge and experience. It is fortunate that the city of Detroit, a center of industry, offers unlimited opportunities for research and practice to university students and an abundance of professional and technical resources of special interest to students of business administration.

Mr. Irwin, of the faculty of the School of Business Administration, gave an excellent talk on "Salesmanship," and planned for the future is a talk by Mr. W. A. Paton, professor of accounting, University of Michigan, and also one by the British and Canadian Vice-consuls to Moscow. Preparations have been made for guided tours through the Detroit Stock Exchange and R. L. Polk and Company, publishers. The Beta Alpha Sigma Newsletter was published each month and it proved to be a valuable aid in the operation of the group.

Gamma Iota Chapter at New Mexico

The last chapter to be installed in the 1948-1949 college year was Gamma Iota at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque. The ceremonies were held on Saturday, May 14, at the Hilton Hotel in Albuquerque. Grand President Fowler traveled over 2,000 miles to serve as the installing officer and J. D. Thomson, of The Central Office in Chicago, was there to assist him. Beta Upsilon Chapter at Texas Tech in Lubbock, Texas, sent a delegation of 14 members, and Alpha Nu Chapter at the University of Denver in Denver, Colorado, sent three members to represent it.

The activities started early on Saturday morning when the visitors were conducted on a tour of the campus and watched the annual Fiesta Day Parade in which the local chapter had entered a float. At noon, a very appetizing luncheon was served in the Green Room of the Hilton Hotel. Immediately after the luncheon, the initiation began with members of Alpha Nu Chapter and Beta Upsilon Chapter serving on the ritual team with Grand President Fowler. After the formal initiation had been completed everyone assembled on the roof garden of the hotel to have photographs taken.

The installation banquet was held at the same hotel and began promptly at 6:00 P.M. Brother J. D. Thomson served as toastmaster and introduced Tom L. Popejoy, president of the University of New Mexico, who spoke on the "Potentiality of the University." Dean Sorrell of the College of Business Administration then addressed the brothers on the "History of the College of Business Administration." William H. Hughes, the historian of Gamma Iota Chapter, was next on the program and he ably told of the "Founding of Pi Delta," our petitioning group at New Mexico. The long-awaited moment then arrived and Grand President Fowler presented Gamma Iota Chapter with its charter. Clifford O. Qualls accepted the charter on behalf of the chapter with appropriate remarks. The feature address of the evening was then made by Carl A. Hatch, United States District Judge of New Mexico. The various delegations in attendance were then introduced and special recognition was given to Brother Ralph Edgel, Sigma, and Brother Alan Carey, Alpha Nu, both of whom are members of the Bureau of Business Research at New Mexico, for their co-operation with the local fraternity and help in making national affiliation possible.

History of the University of New Mexico

The campus of the University of New Mexico is in the eastern section of the city of Albuquerque, and within ten miles of the Sandia Mountains. It is the center of a metropolitan area of approximately 135,000 inhabitants, and as the campus is approximately a mile high the climate is mild throughout the year. Historic Santa Fe, the picturesque Indian pueblos of Taos, Jemez, Isleta and Acoma are within easy driving distance of the university. Bernard S. Rodey, the "Father of the University," drafted the University Bill passed on February 28, 1889, by the Territorial Legislature in Santa Fe. Hodgkin Hall, at first an old red brick school house standing on Railroad Avenue, now Central Avenue, was the first building erected. It was the University of New Mexico in its entirety. There wasn't even a public high school in the territory in 1889 and, for that matter, New Mexico hadn't even been accepted as a state.

The university opened as a summer normal school on June 15, 1892, and began full-term instruction on September 21 of the same year. Its development in the 57 years since its inception has been extraordinary. The 20 acres allotted by the Territorial Legislature for a campus have become more than 400; buildings have increased from a single structure to 34 permanent buildings. Enrollment has grown from one college enrollee in 1895 to nearly 5,000 in the fall of 1948. The development of new colleges and divisions has kept pace with the physical growth of the institution. The College Department became the College of Literature and Arts in 1898, later changing to its present title of College of Arts and Sciences. The College of Engineering opened in 1906, and the Graduate School and Extension Division in 1919. In 1928, the College of Education was created; in 1935, the General College; and in 1936, the College of Fine Arts. A unit of the United States Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps was established May 20, 1941. The School of Inter-American Affairs was instituted during the same year. In 1945, the following new divisions became an active part of the university program: the College of Pharmacy, the Division of Government Research, and the Bureau of Business Research. In 1946, the Division of Research and Development and the Institute of Meteoritics were added to the university's research program. The College of Business Administration and the College of Law were organized in the fall of 1947. The University of New Mexico has 38 instructional departments; work leading to Master's degree is offered in 24 departments, and toward the Doctor's degree in seven.

THE ADMINISTRATION BUILDING of the University of New Mexico is an example of the Pueblo architecture which was used throughout the campus.

THE INSTALLATION BANQUET of Gamma Iota Chapter at the University of New Mexico was held in the Green Room of the Hilton Hotel in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

The university's architectural style, a modification of the Indian pueblo, was adopted in 1906. The permanent structures on the campus are: Hodgkin Hall, housing the College of Education; Yatoka Hall, the home of the College of Business Administration; the maintenance shop; residential halls, Hokona, Marron, Bandelier and Mesa Vista; Rodey Hall, the campus theater; and 26 others. There are 33 temporary buildings serving as classrooms, dormitories and laboratories. In the process of completion at the present time are the new Journalism Building which is to house the Division of Journalism and the University Press, a new central heating plant, new headquarters for the Bureau of Business Research and a new men's dormitory capable of housing 400 men.

Found on the campus are 15 honorary organizations, 12 professional fraternities, 6 social sororities and 11 social fraternities. Ample facilities for recreation and sports are provided by the university. An outdoor swimming pool is open from early spring to late fall and is widely used by students, faculty members and their families. There is also an 18-hole golf course which is known by pros throughout the country as one of the toughest in the Southwest. The University of New Mexico also conducts classes in horseback riding, ice skating and various types of dancing from the square dance and Mexican folk dance to contemporary dances. Skiing facilities are to be found in the nearby Sandia Mountains, less than an hour's drive from the campus.

College of Business Administration

In September of 1947, the College of Business Administration, formerly a department in the College of Arts and Sciences, was established as a separate unit with a beginning enrollment of 549 students. Dr. Vernon G. Sorrell, head of the department, was chosen to be dean of the new college. In the short time that the College of Business Administration has been established on the campus, it has become one of the most important colleges, with an enrollment of about 700. The college ranks third in enrollment, being exceeded only by the College of Arts and Sciences and the College of Engineering. In June of 1949, approximately 90 students from the College of Business Administration received their degrees, including eight Deltasigs.

The primary function of the College of Business Administration is to provide business education on a professional plane. Its program is designed to develop initiative, independence, resourcefulness and a professional regard for business ethics. Emphasis is placed upon development of effective work habits, of ability to analyze and solve problems, and of recognition of the interrelationships among the various factors, agencies, or influences which affect economic activity. The college recognizes an immediate duty to contribute to economic progress through conducting business research, both independently and in cooperation with individual enterprises, associations of business, governmental agencies and other organizations. It recognizes, too, an obligation to render a maximum of service to the business community through conducting educational conferences, offering extension courses, publishing research bulletins and similar activities. A Bureau of Business Research is maintained within the college in which advanced students may gain research experience.

The College of Business Administration offers six fields of concentration from which a student may choose his major. They are: general business, accounting, marketing, management, finance and secretarial-office management. Graduate divisions of business administration have since been added, so that now students may earn a Master degree. Students in the six major fields are given comprehensive training during their first two years in accounting, English, government and history, laboratory sciences, mathematics, philosophy and other subjects. This training is followed during the remaining two years by advanced courses in specialized fields. Some of the subjects an upper division student must take are: business statistics, marketing, business writing, business law, corporation finance and money and banking.

contribution to the intelligent and enlightened direction of our national and world economy.

The History of Pi Delta

At a meeting of the Commerce Club on October 28, 1948, Dr. Vernon G. Sorrell, dean of the College of Business Administration, mentioned the need for a professional fraternity in the field of commerce and business administration. Tom Trainor and Cliff Qualls immediately began work toward this goal and, after meeting with Dean Sorrell and later with Alan D. Carey, a member of Alpha Nu Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi, the two men picked a nucleus of eight men with which to begin formation of such an organization. The aims of this local fraternity were: 1. To encourage scholarship in the study of business and to promote closer affiliation between the commercial world and students of commerce, resulting in a better understanding of, and more adequate preparation for, such work; 2. To petition Delta Sigma Pi for membership and chapter standing.

Brother Carey had an invaluable store of Delta Sigma Pi information. It would be impossible to overemphasize the assistance given by Ralph L. Edgel, a member of Sigma Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi. Under the tutelage of these two men, the first meeting was called for November 3, 1948. At this meeting, the Greek letters Pi and Delta were extracted from Delta Sigma Pi to form the name of the local group—Pi Delta. Officers were then elected and requirements for admission were established at this time. The latter were based upon the requirements of the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi.

A constitution was then delivered to the dean of men for his approval and forwarding to the Student Council for their acceptance. It was at this time that the local group first notified The Central Office of their intention to petition and they then began to formulate a professional program. It was felt that active participation in such a program should be initiated as soon as possible. Membership had risen to 14 by the time the first month had passed. The first Pledge Smoker was announced over the air and held at the East Mesa Airport. The second social affair, and the first monthly dinner, was held at the La Placita in Old Albuquerque. Dean Sorrell of the College of Business Administration was the guest speaker on this occasion.

J. D. Thomson, Assistant Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Delta Sigma Pi, visited Pi Delta Fraternity on January 9, 1949. The availability of the Bureau of Business Research Office as a meeting place enabled many of the men to drop in between classes to meet Brother Thomson, thus enabling members of Pi Delta to obtain first-hand information on the national organization. Although several discussions had already been held concerning the petition, work on this project was now pushed forward with a vengeance, two special meetings being held the same week. A wholehearted turnout gave the initial impetus, complete co-operation of all members not only served to expedite compilation and formation of the petition, but also to deepen and further fraternal spirit. On February 8, having reached the primary goal of 25 members, another election was held and an excellent professional program for the remainder of the current semester was formulated.

The first officers of Gamma Iota are: Head Master, Clifford O. Qualls; Senior Warden, Lowry G. Kinzer; Junior Warden, Jay W. Hughes; Scribe, Rudolph J. Walter, III; Treasurer, Ray E. Dugger, Jr.; and Historian, William H. Hughes.

Those undergraduate members initiated on May 14, 1949, are: Bert G. Barns, Dorvell H. Chandler, Larry Costanzo, Donald C. Dorn, Eddie Driscoll, Edward Gorey, James C. Gravlin, James Hanosh, John R. Ittersagen, William Lew, John H. Morrison, Leo R. Mullner, Manuel J. Sandoval, Justus K. Schomp, Kenneth D. Spiller, Thomas G. Trainor, Jr., Carlin A. Tucker, Richard C. Whitehead, and Gregory Zaccaria.

THE VISITING DELEGATIONS at the installation of Gamma Iota Chapter at the University of New Mexico came over 400 miles one way to attend. Beta Upsilon Chapter at Texas Tech in Lubbock sent 24 members, and Alpha Nu Chapter at Denver sent a car load of four.

CHAPTERS

Chapter Efficiency Contest Records Broken When Twenty-three Chapters Score Maximum

PREDICTIONS AT THE START of the last college year were that the 1949 Chapter Efficiency Contest would have more than the sixteen winners recorded in 1948, but no one anticipated that 23 chapters or 45 per cent of those participating would score the maximum number of points or 100,000! The Honor Roll was also attained by 15 additional chapters with a score of 85,000 points or better, making a total 73% of the participants that finished in the money. Those chapters scoring the maximum of 100,000 points were: Beta at Northwestern-Chicago, Delta at Marquette, Epsilon at Iowa, Zeta at Northwestern-Evanston, Kappa at Georgia-Atlanta, Mu at Georgetown, Nu at Ohio State, Xi at Michigan, Pi at Georgia-Athens, Chi at Johns Hopkins, Psi at Wisconsin, Alpha Beta at Missouri, Alpha Gamma at Penn State, Alpha Delta at Nebraska, Alpha Pi at Indiana, Alpha Sigma at Alabama, Alpha Upsilon at Miami, Beta Theta at Creighton, Beta Kappa at Texas, Beta Xi at Rider, Beta Omicron at Rutgers, Beta Pi at Kent State and Beta Tau at Western Reserve.

For Kappa Chapter at Georgia-Atlanta this is the thirteenth year they have succeeded in attaining this goal. Beta Chapter at Northwestern-Chicago has ten wins while Alpha Beta at Missouri is next in achievement with nine. Five chapters, Epsilon at Iowa, Zeta at Northwestern-Evanston, Psi at Wisconsin, Alpha Gamma at Penn State, and Alpha Pi at Indiana, broke into the win volume for the first time. The following eight chapters, although now active in Delta Sigma Pi, were either reactivated or installed too late in the college year to participate effectively in the 1949 Contest: Alpha Theta at Cincinnati, Beta Omega at Miami, Gamma Delta at Mississippi State, Gamma Epsilon at Oklahoma A & M, Gamma Zeta at Memphis State, Gamma Eta at Omaha, Gamma Theta at Wayne and Gamma Iota at New Mexico.

The Chapter Efficiency Contest was established during the college year 1931-1932 and has definitely proven itself to be of real value in increasing chapter interest. It has also provided an adequate yardstick of measurement of chapter achievement. The Chapter Efficiency Contest is divided into five major divisions: Professional Activities, Scholarship, Membership, Finances, and Chapter Initiative and Administration. A maximum of 20,000 points is permitted in each division, thus a final standing of 100,000 points indicates a perfect record for the year's work. Points are awarded for many phases of chapter activity such as professional meetings, individual and chapter scholarship, pledge training course, chapter publicity, contributions to The DELTASIG, the proper handling of finances, collection of dues, payment of bills, the initiation of an adequate number of members, attendance at business meetings, chapter publications, and the filing of important reports.

Several minor changes were made by the Grand Council which met just prior to the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress which are to be effective with the 1950 Chapter Efficiency Contest. Basically the contest remains the same and the modifications will add more incentive and refinement to it. Stimulated by the Seventeenth Grand Chapter Congress and their experience of the past three years, many more chapters should attain the ultimate goal of 100,000 points in the 1949 Chapter Efficiency Contest.

■ THE blueprints were completed in 1930 for the National Endowment Fund of Delta Sigma Pi. They provided for the eventual perpetuation of the fraternity and the creation of a fund from which chapters could obtain means to finance housing and students could secure loans which would enable them to complete their college education.

■ 1500 Life Members have already provided the foundation for the National Endowment Fund, and the loans which have already been made to chapters and scores of students have convinced the architects of the soundness of these blueprints. Your Life Membership is needed to continue the construction of the National Endowment Fund.

■ The $50 which it will cost you for a Life Membership is not a gift or donation in any sense of the word as you will receive in return copies of the national magazine, The DELTASIG; the ALUMNI NEWS and all of the services of the fraternity for life.

■ A beautiful Life Membership certificate and an attractive Life Membership card will be sent to you. You will also have an immeasurable amount of satisfaction in knowing that you have contributed to the growth of the National Endowment Fund, enabling students to complete their education and chapters to obtain fraternity houses.

■ Select the plan of enrollment which is most convenient to you and pick out your "knothole" through which you can view the construction of the National Endowment Fund. You may send your check for $50, which is the total cost; or you may elect to send $5 a month for ten months; or you may send $10 a month for five months. Applications and remittances should be mailed to The Central Office of Delta Sigma Pi in Chicago.
