The
Editor's Foreword

THE NOVEMBER ISSUE of THE DELTASIG was well received throughout the fraternity and many members thought it was one of the finest issues ever published. We endeavored to present a picture of the Thirteenth Grand Chapter Congress that would prove of interest to all readers, and we have so much material that could have been presented that the size of this issue could have been doubled easily had budget limitations not necessitated otherwise. We want to thank all of the members for the many congratulatory letters sent us. As this issue is one that both chapters and members can make repeated use of in the years to come we strongly urge that the November DELTASIG be retained among your permanent possessions.

SPACE LIMITATIONS necessitated the holding over until this issue of Brother Benson's fine address, "Economics—Old and New," which he delivered at the Opening Banquet at the Philadelphia Congress. An address by Brother Fowler, "Some Problems of the Public Utility Industry," which was presented at the Thursday sessions of the Congress will be featured in our March issue which will also contain several special articles pertaining to the activities of Deltasigs in various fields of endeavor throughout the country.

WE URGE every member to read the report of Grand President Eugene D. Milener, submitted at the Thirteenth Grand Chapter Congress and which was published in this issue in its entirety. This is about as fine a picture as you can secure of the present excellent condition of the fraternity and some of our future plans, in such condensed form and we trust that every member will familiarize himself with the fraternity development in recent years by giving this report a careful study.

INCREASING NUMBERS of Delta Sigma Pi members from all over the country are paying a fraternal visit to the Central Office whenever their travels bring them to Chicago. You too are fraternally invited to visit our headquarters whenever possible. With over 13,000 members now the Central Office has become a busy place indeed, but with the continued interest of our membership the scope and effectiveness of the many services rendered should be increased with each succeeding year.—H. John L. McKewen, Chi Chapter
Twelfth Grand President of Delta Sigma Pi

BROTHER JOHN L. McKEWEN was born in Baltimore, Md., on January 1, 1899. He was initiated into Chi chapter on April 14, 1923, four months after the chapter was installed at the University of Maryland. He served as Head Master of his chapter in 1924 and 1925 and graduated from the University of Maryland in 1925. He immediately affiliated with the Baltimore Alumni Club of Delta Sigma Pi and served as its President from 1926 to 1932. He became interested in national fraternity affairs and was Director of the Eastern Province of the fraternity for a number of years. He was elected to the Grand Council in September 1933 and was elected as the Twelfth Grand President of the fraternity in September 1939.

Brother McKewen is a Certified Public Accountant in the city of Baltimore and a member of the accounting firm of Irving & McKewen there. He is past President of the Baltimore chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants and is President for the ensuing year of the Maryland Association of Certified Public Accountants. He is also a member of the American Institute of Accountants and is a lecturer in accounting at Johns Hopkins University where our Chi Chapter is now located.

Both Brother and Mrs. McKewen are well known throughout Delta Sigma Pi circles. Their Baltimore home is the favorite and frequent meeting place of many Delta Sigma Pi groups. Brother McKewen will give us an administration that will be in keeping with the highest and best traditions of the fraternity.

Economics—Old and New

By Philip A. Benson, Alpha Chapter

President, Dime Savings Bank, Brooklyn, New York
Also President, American Bankers Association

I AM VERY HAPPY to be your guest this evening and to speak to you who are assembled in this Congress as the representatives of the many chapters of a great fraternity. I realize I am speaking to men who are educated in the principles of commerce, accounting and finance. Many of you are leaders in the field of business and you are all men who are accustomed to solving problems; who do not take things for granted but are always seekers after truth.

Although business has had difficulties for some time, there is still room in it for men who meet its requirements. Broadly speaking these are character, ability, energy and knowledge. Nothing that has occurred in the world that I know of has changed the necessity for these basic qualities upon which success is built. But the world in which we live and the thinking of the world has changed profoundly in the last quarter century. Twenty-five years ago we believed that true freedom as represented by our American system was spreading and that autocracy was going out of style. We even fought a war for the purpose, as was then expressed, of "making the world safe for democracy."

Unfortunately there is less freedom in the world today than there was twenty-five years ago. In many countries the democratic processes have been set aside and the rights of the individual, possessing a God-given human soul, have been subordinated. The state is becoming all powerful and the individual exists for the state and to serve it instead of the state existing for him. The great principles of democracy are being questioned not only abroad but in our own country and there are those who advocate that some form of collectivism take its place. Some of these advocates would not go as far as communism, but they favor the group rather than the individual and they would have the state do for us what we have believed we should do for ourselves. These people must think that the state has magic powers—that it can readily supply an abundance of good things for everyone, and that it possesses superior wisdom on all subjects!

A new system of political economy is being devised. I want to consider it with you and see whether you like the new better than the old.

Of course I know that some things, including ideas and opinions, must of necessity change. Scientific discovery and achievement have broadened our knowledge of the world in which we live; have utilized powers hitherto unknown, and have furnished us with the comforts and conveniences of modern life. Electric light, the radio, the automobile and the airplane are all new—a few years ago they were unknown. Science will go on making new discoveries, for great minds are constantly undertaking research in many fields.

No new discoveries of science, however, have changed those moral laws that are as old as the human race and which we believe are God-given—truth, justice, honor, reverence, fair and honest dealing with our fellows, love, devotion, unselfishness—all these are of the realm of the spirit. They are unchanged and unchangeable throughout the ages. Holy writ tells us that "the things that are seen are temporal, the things that are unseen are eternal." Wise indeed are those who are able to discern true values!

But our subject is economics—old and new. What are those economic laws that should be classed as old and what as new? Must we reject the old and replace them with the new? These are vital questions for economics profoundly affects our daily life and, what is more, politics and economics are closely interwoven. Someone has said that most of our modern ills are due to wrong economic thinking. It is desirable that we have intelligent thinking on economics, that we be prepared to fight for the principles we believe are true and make every effort to disseminate these principles among others. All of you, with your background of education, should be leaders and exponents of the truth.

Mr. H. W. Prentis, Jr., in an address before the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States last May, stated that our concept of personal freedom is supported by a tripod—one leg of the tripod is representative democracy, the second is private, free enterprise, and the third is civil and particularly religious liberty. Mr. Prentis goes on to state that history, both ancient and modern, proves beyond a doubt that if any one of these three legs of the tripod be undermined, the entire structure of personal freedom falls.

I like particularly Mr. Prentis' reference, in his address, to the writings of John Locke who, he says, summarized with exceptional clarity the principles upon which our government was founded. The fathers of this republic were guided by Locke's philosophy of government which can be put down as three simple theses—first, that all powers of government are derived from the consent of the governed; second, that the function of government is to make possible the greatest degree of individual responsibility and initiative, and third that the State may properly function only for the protection of life, property, peace and freedom.

In these United States, under the system described by Mr. Prentis and John Locke, there has been the greatest amount of freedom for the individual that has been known in any country in the world's history. In this country, likewise, and under this system, there has been provided the highest standards of living that any people have ever enjoyed. Under this system, in the course of a few centuries a vast continent has been conquered, occupied and developed. Here we have the most widespread distribution of wealth found in any nation on the face of the earth.

Let me remind you of some specific examples of the distribution of our wealth. We will, of course, dismiss the thought that money, i.e., currency, is wealth. Wealth consists of things—goods which we use and enjoy and some of which enable us to produce more goods. Over 17 million people in this country own their own homes, about 30 million own their own automobiles, and 3½ million own their own farms. The assets of our life insurance companies of over 26 billion dollars belongs ultimately to over 60 million people, and the savings accounts in our banks of over 24 billion dollars belong to over 40 million people.

This economic system of ours—the old economics—has produced fruit that has meant happiness to millions of people. No one can claim that it is perfect. I do claim that it has worked well and that the results on the whole have been satisfactory. There are people, however, who say that the profit system, which is another way of saying our free enterprise system, or capitalism, has failed and must be discarded and something new adopted in its place. They may have a "blueprint" of something they would like to create, but I am sure they cannot point to any place where their plans have been put into effect and proved satisfactory or given as happy results as have obtained here. Is there any place in the world today where you would rather live than America, or any political and economic system that prevails elsewhere that you would prefer here? I know your answer! I know that like all true Americans you have a passion for liberty and would never tolerate dictatorship whether called Socialism, Communism or Fascism.

There are really only two systems—democracy and totalitarianism. One is illustrated by the United States, Great Britain, France and the Scandinavian countries. The other by Germany, Italy, Russia and Japan. As we consider these two distinct systems we should apply to them the test suggested by the saying "by their fruits ye shall know them."

In the democracies we see the preservation of the rights of the individual; justice being administered under wise and humane laws, and a striving to attain the ideals taught by our religion. Under the other system we see individual rights submerged and the State supreme—the State setting an example of greed, hypocrisy and ruthlessness—even murder. How is it possible to take any of the tenets of this "other system" and graft them on our own? Is there not a danger of the poison spreading and is it not safer to reject these doctrines in toto?

The major idea of the new economics is "planned" economy. Under this scheme some few with super-human intelligence are going to tell farmers what crops and what livestock they may raise, and how much. They will dictate the quantities of raw materials that may be produced, and will prescribe just what things may be manufactured, and when and how. These great minds will decide upon the hours of work, the rate of pay, the amount of profit that will be permitted. They will regulate all forms of transportation—its methods and its compensation. Markets are to be conducted as they say they shall be.

Planned economy is regimentation. It is regulation and control of almost every human activity. It means you must first obtain permission to do things that under our democratic form of government you consider your right. It would result in the destruction of initiative, make private enterprise impossible, and the individual the servant of the State—reversing our present concept of the State existing to serve the individual. This lovely flower, or shall I say weed, is blooming in Moscow now. We do not want to see it transplanted to our soil.

The only antidote that will prevent the spread of collectivistic ideas is an increased appreciation of what we have as our American heritage; an increasing appreciation of the blessings of liberty that we know and enjoy, and a revival of patriotism and faith.

Another idea of the new economics is that you can obtain something for nothing. This idea throws to the wind all the lessons of history and ignores logic. A grand time is being had with this idea in California just now. Because an administration was elected by favoring a scheme of $30 a week for every one over a certain age, that plan will be submitted to a popular vote in November. If voted, it not only won't work but will go a long way toward wrecking the finances of the State. It is based on the utterly false assumption that something can be obtained for nothing. Although a similar idea has failed in the Province of Alberta, Canada and has well nigh wrecked decent government there, its advocates still preach it with fanatical zeal.

Let us look this idea squarely in the face. Is it not evident that all the goods and commodities that we use in our daily life—food, clothing, housing, etc.—are produced through the labor of others; that all goods and commodities are the result of materials being combined with labor, implemented by the use of tools and machinery? Hundreds of people are working for each one of us daily bringing to us the things we need to sustain life. We use something we call money with which to pay these people. Money is merely a medium of exchange—something that measures the share that each worker gets of the goods that have been produced. Now if a large group of people is selected to receive some of these goods without paying for them, or working for them, this special group will have a certain portion of the circulating medium handed to them for nothing, thus giving them power to acquire goods. It means simply that such a group will be living on the toil of others. While recognizing that there must always be some—the aged and the helpless—who must be supported by Society—it is quite another thing to pick a favored class and hand the members of this class everything freely and at the same time hug the delusion that this sort of practice is going to increase prosperity.

What I have said about this California scheme is true also of the Townsend Plan, and other schemes for extravagant pensions. There may be “something for nothing” to the recipients, but they get it because the rest of Society pays for it.

Another idea that finds favor in certain quarters is that we lack prosperity because there is something wrong with our monetary system. “We have not got a large enough amount of currency,” say these people, “so we will print a lot of additional paper money.” This delusion is another phase of the “something for nothing” idea. Of course the correct word to describe this is “inflation,” and inflation has a long, dark history. The idea is not new at all. It is old and has caused much suffering wherever it has been put into effect.

PHILIP A. BENSON
Alpha Chapter

Wealth consists of goods, commodities, plant, equipment, etc. and we must produce more if we are to divide more and if prosperity is to be increased. Granted that there is an ever present problem involved in a fair distribution of the products of industry, surely inflation of the currency is not the answer.

Our currency has been increased in this country through the effect of the Silver Purchase Act, which has been in force for several years. Under this Act the government has bought vast quantities of American silver and has also imported vast quantities of silver from foreign countries. The effect of this has been an increased amount of silver certificates in circulation, a subsidy paid to a few states that produce silver, dislocation of China's monetary system, and perhaps some benefit to foreigners who have sold us silver. It has accomplished no good whatever for American agriculture or industry, nor has the additional paper money increased prosperity in the slightest degree.

A well-known government official recently advocated the passage of a bill that would insure loans made to small business concerns. Such a bill was introduced in Congress but did not pass. The same public official who advocated this, favored also "a bill providing for capital credit banks whose business it should be to provide capital for those enterprises which need it when they need it."

Both bills are part of the new economics which believes that the creation of wealth and the furnishing of capital to industry is a function of government. These ideas are extremely dangerous. In the first place they assume that banks have failed in their duty and that Society has not provided sufficient capital through private channels. This, of course, is not true. The business of banks is to make loans, and the income from such loans provides the nourishment on which they live.

A survey by the American Bankers Association proves conclusively that banks are more alert than ever to make every good loan obtainable; that they are actively seeking such loans, and that every meritorious application for a loan is accepted.

It is true that banks will not make loans without the expectation of repayment. They could not last long if they gave away their depositors' money. Has the government the right to give away its taxpayers' money? Should the government make or insure unsound loans? It seems reasonable to conclude that the effects of passing such a bill would be either that few, if any, additional loans would be made because private sources are providing funds for all that are needed, or that a number of unsound loans would be made which would be expensive for the country. The fact that there would be a loss, however, is not the worst feature of this scheme, and the proposed companion one of supplying capital. If the government is to make loans and supply capital, the recipients would be subject to political control and political influences. Furthermore, the effect would be the control by government of the production of goods. The government could dictate methods, markets, standards, prices, and other business policies, thus coming close to the socialization of industry.

The official to whom I have referred as favoring these bills made the following statement:

"If, therefore, wealth is to be created by creation of government debt, the scope of government enterprise must be largely increased. Briefly, the government will have to enter into the direct financing of activities now supposed to be private; and a continuance of that direct financing must be inevitably that the government ultimately will control and own those activities. Put differently, if the government undertakes to create wealth by using its own credit at the rate of four billion or so a year, and if its work is well done, the government will be acquiring direct productive mechanisms at the rate of four billions' worth a year, or thereabouts. Over a period of years, the government will gradually come to own most of the productive plants of the United States."

I need not say to you that the plan described is not the one under which this country has been built up, nor the way America has grown. Our history indicates that the great oaks of the business world have grown from the acorns of small private enterprise, carefully nurtured by hard work, industry and thrift. You must place this idea of the new economics against the old and decide which shall prevail.

Quite recently there was held at Columbia University a Congress on Education for Democracy. During a three day period there were numerous meetings and conferences in which were discussed every phase of this important subject. Those who participated were not only members of the teaching profession, but representatives of other professions and of business. I have not seen the report of the Congress yet, but I know that some of us who participated in it did so with the thought that it is extremely important that there be a greater spirit of co-operation among all who are interested in this subject to the end that the knowledge of economic truth be more widely diffused. Radicalism is ever busy. Untruthful statements are frequently made and false ideas readily spread. Because we believe in the principles upon which our country was founded, because we know that no new way of creating wealth has yet been discovered, because we are convinced that some of the systems that would be forced upon us lead only to slavery, because we want to see our American system passed on unchanged to our children and our children's children, we must know the dangers that threaten us and exert every effort to combat falsehood and error.

We must take a greater personal interest in the affairs of our government. We should take a special interest in the men who are proposed for office, including those who will be members of our State Legislatures and of Congress. These representatives are responsive to the will of the people at home. I suggest that you become personally acquainted with your Congressman, if possible, and that you use every opportunity to let him know what you think about bills upon which he may have to vote. Participation by intelligent people in legislation and in the affairs of government will certainly help to defeat the ideas that are radical and dangerous.

I believe that fraternity membership and participation in fraternity affairs is good training for leadership in business. If you actively participate in formulating policies of your local chapter and participate in its government, you will be making use of a valuable opportunity. Success in business does not come only from what you learn in the classroom. The classroom but lays a foundation for the knowledge that can come only from business experience and practice. There are traits of character and of personality that inspire confidence in other men and that are essential to success. As I would urge you to take an active and intelligent interest in the af-

The Grand Council

THE PERSONNEL of the new Grand Council of Delta Sigma Pi comprises some of the most active and experienced alumni workers in the entire fraternity. Eight of the nine members have served on the Grand Council before; four are past Grand Presidents of the fraternity. Eight chapters are represented among its nine members and the fraternity can rest assured that it will have an active, working Grand Council.

A write-up of Grand President John L. McKewen appears on the second page of this issue and the other members of the Grand Council are presented herewith.

EUGENE D. MILENER

Gene is a charter member of our Chi Chapter which was originally installed at the University of Maryland and later transferred to Johns Hopkins University when they absorbed the School of Business Administration of the University of Maryland. Gene has served as vice-president of the Baltimore Alumni Club of Delta Sigma Pi and at the present time he is a member of the New York Alumni Club in which city he has resided for more than 10 years. He has served on several important national committees of the fraternity, has been a member of the Committee on Finance since 1928, a member of the Grand Council since 1930, and was Grand President of the fraternity from 1936 to 1939.

Brother Milener is a native of the state of Virginia, a graduate of the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and also a graduate of the School of Business Administration of the University of Maryland, class of 1925. He also studied engineering at the Johns Hopkins University. Practically all of his entire business career has been in the field of public utilities. At the present time he is director of Industrial and Commercial Research, and also secretary of the Industrial Gas Section of the American Gas Association in New York City. In a professional engineering and public utility management capacity, Brother Milener has lectured extensively before business organizations and technical bodies, and at universities throughout the country, and regularly directs co-operative research in several leading institutions. Probably his greatest technical contribution has been the organization and development of what is now internationally known as the "Degree Day" method of heating calculations. In other business and engineering fields, such as combustion, metallurgy, and ceramics, Brother Milener's research and development work has been extensive.

Gene just completed three years as Grand President of the fraternity and in view of his successful administration it is only fitting that we should have the benefit of his experience on the Grand Council for a few years more.

RUDOLPH C. SCHMIDT

Rudie Schmidt has been an active worker in the fraternity since 1921. He was one of the organizers of, and a charter member of our Theta Chapter at the University of Detroit, and served as its first head master. He organized the Detroit Alumni Club of Delta Sigma Pi, and was elected its first president. He was elected to the Grand Council of the fraternity in 1922, re-elected in 1924 and 1926, elected Grand President in 1928, and in 1930 and 1936 again elected to the Grand Council. He has served continuously on the Grand Council for a longer period of time than any other member except Brother Wright. For many years he has also served as chairman of our important Committee on Finance.

Rudie is assistant secretary and member of the board of directors of the large Burton Abstract and Title Company of Detroit, Michigan. He resides in Grosse Pointe, Michigan, a suburb of Detroit. He has attended eight Congresses.

HERBERT W. WEHE

Herb was initiated as a charter member of our Lambda Chapter at the University of Pittsburgh and has served as scribe, junior warden, and head master of this chapter. He has also been active in the affairs of the Pittsburgh Alumni Club and has served as a Province Officer of the Eastern Province of the fraternity. He attended his first Grand Chapter Congress in New York in 1922 while on his honeymoon, and he has attended every meeting of the Grand Chapter since that date except 1936, a total of seven Congresses. He has served on the Grand Council continuously since 1928.

His business experience comprises eight years with a public accounting firm in Pittsburgh, two years as secretary and treasurer of the American Monde Nickel Company, five years as assistant secretary and treasurer of the American Monde Nickel Company, five years as assistant secretary and treasurer of the Wood Preserving Corporation and subsidiaries, and several years ago he acquired an interest in and became vice-president and general manager of the Overly Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of architectural sheet metal, at Greensburg, Pennsylvania, where he resides with his family.

EDWIN L. SCHUJAHN

Brother Schujahn has been active in fraternity affairs ever since his initiation as a charter member of our Wisconsin chapter in February 1923. Being closely associated in his undergraduate days with Herm Walther, who later became Grand President of the fraternity, Ed became interested in our national affairs as early as 1924, when he served as a Province Officer at Minneapolis, and also was chairman of our National Committee on Extension for a number of years. He was elected to our Grand Council in the fall of 1926, re-elected in 1928, and was elected Grand President in 1930, and re-elected in 1933, and again elected to the Grand Council in 1936. He is the second member of the fraternity to have served two terms as Grand President, the other member being Grand Secretary-Treasurer H. G. Wright.

The full force of the economic depression descended upon his first term of office as Grand President, and continued during his second term. That the fraternity is in such splendid condition today testifies to the skill and business acumen he used in directing our national activities during these trying years. His pleasing personality, his democratic spirit, and his keen concept of all of our fraternity activities, both national and local, have made him an invaluable member of our Grand Council. Ed is one of the most popular and respected members in the entire fraternity. He is a member of the Committee on Finance, and has attended six Congresses.

He has been connected with the Washburn Crosby Company ever since graduation from college, and is now Vice-President and Eastern sales manager with headquarters in Buffalo, New York, where he resides.

FRANK C. BRANDES

Brother Brandes was initiated into Kappa Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi in April 1931, and he has been one of the most active workers and leaders of Delta Sigma Pi in the South. His undergraduate activities included serving his chapter as Deltasig correspondent in the spring of 1931, as head master of his chapter in January 1932 to fill out the last four months of a term of a head master who found it necessary to leave college, and he was elected in May 1932 as head master for the full term following. The first year of his term of office Kappa Chapter finished in fourth place in the fraternity Chapter Efficiency Contest, and during his full term as head master it finished in first place. Brother Brandes was awarded a Life Membership by the Grand Council of the fraternity in recognition of his distinctive service to his chapter and the fraternity. He also won the Delta Sigma Pi Scholarship Key at graduation.

On becoming an alumnus he was appointed Deputy Director of the Southern Province of Delta Sigma Pi and has served continuously in that position. He has also served as president of the Atlanta Alumni Club. He attended the Eleventh Grand Chapter Congress held in Chicago in 1933, and was chairman of the committee in charge of the presentation of the excellent program of papers at that meeting. He was a member of the General Committee in charge of the Twelfth Grand Chapter Congress at Atlanta in 1936 and was again placed in charge of the planning and organization of the papers presented there. He was elected to the Grand Council in 1936. He is associated with the Retail Credit Company, in Atlanta, Georgia, where he resides with his family.

FRED W. FLOYD

Fred Floyd was initiated into Tau Delta Kappa fraternity at the University of Pennsylvania in 1922. This fraternity subsequently became Beta Nu Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi. While an undergraduate Fred served as chairman of the Membership Committee and was elected as head master in 1926. Subsequent to the installation of Tau Delta Kappa as Beta Nu Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi in 1932 Fred was appointed as province officer in Philadelphia in 1936 in which position he has served until this fall. He has had broad experience in public relations activities and sales campaigns. He was advertising manager for the Provident Life Insurance Company for three years and is now general agent in Philadelphia for the Columbian National Life Insurance Company. He holds a Chartered Life Underwriter's degree and is active in C.L.U. circles in Philadelphia.

About a year ago he was appointed General Chairman of the Committee in Charge of the Thirteenth Grand Chapter Congress and it was primarily due to his fine leadership and organizing ability that the Thirteenth Grand Chapter Congress proved so successful. Unfortunately Fred became seriously ill three days before the Congress convened and he has been confined to bed since that time. However, his committee was so well organized that it carried on perfectly during his forced absence which was indeed a tribute to his organizing ability. It was a major disappointment in Fred's life that he was unable to attend the Philadelphia Congress but he is steadily recovering from his serious illness and all members of the fraternity hope and pray that it won't be long until he is his same active self again. He resides in Gloucester City, New Jersey, a suburb of Philadelphia, with his family.

KENNETH B. WHITE

Ken received his B.B.A. degree cum laude from Boston University in 1926 where he was a member of our Gamma Chapter. He served as historian of the chapter and was a member of the Boston Alumni Club for several years before moving to Texas in 1929. He was elected to membership in Beta Gamma Sigma. He served Delta Sigma Pi as Director of our Southwestern Province for a number of years and served on the installation team at the installation of both our Baylor and Texas chapters, and has been in charge of several province meetings since then in the Southwest. He organized the Houston Alumni Club of Delta Sigma Pi in 1933 and the Dallas Alumni Club this past summer.

He is now a senior member of the staff of the Dallas, Texas, office of Haskins & Sells, Certified Public Accountants, with which firm he has been connected for many years. He has also served as assistant state auditor of the state of Texas for two years and made many surveys and investigations of the various commissions and departments of that state. Ken was first elected to the Grand Council in 1933 and re-elected in 1939. Brother White resides with his family in Dallas, Texas.

H. G. WRIGHT, Grand Secretary-Treasurer

From the viewpoint of continuous service on the Grand Council of Delta Sigma Pi, Gig has established a record unequalled by any other member of the fraternity, for he has served continuously since February 1920 on the Grand Council. First he served two terms as Grand President, and since 1924 has been Grand Secretary-Treasurer. A charter member of Beta Chapter at Northwestern University, he served his chapter as treasurer and head master, and has attended every meeting of the Grand Chapter since 1917, a total of 10 meetings. He has also served as president of the Chicago Alumni Club of the fraternity. He was chairman of the committee which negotiated the purchase many years ago of the very fine chapter house occupied by Beta Chapter, and has been secretary-treasurer of the House Corporation of Beta Chapter almost from its very inception. He served as toastmaster of the Silver Anniversary Banquet of Beta Chapter, and was also the author of the history of Beta Chapter released at that time. He was initiated as a charter member of Beta Chapter on February 7, 1914.

He has represented Delta Sigma Pi at the Professional Interfraternity Conference meetings from the very beginning of that organization and has served as secretary-treasurer of the Conference for the past six years.

Brother Wright graduated from Northwestern University in 1919. He organized and served as president of the H. G. Wright Coal Company, wholesale coal, until 1926 since which date he has devoted his entire time as Grand Secretary-Treasurer of the fraternity. Brother Wright resides with his family in the Chicago suburb of La Grange.

fairs of government in order that our American heritage may be preserved, so I would urge you to actively participate in your fraternity affairs and find in them an opportunity for acquiring those traits of character to which I have referred. I have always been proud of my fraternity membership. Two of my sons have been active fraternity men in the colleges they have attended and they assure me it has meant much to them.

Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, Chancellor of New York University in a nation-wide broadcast sponsored by the National Interfraternity Conference, made some significant statements regarding college fraternities. Dr. Chase remarked that it would be a very unfortunate circumstance if an agency as potentially valuable as the fraternity should be a social club and nothing more. He added that if the national fraternity idea is to survive, it has to offer more than that.

Let me quote the closing paragraph of Dr. Chase's address:

"One of the saddest things in the world is an institution or organization that just sits still and lets life go by it until by and by it becomes just an empty form. This thing has happened again and again in the history of human affairs. I personally have too much sympathy with the fraternities to want to see them listed a generation from now among such types of institutions. They must, if they are to grow, if they are to be significant experiences in the lives of young people, study and realize the problems of the young people of today. They must know what they are thinking about, they must realize that youth is living in a changed world and that the fraternity must strive to help it to live in that world. That there are increasing signs of such recognition is to me a happy augury of the future of the fraternity itself."

You will see the connection between what I have had to say about our economic system and what has been said about fraternities. We believe in our American system of free enterprise, of representative democracy, of civil and religious liberty. We want this system to survive, therefore we must take an active interest in the affairs of government and oppose those things that threaten to destroy that which we hold so dear. We believe also in the fraternity of which we are members, and in the underlying principles of fraternity life. In order that these principles may continue, that they may be preserved, and that the fraternity may continue to serve succeeding generations of college men, we must strive to maintain high ideals and use every effort to see that the fraternity makes a worthy contribution to the life of our colleges.

I began by referring to the difficulties which have confronted business. Let me finish by saying that Banking, the official organ of the American Bankers Association, in its current issue reports that "business is beginning to see daylight and solid ground, although still wary." "Improvement has been fairly general but statistically trade still falls short of levels reached two years ago." Mr. Kuhns, the editor, remarks that there is quite a noticeable spirit of hopefulness on all sides and among the factors responsible for this, he says is "the perfectly obvious change for the better that has come over public opinion regarding business. This is reflected in polls of all kinds, in conversation, in editorial pages, and most important, in the actions of political bodies from Washington to the smallest local administration."

We have survived the shocks of the repeated threats of war for some time. If war is averted, and we hope and pray it will be, true prosperity, due to restoration of normal business conditions will be with us again.

This address was delivered at the Opening Banquet of the Thirteenth Grand Chapter Congress of Delta Sigma Pi in Philadelphia, September 5, 1939.

Report of the Grand President

Presented by Grand President Eugene D. Milener of New York City at the Opening Business Session of the Thirteenth Grand Chapter Congress

BROTHER MEMBERS OF THE GRAND COUNCIL;
BROTHER DELEGATES TO THE THIRTEENTH GRAND
CHAPTER CONGRESS; BROTHERS IN DELTA SIGMA PI:

WHILE THIS is the first general Business Session of the Thirteenth Grand Chapter Congress, this is the fourth day that activities in connection with the Congress have been under way. All of you were, I hope, present at the very enjoyable Opening Banquet last evening and heard two of our most prominent alumni speak. I also hope you were present at the initiation and at the Alumni Placing Service Conference.

We have a busy schedule until we finally adjourn and leave for our homes. I believe that the delegates will have a better understanding of what transpires and be in a better position to participate in the deliberations and decisions of the Congress if a quick review of the fraternity's affairs since the last Congress are given. This review I shall give in this address, which the By-Laws call the Report of the Grand President. In presenting this report I shall also make certain recommendations and suggestions which I hope will help you in your deliberations during the balance of the Congress.

Three years ago you selected me to be your Grand President. The fraternity at that time was well on its way out of the worst days of the depression and I found that by and large the scars left by that unfortunate period had been cleared away or were in the process of being cleared away. I found that basically the structure of the organization had not been seriously affected, nor our usefulness impaired, and that we enjoyed the priceless gifts of the loyalty of our members and the confidence of the colleges and universities with which we are affiliated.

Plainly therefore, the problems to be faced and the work to be done should be directed toward analyzing and strengthening our internal organization and its relation to our members. That has been the chief object of this administration. I have, during my term, enjoyed the support of the Grand Council and the active assistance of the Central Office, the Province Officers and the chapters and alumni clubs.

Before summarizing the results of following such a policy, and making recommendations for consideration by the fraternity during this Congress, and after the Congress adjourns, I shall review the chief activities. Portions of this review will be quite brief because you will get much first hand information on many of our activities and problems from the Congress discussions, the reports of national committees, and the report of the Grand Secretary-Treasurer, which will all go into many details that I of course will not cover.

In order to have a successful, enjoyable Grand Chapter Congress it is necessary that many plans be made and carried out beforehand. That calls for capable and hard work. We are indeed fortunate in having here in Philadelphia, a Grand Chapter Congress Committee that has been very decidedly on the job for more than a year. This committee, with the assistance and guidance of the Central Office, has left no stone unturned in order that all the rest of us might get the most out of our week's stay here.

The appreciation of us all go to this committee and especially to Brother Fred W. Floyd, Beta Nu, Chairman, to Brother Gerry White, Omega, Brother H. Palmer Lippincott and Brother William C. Rohrer, Beta Nu, Vice-Chairmen. The several sub-committees have done unusual jobs, including a pre-Congress publicity act presented before many eastern chapters and alumni clubs by a troupe of traveling human "trained seals" headed by Brother Lippincott. Congress publicity has reached an all-time peak under the direction of Brother John R. Hanby, chairman of that sub-committee. Other members of the committee, including Brother Elroy E. Simons, in charge of special events, have done very effective work, including securing a representative of Delta Sigma Pi as one of the judges of the famed Atlantic City Beauty Pageant on Saturday of this week.

This year, for the first time I believe, we will have business on a number of interesting subjects at the regular business sessions. This feature will be directed by Brother Howard B. Johnson of Kappa Chapter.

I hope that you will all go to New York on Friday and see the perfectly marvelous World's Fair and participate in the enjoyable features of Delta Sigma Pi Day.

I also hope that before this Congress is over, every member in attendance will have made it his business to meet each member of the Council and to become closely acquainted with them. I have asked for and depended upon the advice and assistance of the members of the Council. This has been freely given and has been most helpful to me at all times.

The Council met immediately after the Twelfth Congress; it met once in between times and met again immediately before this Congress. That schedule, it might be said, is too sparse to enable the Council itself to carry out all the multitude of duties that are specifically assigned to it by the Constitution and By-Laws. In spite of this, and even though there is wide geographical distribution of membership on the Council, the Council functions because it is composed largely of experienced men who are first of all loyal to the fraternity and who work to effectively carry on its business.

On the other hand, I have given considerable study to the needs of the situation in the future, and I have recommended to the Grand Council that that body study further, among others, four things, viz.:

- (1) The advisability of eventually nominating members of the Council from geographical districts, and enlarging the membership of the Council.
- (2) The advisability of transferring to the Grand President, or perhaps to an Executive Committee, some of the multitude of detailed duties and responsibilities which the Constitution assigns specifically to the Grand Council and which, because of the widespread nature of that body, it cannot carry out and follow through itself.

- (3) The advisability of creating the office of Vice-President of the fraternity.
- (4) Creating a trusteeship for the National Endowment Fund.

None of these matters should be acted upon hastily or until they have been carefully studied, but it is my hope that the new Grand Council will institute such studies.

EMERGENCY AMENDMENT

At the time of the Eleventh Grand Chapter Congress in 1933 general conditions were so uncertain that the Congress passed an emergency amendment to the Constitution authorizing the Council, by its own vote, to make such amendments to that document as they might deem advisable for the best interests of the fraternity. That power was extended until 1939 by the Twelfth Congress. The responsibility has been carefully and judiciously exercised, and only in as few instances as possible; the chief instances being in connection with the percentage of revenue from undergraduate initiation fees to be placed in the National Endowment Fund and in establishing a 25 per cent discount for the prompt payment of undergraduate dues. The income of the fraternity dropped about 50 per cent during the depression, from its high year, and it was therefore necessary that some adjustments be made. An emergency amendment placed all of the income from initiation fees in the General Fund. The Committee on Finance then made a thorough study of the National Endowment Fund from the time of its creation, and upon the recommendation of that committee the Grand Council approved an amendment which provides for 10 per cent of all undergraduate initiation fees to be placed in the National Endowment Fund from the time the fund was established back in 1930. In addition all of the receipts from the sale of Life Memberships have always been placed in the National Endowment Fund. I commend the Grand Council on this action and believe that as times goes on and the fund grows, its wisdom in this respect will be fully evidenced.

The National Endowment Fund was started at the beginning of the depression and now contains over $20,000, truly a splendid showing. It will grow faster in the future as a result of this forward looking amendment, and I hope that the day is not far off when THE DELTASIG will be fully endowed, and that to be followed by other national activities to be endowed by means of this fund. When that day arrives a larger part of current income can be used for augmenting field work, etc.

A couple of other minor amendments, entirely of a nature to adjust routine operations, have been passed. Thus the emergencies created by the depression have been successfully, and I believe, wisely met. This emergency amendment expires at this Congress, and upon my recommendation the Grand Council has decided not to ask for a continuance of this special authority.

ALUMNI AND ALUMNI CLUBS

Delta Sigma Pi is fortunate in having a large and growing body of alumni that believe that the fraternity means much to them and who are loyal to the fraternity. Some of our older members are enjoying the thrill of seeing their sons being initiated.

Our alumni clubs have held their own during the last three years and there are now 24 clubs operating throughout the United States. The fraternity, in all of its divisions rendered, in the aggregate, many services to its thousands of members. Yet there are in my opinion, entirely too few alumni paying the nominal yearly dues, even though the number this past year is the greatest of any year. I recommend that this Congress and the Council give close study to this situation in order to determine the reasons, and then as far as possible take steps to further improve the situation. Our alumni are increasing at the rate of 600 or 700 a year and the number of dues-paying alumni should be increasing in proportion.

The number of Life Members is increasing at a satisfactory rate largely through the efforts of Brother John L. McKewen of the Grand Council. I believe the number of Life Members will continue to steadily increase, as I have yet to hear of a Life Member who has not been glad he became one.

There will be much material presented and many discussions concerning alumni during the Congress, which have been developed largely through the activities of the Committee on Alumni Activities of which Brother J. Hugh Taylor of Chi Chapter is chairman, and I hope the delegates will absorb as much of this as possible.

It is as alumni that we spend most of our period of membership in Delta Sigma Pi and it is the alumni that furnish the personnel to keep the wheels of the national organization going. Our alumni are composed of two broad groups—first, the regularly organized and duly functioning alumni clubs in certain cities, and secondly, those members who are not affiliated with an alumni club.

I consider it fortunate indeed for alumni, who live in cities, to be situated in one where there is a Delta Sigma Pi alumni club. The extent to which these clubs prosper is in proportion to the returns they bring to their members. These returns are social, professional and sentimental. A properly prepared program for the year must be rounded out so as to appeal to both the younger and older members at as many different points as possible. If this is done, and execution is in the hands of skilled officers and committees, the alumni clubs will appeal to members for years to come, in varying degrees of course. Some of our alumni clubs have for long periods of time made life more worth while because they have made those fundamental appeals, and they will continue to do so. On the other hand some of the clubs have had entirely too many ups and downs.

The appeal to alumni who are not connected with alumni clubs must be built up around as many of the basic appeals as is possible.

One thing is certain beyond doubt, and that is the fraternity must continue to make sufficient appeal to a sufficient number of its growing alumni body, or else it will eventually exist too much on paper and not enough in the hearts and activities of its graduate members. These problems will be discussed in many details during the Congress.

CHAPTERS

Undergraduate chapters are called active chapters. They are in this respect well named as they constitute the most active branch of the fraternity. We now have 45 active chapters. The ramifications of the activities of these young men throughout the college year are entirely too vast and of too great a variety for me to chronicle here. They are in fact almost too great for one to fully comprehend. I give full credit to the officers of our chapters who lead their groups through this maze of activities. This will all be discussed in great detail this week and I am sure the delegates will go home with new ideas, new inspiration and new determination.

Initiates during the past three years have been 2086, an increase of 478 over the previous period. This is a healthy condition and represents an increase during the three years of about 15 per cent in the total membership of the fraternity, which now numbers 12,735.

One new chapter has been installed since the last Grand Chapter Congress. This was Beta Omicron Chapter at the University of Newark, which I have mentioned elsewhere.

I urge every chapter to develop an outstanding newsletter. Some chapters have done so and I for one never tire of reading them. Make this one of the first orders of business in your chapter.

I have been greatly pleased with the number of inter-chapter visitations and other similar events in recent years. I urge the Province Officers and chapter officers to arrange more such beneficial joint affairs.

CHAPTER EFFICIENCY CONTEST

The Chapter Efficiency Contest continues to create great interest and this year closed with the remarkable record of seven chapters tied for first place, each with a perfect score. This Contest is a great help to chapter officers and others. It should not, however, be considered as covering every phase of chapter life. There are many intangibles such as friendships and character development that never can be rated by mathematical points. I congratulate the seven winning chapters.

HISTORIES AND DIRECTORIES

It is pleasing to note that several chapters have recently published directories of their membership. Such lists are valuable and they are always appreciated. Beta Chapter published a complete history this year. Several chapters have published historical data, and I recommend that all chapters keep their histories fully up-to-date and arrange for publication at appropriate occasions.

THE ORGANIZATION IN GENERAL

Since the last Congress Delta Sigma Pi has made progress. It is hard to name, measure, and account for all the reasons for that progress, as there are so many matters that have had a bearing on it. Some are external and some are internal. Among the external factors are general business conditions, the conditions of our Colleges of Business Administration, the general attitude of educators toward fraternities, etc. I will discuss the last first.

During all the upheaval that has taken place in college life it is my opinion that, so far as the colleges are concerned, the fraternity system enjoys as great a degree of confidence and co-operation as it has at any previous time. In particular, this holds in the colleges and universities in which our chapters are located. It is basic to our continued success. As the delegate of the Professional Interfraternity Conference to the annual meeting in 1938 of the similar body which represents the social fraternities, I had first hand opportunity to learn the story of the Dartmouth situation, and as the representative of Delta Sigma Pi at Greek Week at The Ohio State University, I was able to confirm my convictions on the co-operative spirit in which educators regard fraternities and recognize their true worth.

The splendid yearly Fraternity Week held at the University of Minnesota, and other conferences of a similar nature, are very encouraging as showing the co-operative attitude of educators toward fraternities. I see nothing in the immediate future to mar this situation.

General business conditions during the last three years, according to the New York Times Business Index, have been at 88 per cent of what they designate as normal. It so happens that this figure is about four points above the same index for the three years preceding September 1936. The characters of the curves during the two three-year periods are however quite different. In the period preceding the last Congress the curve was almost steadily upward, whereas the curve during the last three years has had wide variations including a period when the business index dropped so severely that the rate of drop experienced has never been equalled during any other period of American economic history.

In spite of having gone through this period which some of our leaders have chosen to call a "recession" our fraternity budget, unlike the Federal budget, has been balanced every year; the increased number of initiates has been satisfactory for the period and resulting in larger average chapter rolls; we have installed one new chapter, several alumni clubs have been organized; several inactive chapters have been reorganized and put on their feet; the National Endowment Fund has grown, although the return on it hasn't, due to steadily lowering interest rates; the Life Membership list has grown: our first chapter to complete payments on its house has celebrated that happy occasion; our second chapter has reached its Silver Anniversary with appropriate celebration; Province Conventions have been renewed; a Chapter Leadership Ring has been established; an Alumni News Bulletin has been established and is regularly published; our Alumni Placement Service has been expanded; and a National Bowling Contest is now in its second year.

EXPANSION

The installation of Beta Omicron Chapter at the University of Newark was memorable in several ways. First, because of close proximity, it gives our Mother Chapter a baby to coddle along; next it gave us a solid footing on the ground floor in the first university to be established in that community of a million people; and third, it has brought into our midst a fine group of men who I am happy to present to you as brothers. I predict a long and useful life for Beta Omicron Chapter.

So far as our Chapter Roll is concerned, the addition of one newly installed chapter might be said to have been counteracted by the loss of our Beta Delta Chapter at North Carolina State College. The loss of this chapter was entirely unavoidable, as, by the unfathomable workings of politics in the Old North State, the School of Business was completely eliminated from the scene. I felt it almost as a personal loss to have to see removed from our rolls, this chapter which was a fine example of that splendid group of chapters that have sprung up and been nurtured in the Southland. That is the first situation of its kind that has occurred in the history of the fraternity and I hope it will be the last.

Negotiations are always in progress with groups or individuals on different campi looking toward possible affiliation, and several very excellent groups are preparing to later petition Delta Sigma Pi. Situations like this are not rushed, but are carefully watched and guided until the time for actual petitioning arrives. This fraternity will, I predict, as Brother Schujahn predicted three years ago, eventually settle down to about 50 strong chapters, and we will, with a very few new chapters and a little internal shuffling, soon reach our ultimate status.

PROFESSIONAL INTERFRATERNITY CONFERENCE

Delta Sigma Pi is a charter member of this permanent organization of the leading national professional fraternities. Our Grand Secretary-Treasurer has been active in its affairs from its beginning, and is now completing six years as the Conference's Secretary-Treasurer. I recommend that we continue to support the activities of this Conference, which binds us to fraternities in the other important professions.

DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI

It is most gratifying to be able to note the increased standing in their respective communities, and in areas of broader influence, of our growing list of distinguished alumni. We regularly read familiar names in the headlines of the nation's press, but the great majority of the accomplishments of our alumni are never broadcast. However these latter accomplishments are real, and together with the work of our better known men, are exerting an influence in every section of the country in business and educational circles.

It is with profound sorrow that I report the death on February 12, 1939 of Brother Charles J. Ege of Alpha Chapter, Grand President of Delta Sigma Pi from 1917 to 1920. Brother Ege, together with several other earlier members of Alpha Chapter made the fraternity indebted to them because of the work they did in starting it on its career of a true national fraternity. Brother Ege is the first Grand President to pass on, and the Grand Council at its meeting on Monday passed a resolution which has been sent to his family, his chapter, and his alumni club.

As the fraternity is now in its 33rd year, we must expect an increasing number of deaths among our alumni from now on. We should be grateful to God that all of our four founders, and all but one of our past Grand Presidents are alive and active.

COURSES IN EMPLOYMENT SEEKING

My predecessor, Brother Edwin L. Schujahn, devoted considerable thought to the possibility of Delta Sigma Pi influencing colleges in establishing courses designed to prepare juniors and seniors in the difficult technique of presenting themselves properly for business positions. While there have been no such courses actually organized, I believe, the idea to a degree has taken hold.

The giving of lectures on this important subject has been stimulated, and it is hoped and believed actual courses will eventually develop. All units in Delta Sigma Pi are urged to see what can be done to expedite this movement.

Several chapters during the past three years have published employment prospectuses for graduating seniors. Some of these have been excellent and I hope all have resulted in graduates making satisfactory connections.

CHAPTER HOUSING

In the matter of chapter housing we seem to have reached equilibrium. Evidently those chapters that set up houses and quarters some years ago still find the need of houses, and those chapters that have organized on the basis of no houses evidently feel that their requirements are being satisfactorily met. I urge every chapter to consider from time to time the advisability of setting up chapter quarters, but I urge no chapter to make any commitments in this direction without full consideration from every angle, and with more than reasonable assurance of success.

The unusual undertaking in the creation of Deltasig Lodge at Kappa Chapter is developing steadily according to well laid out plans. I congratulate those responsible and assure them that not only Delta Sigma Pi but many other fraternities are watching the evolution of this project with keen interest.

I want to thank the many chapters that have entertained me at their houses and quarters during the last few years. They have been enjoyable occasions and I shall never forget them.

PUBLICATIONS

The fraternity now has a rather complete set of manuals, etc., and a splendid ritual. These have been kept up-to-date and the number of manuals are added to from time to time as occasions warrant.

The DELTASIG continues to be the chief medium for binding together our far flung membership, both alumni and active. The typography and layout of The DELTASIG have been improved and in many ways the magazine is, I believe, more valuable and attractive than ever. On the other hand, there seems to have been a reduction in the number of articles of general interest to our membership and I recommend that this situation be remedied as soon as possible.

It is to be hoped that an issue of the DELTASIG can, in the not too far future, be published as a National Directory of Delta Sigma Pi. Not many members realize the expense involved, but all look forward eagerly to the publication of directories.

The Official Bulletin has been published regularly and is an interesting and valuable sheet. I recommend however, that in the future it be used more as a means of keeping the fraternity informed of the views of the Grand Council and the Province Officers than has been the practice in the past.

The new Alumni News Bulletin is a move in the right general direction. It is still too new to be able to fully appraise its form. It should be watched and studied very carefully in order to finally determine whether it should be published in its present form or perhaps incorporated as a definite, integrated part of the DELTASIG or the Official Bulletin.

SURVEY OF COMMERCE REGISTRATION

A most valuable contribution of Delta Sigma Pi to the administrative officers of all the Colleges of Commerce and Business Administration throughout the country is the Delta Sigma Pi Biennial Survey of Universities Offering Organized Courses in Commerce and Business Administration. First published in 1925 the Eighth Biennial Survey was published last year and like its predecessors is considered almost as a "Bible" by many deans and others. Several hundred requests are received for extra copies of each of these Surveys, both from members and non-members of the fraternity, from libraries, research organizations, and many others. The Survey is prepared by our Grand Secretary-Treasurer and is an excellent piece of work in every respect.

FINANCES

No organization can continue to live and function properly unless it balances its budget. Delta Sigma Pi, I am proud to say, has lived within its budget. It has always been the policy of Delta Sigma Pi to keep its national fees and dues at the lowest possible level, consistent with the needs of the fraternity, and with sound business practice. There is however, a minimum below which no organization can go. Compared with many other large national college fraternities our national fees and dues are well below the average. Yet Delta Sigma Pi renders many valuable services, more such services in fact than a number of other similar organizations.

Along with most organizations and individuals our fraternity reached its peak of income during the "good old days" of the late 20s. At that time it also reached its peak in the number of active chapters and in the number of annual initiates. We have fared better than many fraternities in regard to the number of chapters lost during the depression and we have, I feel, done a successful job of readjusting our affairs so as to make the coat fit the cloth and still have a fine suit of clothes. Within an income during the past three years that is approximately two-thirds of the income of our three peak years, we are rendering a service to our members that is in most respects equal to that which they received during the periods of peak income, and we are also building up a National Endowment Fund which was not even in existence in the old days. That is the overall financial picture of the fraternity.

As you will receive full details from the Grand Secretary-Treasurer's report and pertinent comments from the Chairman of the Committee on Finance, Brother R. C. Schmidt of Theta Chapter, I shall go no farther than to point out that all accounts of the fraternity have been paid in full as usual, all discounts taken, that not a dollar has ever been lost in connection with any investment, or by loans from the National Endowment Fund; and that we continue to have an independent audit of the books of the fraternity made annually by a Certified Public Accountant.

ALUMNI PLACING SERVICE

Several years ago it was realized that the problem of securing a position in the business world was in many individual cases the most important task facing our younger alumni, and that many older alumni, because of unexpected economic changes, needed positions. Also some of the older alumni desired to improve their positions. An Alumni Placing Service was organized with several unique features and has proven a very successful venture. From the beginning it has been under the supervision of Brother Denton A. Fuller, Jr., of Alpha Upsilon Chapter who has been assisted by volunteers in some 14 cities. Those of you who attended the Alumni Placing Service Conference yesterday heard a great deal about this important alumni activity, and you will hear more about it during the balance of this Congress with the continued co-operation of our alumni this Service can be substantially expanded as we have just begun to scratch the surface in this field. I am sure you all join with me in expressing the thanks of the fraternity to Brother Fuller and his co-workers.

FOUNDERS' DAY CELEBRATIONS

Under the leadership of Brother J. Elwood Armstrong of Chi Chapter the Committee on Founders' Day Celebrations have made these events a legend in Delta Sigma Pi. We all like to pay homage to our four founders, and I am particularly pleased that Founder Alfred Moysello is here in attendance at the Thirteenth Grand Chapter Congress of Delta Sigma Pi. Founders' Day is an excellent time to rally alumni and undergraduates in a joint celebration each fall.

HONORARY MEMBER-AT-LARGE

Although authority has existed for several years, it is only in connection with this Congress that the Grand Council has invited a prominent business man to become our first Honorary Member-at-Large. The selection is a happy one and Brother Walter D. Fuller, President of The Curtis Publishing Company, meets in every way the fine qualities we had in mind when the authority was first granted the Council. We all welcome Brother Fuller and thank the members of the Philadelphia Grand Chapter Congress Committee who handled the details of arranging for Brother Fuller's initiation.

PROVINCE OFFICERS AND REGIONAL CONVENTIONS

We have many real leaders among our Province Officers. Quite a number are present with us today. More I believe than at any previous Grand Chapter Congress. I wish they were all here. These workers are the official contacts between our national organization and the members of the fraternity in their respective localities, and the success of many chapters and alumni clubs can be directly traced to the ability and interest of the Province Officers. I hope that every member present will become better acquainted with his Province Officers and will consider them as friends and counselors at all times.

I also hope that all Province Officers will soon have younger alumni in training to take over their responsible duties whenever they may be forced to resume a less active part in the affairs of Delta Sigma Pi by virtue of demands of their businesses or otherwise.

Some years ago three or four Regional Conventions were held in different sections of the country in years between meetings of the Grand Chapter Congress. During the depression they were discontinued. I have always believed that these gatherings have a distinct value to our members and I am happy to report that a Southern Regional Convention was held at Atlanta, Georgia, this spring with four or five of our southern chapters participating. I hope this is the forerunner of other Regional conventions to be held. I believe that such meetings can be held successfully and with tangible returns, particularly in the East, the South, the Middle West, and the Missouri Valley. The cost would be nominal to each participating chapter and if properly handled would be of considerable value to all.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

Many of our chapters and alumni clubs are to be commended on the very fine programs of professional activities sponsored locally. Unfortunately a few of our chapters do not pay as much attention to the benefits and advantages of such a program as they should.

I have been particularly impressed by the value of sponsoring annual Commerce Days on our camp. Several Delta Sigma Pi Chapters have been sponsoring such days for years and I hope that during the business session, there will be presented details to you regarding the advantages of such activity. Our Mississippi chapter sponsored a very successful Commerce Day at which our Grand Secretary-Treasurer spoke, and at Tennessee our chapter sponsors an annual Commerce Exposition now in its third year, I believe, with interesting exhibits by many large firms. This Exposition is held in the university gymnasium and draws a large attendance.

Many chapters can arrange industrial tours or inspection trips to nearby industrial and business centers. Industrial movies of great interest as well as educational value can be secured for local exhibition, usually without any charge except possibly transportation charges.

I urge that all chapters pay more attention to these important and beneficial possibilities for expanding their professional programs.

THE CENTRAL OFFICE

The regular, daily organization and routine administrative work of the fraternity must of necessity devolve upon The Central Office. From many years of contact with this office, and many visits to it ever since it was established, I am of the opinion that it is carrying out its duties and rendering service to all branches of the fraternity in a very satisfactory manner. The office is under the direction of Brother H. G. Wright who this year completes an outstanding record of fifteen years as Grand Secretary-Treasurer of the fraternity. Gig's influence extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific. I take this opportunity to thank Gig, and the fine young ladies, who compose the Central Office Staff for their capable, loyal and effective work during the last three years. Without such assistance, intelligently and effectively given, I am sure the affairs of the fraternity would not have been in such shape that I could have made as satisfactory a report as I am able to.

CONCLUSION

It has been a responsibility to lead this great organization for three years. I appreciate the trust you placed in me. I have had the help of many members and I am grateful to them for their advice and assistance. I have covered as much ground, physically as well as otherwise, as has been possible. I have visited 15 chapters and 6 alumni clubs, and would have covered more except that during these three years my wife has had two major illnesses, my boy one serious illness, and I was in the hospital as a patient for the first time in my life. You have made it possible for me to make many lasting friendships for which I am truly thankful.

As I said in the beginning, the need three years ago was to build Delta Sigma Pi internally; as I see it that is still the chief task for some years to come, war or no war. Most of the events and the progress I have briefly chronicled here have had to do with the business and organization side of our fraternity. Not all, however. The spiritual side and the fraternal life of our members are not being overlooked. As I complete my report, I can confidently and proudly say that there are no serious problems of an organization, financial or business nature facing the fraternity. Therefore the foundation is present, and the way is clear, for a fraternal and spiritual development within the fraternity, that has never been equalled during its third of a century of existence. With a determination on our part to bring such a development about, I am sure that, with God's help and guidance, it can be done.

Delta Sigma Pi Bowling Competition

ANOTHER National Bowling Competition will be held by Delta Sigma Pi this year. Any chapter or alumni club may enter as many five-men teams in this contest as desired. The games may be bowled any time during the month of February and the scores reported to the Central Office. Prizes will be awarded to the winners. Write the Central Office for complete details, if interested.

The Professional Interfraternity Conference Meets

THE NINTH CONFERENCE of the Professional Interfraternity Conference was held in the Palmer House, Chicago, Illinois, on Saturday, November 4, 1939. Many delegates representing the members of the Conference were present and an interesting program was offered. The Professional Interfraternity Conference was organized in 1928 by the leading professional fraternities and now has a membership of 27 fraternities in the various professional fields. The function of the Conference is purely advisory, and it has been its aim to encourage high scholarship, professional research, the advancement of professional ethics, and the promotion of a spirit of comity among the professional fraternities in the advancement of fraternity ideals.

The Conference sessions were presided over by Dr. P. G. Puterbaugh, of Delta Sigma Delta (dentistry) fraternity, and in his report he outlined the progress which had been made by the Conference during the past two years. The guest speaker this year was Mr. J. A. Park, Dean of Men, Ohio State University, whose address, "From a Campus Window" proved most interesting. Other speakers on the program included the following: Mr. J. D. Sparks, Indianapolis, Indiana, Executive Secretary-Treasurer of Alpha Kappa Psi (commerce) who spoke on "The Classification of College Fraternities." Mr. Francis O'Sullivan, Kansas City, Missouri, Chancellor of Delta Theta Phi (legal) who spoke on "The Placement of Professional School Graduates." Mr. Paul M. Cook, Chicago, Illinois, Executive Secretary of Phi Delta Kappa (education) who spoke on "Securing Financial Support from Alumni Members." Dr. Harold S. Smith, Chicago, Illinois, Grand Recorder of Psi Omega (dentistry) who spoke on "Some Aspects of Fraternity Competition." Dr. William A.

Mann, Chicago, Illinois, Grand Vice-President of Alpha Kappa Kappa (medicine) who spoke on "National Membership Directories."

Dr. Robert W. McNulty, Chicago, Illinois, of Delta Sigma Delta (dentistry) who spoke on "An Effective Plan for Organizing and Supervising Chapters." Mr. H. G. Wright, Chicago, Illinois, Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Delta Sigma Pi who spoke on "Budgeting Current Expenses." At the close of the organized program an informal round table discussion ensued.

Mr. A. L. Doud, Jr., of Douds, Iowa, Master of the Rolls of Delta Theta Phi (legal) fraternity was elected President of the Conference for the coming biennium. Mr. Paul M. Cook of Chicago, Executive Secretary of Phi Delta Kappa (education) fraternity was elected Vice-President. Mr. H. G. Wright of Chicago, Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Delta Sigma Pi was re-elected for his fourth term as Secretary-Treasurer of the Conference. Members of the Executive Committee elected included the foregoing officers and Dr. P. G. Puterbaugh of Chicago, Supreme Grand Master of Delta Sigma Delta (dentistry) fraternity, Dr. Marvin C. Rogers of Minneapolis, Minnesota, of Alpha Chi Sigma (chemistry) fraternity, Dr. Ralph W. Elliott of Cleveland, Ohio, Secretary-Treasurer of Phi Rho Sigma (medicine) fraternity, and Mr. H. H. Hopkins of Chicago of Theta Tau (engineering) fraternity.

Present members of the Conference include the following professional fraternities: ARCHITECTURE, Alpha Rho Chi; CHEMISTRY, Alpha Chi Sigma; COMMERCE, Alpha Kappa Psi and Delta Sigma Pi; DENTISTRY, Delta Sigma Delta, Psi Omega, and Xi Psi Phi; EDUCATION, Kappa Phi Kappa, Phi Delta Kap-

THE WORLD OVER

Milwaukee

THE FIRST MEETING of the Milwaukee Alumni Club was held at the Medford Hotel, September 15. Stuart Kessler was elected President; Donald Goessel, Vice-President; and Tillman Bruett, Secretary-Treasurer. At our October meeting Brother Schoenecker, Delta Chapter Delegate to the Philadelphia Congress, presented his report and several suggestions he offered were discussed. One called for the formation of a ritual team composed of alumni. The other dealt with our Alumni Placing Service problem. We are extremely fortunate that Charles Cobeen, Delta 1, is in charge of the Marquette University Student Union and can be of great assistance to us in this matter.

On October 28 many alumni were in evidence at the annual Homecoming Dance held at the Schroeder Hotel. Founders' Day was celebrated Sunday, November 5 at the Ambassador Hotel, with Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright of Chicago as the guest speaker. The November and December meetings were featured with moving pictures of Marquette athletic events, which were secured by Stan Lowe. Ed Vaughan was chairman of the committee in charge of the annual New Year's Eve Party.

The Milwaukee Alumni Club meets on the second Monday of each month at 6:30 at the Medford Hotel and we extend a cordial invitation to all members who may be in Milwaukee on that night to be present.—ERNEST JOHANNES

Boston

OUR CLUB PRESIDENT Thomas K. Lynch found it necessary to resign because of pressure of business activities and Frank O'Leary was elected to fill his place. All of the officers of the club are working hard to make this year a successful one. Meetings are held the second Tuesday of each month and luncheons are scheduled for each Thursday. The December meeting featured moving pictures furnished by the Union Pacific Railroad and proved exceedingly popular. We celebrated New Year's Eve with a special party at the Hotel Commander in Cambridge.—L. C. DEWOLFE

Newark

OUR FIRST dinner of the year was held at the Newark Athletic Club early in September and met with an eager response with 26 members present. Garrett C. Wilcox was elected President; Herbert E. Brown, Vice-President; and Michael Koribanics, Secretary-Treasurer. Monthly dinners and meetings are held the first Tuesday of each month at the Newark Athletic Club and every third Thursday has been reserved for bowling. J. C. Ware of Alpha Chapter was speaker at our first meeting. W. K. Van Hise, Beta Xi, a realty dealer in East Orange, was speaker at our October meeting. A Founders' Day celebration was held November 7 with Albert N. Gray of Beta Omicron, the principal speaker.—VICTOR J. TOMASULO

Birmingham

THE BIRMINGHAM Alumni Club has had a very busy summer and fall. Along with the regular weekly luncheons and monthly meetings we have had quite a few additional meetings which the brothers found quite interesting. During the summer we had several picnics, where the brothers could stretch their "tired muscles" and rest their "weary brains" from the long hours of work over a desk. And last but not least, try to eat more than anyone else present.

We started the fall activities by meeting at the home of our President, Virgil H. Hampton to listen to the Alabama-Tennessee football game over the radio. All was going fine until Mr. Butler decided that he would like to see what the Alabama goal line was like. He did! You know the rest as far as yours truly and the other Alabama grads are concerned. Mrs. Hampton tactfully smoothed over the above mentioned incident by serving the boys with very tasty refreshments.

Our Vice-President, Tom Nash, has filled his job most capably by furnishing us with an outstanding speaker for every meeting. In keeping with the times we had a lecture on "Chemical Warfare." We celebrated Founders' Day at our meeting on November 21 and our speaker was Mr. Soney, Field Supervisor of the Birmingham District of the F.B.I. Mr. Soney spoke on "The General Operation and Purpose of the F.B.I." At another of our meetings we rushed through our meal and business and then proceeded to the office of the Birmingham News where we found out how a newspaper is made.

As I go to press, I have just been notified that we have had as our guests recently, Paul Clark of Atlanta, Georgia, and Tom Lee Barrow of Jacksonville, Florida. R. E. Robinson of Chi Chapter was our guest Friday, December 15, at our luncheon and will be present at our meeting tonight. Brother Robinson is here on an auditing engagement. During the summer vacation several of the brothers from the Alabama and Auburn chapters were our guests at various meetings.—H. A. HELMS

New York

THE NEW YORK Alumni Club started the school year with representation at the Grand Chapter Congress in Philadelphia and at the finale at the New York World's Fair. Those who had to miss the Philadelphia business sessions and fun caught up with the delegates and visiting brothers enjoying Delta Sigma Pi Day at the Fair under the guidance of Brothers Schultz, Eckdahl and Toffenetti. Our new Grand President John L. McKewen made himself well liked and to him go the Club's wishes for a successful administration.

The schedule of activities was drawn up by Arnold Eckdahl and the club officers and our first efforts were turned toward the Founders' Day dinner on November 6 at the Downtown Athletic Club. Instead of the customary speaker Chick LaForge arranged something different—an open forum on anything Delta Sigma Pi. The result was unique and most enjoyable! The bald-headed row on the dais ranging from Harold V. Jacobs, one of our Founders, to Gene Milener, our retiring Grand President, spoke briefly and candidly on the ups and downs of our 32 years of progress. Jack Anderson, Alpha Head Master, climaxed the discussions by reciting chapter progress this semester and the club dedicated itself anew to a closer bond with the active chapter work and especially to those brothers about to become alumni. As key men in the work we have Brothers Juengst and Vaupel who serve as Province and Deputy Province Directors, respectively.

In line with Alumni Placing Service work, Lawrence W. Zimmer has been appointed National Vice-Chairman and is rapidly organizing a local committee to carry out this new undertaking provided for by the recent Congress. Your Correspondent has been appointed a member of the national committee. Chick LaForge has been appointed a member of the National Committee on Alumni Activities. Fred McCarthy has been appointed a member of the Committee on Life Memberships. Frank T. Farrell, World-Telegram staff writer, wrote a series of highly seasoned articles during the week of December 4 on "Hollywood—Minus Oomph," which certainly gave a lot of inside information for the boys.

The meeting of December 8 was well attended with the customary dinner at Bertollotti's and the subsequent hours at Alpha House quickly passed amid poker, bridge and refreshments. The lucky winner of the turkey raffle was the popular Gerry White from Omega Chapter at Temple, who is living at the house.

Socially, we are under way as usual, and the ensuing program of professional meetings and winter parties indicate continued progress of our Club.

To Deltasigs everywhere—drop in at Alpha house. To resident and nearby Deltasigs—join us and retain the spirit the fraternity developed in you as undergraduates!—
DANIEL C. KILIAN

Madison

REGULAR MEETINGS are held the third Wednesday of each month at the Capital Hotel with an average attendance of around 15 or 20. Plans are going forward for a very successful year. A combined Christmas-New Year's Party was held on December 28 and proved very successful. Recent election of officers resulted in Marty Helz becoming President; John Schoonenberg, Vice-President; and R. R. Swaziek, Secretary-Treasurer. Gordon Chapman, Class of '31, is the proud father of a boy born on August 3, 1939.—

Washington

MR. MERLE THORPE, SR., Editor of Nation's Business and nationally known lecturer on business trends and conditions addressed a joint Founders' Day banquet at the Hotel Benedick in Washington, D.C., on Saturday, November 4. To continue the tradition of joint Founders' Day celebrations, Washington was host to Baltimore and in attendance were members of Mu and Chi Chapters and the Washington and Baltimore Alumni Clubs. The committee was composed of Gerald Stack, chairman, Earl Nash and Thomas Lavender, of the Washington Alumni Club, and Head Master George Jennings of Mu Chapter. Mr. Thorpe addressed the group on "Modern Government" and outlined from an economic standpoint the changes in government in the United States during the past four decades and indicated the major contributions to the world's civilization, made by the United States during this period, with their attendant background. Mr. Thorpe also asked for a more clear interpretation of definitions and viewpoints between present generations, for, in these common grounds of understanding lies the key to the continued progress of the American system in both business and politics.

Grand President McKewen headed the delegation from Baltimore. He stated the aims and policies of his administration and emphasized the necessity for active and continued development of alumni clubs and activities.

Earl Nash acted as toastmaster and in conclusion announced his resignation as Deputy Province Director of Province V. This announcement was received with noticeable regret for the province loses the direct service of one of its most popular and capable officers.—GERALD STACK

Dallas

SUCCESSFUL IS INDEED the right word to describe the installation of the Dallas Alumni Club held Tuesday, August 15, 1939, in Dallas, Texas, at the Dallas Country Club. That evening a group of loyal Deltasigs gathered round the festive banquet table, decorated in old gold and royal purple, the official colors of the Fraternity, and loudly and enthusiastically toasted the Fraternity and the new-born alumni club that is destined to make outstanding history for Delta Sigma Pi in Texas and the great Southwest.

An elaborate program was arranged by the Installation Banquet Committee. In addition to the reception, refreshments, and the taking of the official photographs just previous to the banquet, the program included the introductory remarks by Charles C. Pierce, as toastmaster; an enlightening review of "Delta Sigma Pi in 1907" by Harry E. Gordon, one of the early members of Alpha Chapter; the installation of the club and its officers by Kenneth B. White, a member of the Grand Council of the Fraternity; a forecast entitled "Our Future Plans and Hopes" by Cliff H. Rasmussen, the newly elected president of the Dallas Alumni Club; "Short Biographies" by Charles C. Pierce and the members; and for the climax, "Silly Prophecies" by B. Wayne Gratigny, forecasting in gridiron style what was in store for each of the club's members in 1957, the Golden Anniversary of Delta Sigma Pi.

The potential possibilities of an alumni club in Dallas were first conceived by Kenneth B. White on December 13, 1930, in an informal talk before the charter members of Beta Iota Chapter at Baylor University. Beta Kappa Chapter at Texas University had just been installed the previous week and there were already two other one-year-old chapters at Oklahoma University and Louisiana State University—four chapters in the Southwest. That Texas was ready for an alumni club was demonstrated three years later by the organization of the Houston Alumni Club by sixteen of the seventeen Deltasigs then living in Houston, Texas. The Houston Alumni Club now has an active membership of thirty-five. Each year thereafter the migration of Deltasigs to Dallas was watched carefully. Several times there were almost the necessary members needed to establish a Dallas club. However, it was not until April, 1939, that, by a diligent search of the Central Office records and of all directories published by several of our alumni clubs, it was learned that thirty-two Deltasigs were shown to reside in Dallas.

In a letter to these members, written by Kenneth B. White, the advantage of and need for an alumni club in Dallas was explained. Arrangements were made to hold the first meeting at his home on April 25, 1939. The group of brothers that met each other that night for the first time was heartened by the replies received from brothers who could not be present at the meeting. It was clearly indicated that fifteen members required for the establishment of a club at Dallas could be depended upon to sign a petition. The initial plans to definitely determine the interest of the Dallas Deltasigs provided for weekly luncheons to be held at a downtown hotel. Cliff H. Rasmussen was appointed to head a luncheon telephone committee to contact those brothers not present at the first meeting, particularly those who had failed to respond to the invitation to express their interest in the formation of an alumni club in Dallas. Meanwhile, on April 30, 1939, an informal stag get-together was held at Brother White's home to meet Grand Secretary-Treasurer H. G. Wright who had arrived from Chicago on a chapter visitation in the Southwest.

Activity was again started with a bang as the beginning of the new fiscal year of the Fraternity approached. Cliff Rasmussen and Ken White burned up the wires between their respective homes in preparation for the organization meeting held at Brother Rasmussen's home Friday, August 4, 1939. The beer and sandwiches really brought them out. At this meeting it was pointed out that of the original list of thirty-two Dallas Deltasigs it was learned during the summer contacts by telephone that six of the members no longer lived in Dallas, but new hope was derived when it was found that two other Deltasigs had recently moved here and could be counted on. Those present were invited to sign the petition to the Grand Council to approve the granting of a charter to the Dallas members to establish and operate an alumni club to be known as the DALLAS ALUMNI CLUB. The final petition sent to the Grand Council was signed by twenty-six Deltasigs—all but two of the Deltasigs residing in Dallas. The twenty-six charter members hope soon to boast of 100% membership in Dallas as they fully expect these two alumni to join the ranks.

In voting for the club's first officers, the members elected the four officers proposed by the nominating committee headed by Mick C. Spellman: President, Cliff H. Rasmussen, former Head Master of Beta Chapter (Northwestern); Vice-President, Ralph E. Doughton, former Head Master of Iota (Kansas); Secretary, Gilbert T. Wolf, member of Beta Kappa (Texas); and Treasurer, William P. Coffing, member of Beta Kappa (Texas). For the other four members of the Council those elected were as follows: A. Terrell Dixon, member of Beta Epsilon (Oklahoma); Kirby S. Parsons, charter member of Beta Iota (Baylor); Charles C. Pierce, member of Alpha Beta (Missouri); and Kenneth B. White (Boston).

The tentative program of the club provides for a monthly dinner meeting on the third Tuesday of each month immediately following a short business meeting. The membership committee is under the able direction of A. Terrell Dixon. He and practically the remaining twenty-five charter members have set a goal to increase their number two-fold. Much is expected of the publicity committee headed by Clyde H. Taylor, former Head Master of Beta Kappa Chapter (Texas). This committee should work hand in hand with the committees on activities and membership. The club plans to publish a news letter from time to time. News items for THE DELTASIG will be prepared jointly by Clyde H. Taylor and Gilbert T. Wolf so alumni who plan on visiting Dallas in the future should carry a current copy of THE DELTASIG which should provide a ready-made introduction to the members of the Dallas Alumni Club.

The charter members of the Dallas Alumni Club comprise a cross-section of the country with men from fourteen different chapters of Delta Sigma Pi at the following universities: Baylor, Boston, Georgetown, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Northwestern, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas, and Wisconsin. It is also interesting to note that the membership of the Dallas Alumni Club includes five charter members and five former head masters of their respective chapters, and also four life members of the Fraternity.—CLYDE H. TAYLOR.

Philadelphia

JOINING WITH THE active chapter, the alumni club observed Founders' Day on November 11, 1939 at Beta Nu chapter house, 3902 Spruce Street. Seated at the speakers' table were Grand President John L. McKewen, our Province Director Allen L. Fowler, William G. Rohrer, President of the Alumni Club, Head Master Kenneth Voorhies, of Beta Nu Chapter, and J. William Oyler, Head Master of Omega Chapter. Mike Judge acted as toastmaster.

Our Grand President spoke very eloquently on the Founders of our fraternity and of the wonderful growth attained by it since 1907. He then went on to a subject that is very dear to him—Life Membership. He urged every eligible member present to take out a Life Membership and mentioned the various payment plans. He also told of the many letters of gratitude from the members who have received loans from the National Endowment Fund and claimed that if it were possible to read some of these letters held in the files of the Central Office there would be more members desirous of participating in this good work.

Province Director Fowler chose as his topic, "Ways and Means of Increasing Membership and Enthusiasm in Alumni Clubs." He mentioned, among other plans, that a page in the DELTASIG be devoted to alumni club organization. It was very gratifying to see present such a good representation of that class of old grads who were initiated into Delta Sigma Pi during the Grand Chapter Congress.

Before the close of the meeting Grand President McKewen requested that an appropriate resolution be drawn up and signed by all members present and then sent to Frederick W. Floyd, our newly elected member of the Grand Council, who is still confined to his bed.

Again on November 25, our Grand President made a week-end visit to Philadelphia on the occasion of the Penn-Cornell football game. After the game a visit to Beta Nu house for refreshments, then dinner and a rush for the Mask and Wig show where more than 40 Deltasigs were seated together. When the show ended the group hurried back to the house for dancing. All in all, it was quite a busy afternoon and evening for Grand President and Mrs. McKewen.—JOHN A. DUGAN

Baltimore

UNDER THE WELL recognized leadership of Hugh Taylor and officers and committeemen, the Baltimore Alumni Club drew up the plan of activities for the coming year. The Board of Directors met in August and thoroughly discussed and shaped the program. Based largely upon the plan tried last year the club has expanded its activities for the coming year. First of all it was necessary to have the financial ability to successfully carry out the program. At the same time it was of necessity to present a program that would hold the interest of the majority and at the same time not press anyone as to cash outlay. Last year, and again this year, each member's local dues were increased by 50 cents and as long as his dues were paid he participated in a number of events at no charge. This alone was not enough financially so it became necessary to secure a larger membership. Having started in August we may safely say that the membership goal is practically attained and ultimately, a successful year.

As regards the nature of events listed, an interesting, diversified and inexpensive program has been planned. Besides the Founders' Day celebration and Chapter Birthday party, a travelogue movie talk is to be presented by Brothers Hogendorp and Leroy, who traveled throughout Europe this past summer. In addition there is to be a music appreciation evening for the many music lovers. Later will come an evening of bowling. The annual Civic Award to the outstanding young man of Baltimore will take place in the spring. Later at the annual election of officers, a political burlesque is planned. The closing event is a general get-together, featuring hypnotism, mesmerism and sazama. Thus, the large membership of the Baltimore Alumni Club will be adequately entertained this year, from every possible angle. Add to this the participation in active chapter affairs, and no one will have a good excuse not to attend at least a few of the events.

After preparing the way for almost two months by mail and telephone, a general business meeting and party was held at the Montfaucon Club. This meeting also became a party in honor of Brother McKewen, who incidentally is a member of the Montfaucon Post of the American Legion. Everyone of the boys was proud that Brother McKewen, a Chi man from the Baltimore Alumni Club, had been chosen as Grand President. The entire body presented to Brother McKewen a hand prepared scroll, signed by all members present. Poems were read in his honor and the fraternity songs rendered with exuberant spirit. Brother McKewen was especially proud to be one of the group that night. The evening left everyone enthusiastic and eager to take part in coming events for the year.—JOSEPH OBERLE, JR.

Jacksonville, Florida

THE JACKSONVILLE ALUMNI Club got into full swing by qualifying for a charter at the Grand Chapter Congress held in September. Charter members are: Glenn Calmes, Shorty Cochran, Allen Davis, Buck Davis, Bill Fouraker, Harry Gardner, Kenneth Godshalk, Henry Love, Jerome Smith, James T. Wilson, Fulton Saussy, Jr., O. B. Cornelius, Bill Petty, Tom Barrow, Elmer Trulove, Jimmy Landon, Kenneth Wilson, and Henry Tart, Jr. A. B. Cornelius served as our delegate to the Grand Chapter Congress.

Last June a most enjoyable beach party was enjoyed at the Hotel Plummer at Jacksonville Beach. This was our first mixed affair, and was well attended. After softball on the beach and a swim we dressed for a most delicious picnic lunch followed by watermelon cutting. From there we went to Sportland Bowling Alley for a few games. On June 24 we had an industrial tour of the Bull Steamship Terminal, the newest and best facility of its kind in the city.

Mr. Riggs, manager of the Credit Department of the Florida National Bank, gave a most interesting talk on consumer credits following the mixed dinner held at the George Washington Hotel, July 14. Dancing was enjoyed later in the Rainbow Room. The following week a most unusual activity for a Deltasig Alumni Club took place. Led by those mighty fishermen Allen Davis and Fulton Saussy, our group went bravely out on its first annual Deep Sea Fishing Trip. About a dozen of us went on the "Red Snapper" out to the snapper banks, and really had a time. It was a treat to watch the flying fish and porpoises on the way out. Allen Davis snagged the first snapper and the "pot" of about $4.00 and 2 free passes.

September 1 Glenn Calmes held open house for Jacksonville Deltasigs. A rather unique horse race game operated by Fulton Saussy entertained both Deltasigs and their ladies. Some of the best shrimp in the world were served by Glenn's wife, along with other refreshments. Tom Graham and his bride of a few weeks dropped in from St. Augustine. On October 13, O. B. Cornelius gave us a brief resume of the Grand Chapter Congress, at a mixed meeting at the Roosevelt Hotel. Afterward the group enjoyed the Sun Valley Ice Follies and dancing in the Patio Grill.

Founders' Day was celebrated jointly with Beta Eta Chapter from the University of Florida on November 10. Ralph Grassfield, Manager of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, made the principal address of the evening. Clarence Peterson, Head Master of the Beta Eta boys, announced plans for an industrial tour of Jacksonville on December 8 and 9. Our Undergraduate Committee, composed of Buck Davis, Bill Petty, and James Wilson arranged the tour for them. Professors Dolbeare and Dietrich came over with the boys on the Industrial Tour in December. A novel round-table quiz program on Florida facts took place Friday evening, December 8, followed by a Yellow Dog initiation conducted by Lloyd Anderson of Beta Eta Chapter. Saturday the boys went through the Nevel Hosiery Mill, Southern Dairies, Florida National Bank, Jacksonville Brewing Company (where a refreshing lunch was provided), and the Jacksonville Gas Company.—TOM LEE BARROW.

Chicago

OUR REGULAR MONTHLY meetings were resumed in September, with a get-together. At the October meeting our speaker was the Assistant Sports Editor of the Chicago Herald-American, Mr. Leo Fischer, who spoke on "The Last Word in Football." Founders' Day was observed in November, and we were fortunate in having one of the early members of our Mother chapter as our speaker, none other than Robert Connolly, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Central Railroad, and his talk on the early days of Delta Sigma Pi was most interesting to the members assembled. In December we varied our usual program, and three of our members spoke briefly on the respective lines of work in which they were engaged. Al Tengwall spoke on "City Finances," Ken Hobbie on "The Brass Industry" and Bob Alexander on "Milk in Chicago." At the January meeting we will have Mr. Nicholas M. Lattof, formerly associate general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Jerusalem who will speak on "The Near East" and which should prove most interesting.

Our printed membership directory, long in the making, will appear late in February, and will contain the names, addresses and telephone numbers, both residence and business of all Chicagoland members.

Louisiana State Opens New Commerce Building

THE DOORS OF THE new Commerce Building were opened for the first time this semester. Completed late in the summer, the building is now being occupied by the College of Commerce and has been named Himes Hall. The building is fully equipped to render every available assistance to students enrolled in the various courses offered by the college. At the present time Beta Zeta Chapter is endeavoring to secure space in the building for use as a chapter lounge and meeting room. Our plans have not yet materialized but we are quite certain that our hopes will be justified.

The chapter has opened the current school year with real enthusiasm and determination. The problem of securing a higher rating in the Chapter Efficiency Contest has received its just share of attention. Plans have been formulated which include a full professional program. On November 14 the chapter welcomed nine new members and expects to secure an even greater number at further initiations.

The Founders' Day Banquet was, perhaps, one of the most successful features yet planned. In no way could the program have been bettered. The entire chapter turned out for the banquet, the highlight of which was a talk presented by Mr. Edgar A. Sower, an official of one of Baton Rouge's leading banking institutions.

At the last meeting of the chapter, Terrance Leonhardy, our delegate to the Grand Chapter Congress, presented an informative talk on the proceedings as they took place in Philadelphia and New York. His talk was well received by the chapter and our only regret is that we were unable to present a greater number of delegates at that very successful meeting. That the Congress surpassed all expectations is but further proof of the fact that Delta Sigma Pi is an outstanding fraternity.

It's a great fraternity, fellas, and Beta Zeta Chapter is endeavoring to do its part in making it an even greater organization.—A. HAMILTON McMAMIN

Northwestern Welcomes New Dean

UNDER THE LEADERSHIP of our new Head Master Will Hawkins, Zeta Chapter is planning to do great things this year. An extensive rushing program has been planned and set up. A series of smokers has already been inaugurated, the first one being held October 11. The speaker of the evening was Mr. C. J. Burns, manager of the accounting department of the American Savings and Loan Institute, and accounting consultant of the U. S. Building and Loan League. Mr. Burns originated and developed the Standard Accounting System for the Savings, Building and Loan Associations throughout the country. His talk was titled "The Accountant as a G-Man." We plan to have a smoker of this type at least once a month.

The annual fall banquet honoring our new pledges was held October 18. Dean Vanderblue, new Dean of the School of Commerce, was the principal speaker of the evening. Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright and Robert Alexander of Alpha Chapter were also present and spoke. A large turnout was present, with all the actives and a great many alumni getting together at the Georgian Hotel.

Henry Shull, scribe of Zeta Chapter, who has earned a name for himself as a contest winner, continued to show his ability this summer. Henry won $150 in the Elk's Most Valuable Student Contest and $10 in a local photography contest. Henry has put himself through school with his winnings. His winnings now total something over $3600. (Keep up the good work, Henry.)

Charles Jarasek won the distinction of having his name engraved on Zeta's scholarship honor plaque for making the highest point average during the second semester of 1938-39. Charles led with an average of 5.87. Len Amundson who won this honor the first semester gave Charles a close race with a 5.81 average. Other chapter members who were on the honor roll by reason of having made a 5.0 or better were: Art Widtmann, 5.60; Richard Cox, 5.41; and Harold McCullagh, 5.24.—ARNOLD H. REETZ

1939 Chapter Efficiency Contest

HERE ARE the final standings of the active undergraduate chapters in the 1939 Chapter Efficiency Contest. A total of seven chapters tied for first place with a perfect score of 100,000 points, an all-time record. The Head Masters of each of these chapters received a Life Membership in Delta Sigma Pi, and all undergraduate members of every chapter having a final score of 85,000 points or more receive a paid-up national alumni membership card for their first year out of college.

Alabama Visits Kappa of Atlanta

SHERMAN DID IT in 1864, and Alpha Sigma of Alabama did it in 1939. Did what? Raided Atlanta. Kappa Chapter of Atlanta put up a pretty game fight to keep us from taking the town, but all in vain, as 11 Alpha Sigma boys took the town out to Kappa Lodge, and then proceeded relentlessly to a successful week-end. Two of the Tuscaloosa Terrors taught the Kappa lads that ping-pong is a game of skill, thrill, and kill. However, the Kappa's held a slight edge in a 9-7 victory in a pigskin panorama. A dance was held for us, and to balance the budget a business meeting was held in which a discussion of fraternity problems was conducted. Grand Council Member Frank Brandes led the discussion and offered many suggestions for the solution of our chapter problems. Let us add that a trip to Atlanta is incomplete without dating the girls from Agnes Scott School for girls.

With the opening of the fall term at the University of Alabama, Alpha Sigma Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi is in an excellent position to continue the success of last year's activities and to make an even better record in the Chapter Efficiency Contest. Twenty-eight active members have returned to the campus this fall and each is going about his chapter duties in an enthusiastic manner. Prospects for new members this year are particularly good.

We have gotten off to an excellent start this year with four business meetings and two professional meetings. This year we are planning to sponsor a series of professional programs centering around the current problem, or problem to be, of every college student; namely, getting a job. In starting this program we had as our first speaker, Mr. Leonard Roth, senior interviewer of a State Employment Service. He spoke on a timely topic, The Problems of Interviewing, to an enthusiastic crowd of actives, alumni, and students of the Commerce School. We plan to continue this program by bringing other distinguished men who will speak more specifically upon the opportunities in their respective lines of work.

We are more than fortunate this year to again have as our Chapter Adviser, Brother Wendell Adamson, who has been away on leave of absence the past year doing graduate work at Columbia in statistics. In the past he has always given a generous share of his time and interest to our chapter. This year he has been active in aiding us in forming our plans for the year.

We held a smoker on November 6 and a likely looking group of prospects turned out. Initiation found the following neophytes assuming the angle for Deltasig: Reginald Jones, Richard Wigent, Edward Hale, Kirby Vick, Robert Morrow, Paul Vining, Bradley Bartow, Julius Alford, Leon James, Carrol Singleton, Roland Aberly, Henry Wood, and Beverly Hundley. The initiation banquet was held December 15.

On November 23 the Excelsior Literary Society, in its weekly salute to a campus organization, devoted its thirty minute program to the history, requirements, purposes, and activities of Delta Sigma Pi. The program was conducted in the form of a questionnaire with Head Master L. O. Browne being interviewed.

The chapter has an unusually large group of outstanding men, both in the Commerce School and on the campus this year. Charles Davis, former Head Master of Alpha Sigma Chapter, is president of the Student Government. Several of our members have been selected for the advanced course of the R.O.T.C., with three being appointed to the higher ranks in their senior year. L. O. Browne, Jr., has been appointed Major in the Coast Artillery Regiment and James Holland and Otto Rintye have been appointed Captains in the Infantry Regiment. In addition to these men we have several graders, accounting assistants, and men with outstanding scholastic records.—R. H. COUNCIL

Newark Has Active Program

HEADING INTO THE first turn of the 1939-40 Scholastic Classic at the University of Newark, we find Beta Omicron holding down the post position with one eye on its cloud of dust and the other peeled for the future. At the crack of the gun we nosed over the barrier with our annual Freshman Introduction Smoker on September 21, 1939, at the Rutgers Room of the Newark Athletic Club. Head Master Paul H. Gregory made a cordial address of welcome to over 50 new men. Dean George R. Esterly, Iota (Sh!), Kansas, addressed the gathering on the role played by fraternities on the college campus. His talk, spiced with the usual zip and punch, went over well with the new students. On September 27, we held a congenial "get-together" for freshmen at the fraternity house, 6 Park Place. Again a fine turnout of men had the pleasure of hearing Professor Donald D. Kennedy, Head Master P. H. Gregory, Senior Warden Jaeger, and Chancellor King.

Easing up a little after that mad scramble at the post, we found time to dig up our gals, some hotdogs, marshmallows, and three jolopies, and amble off to South Mountain for a hotdog roast. Inclement weather forced us to abandon the fire and retreat to the fraternity house. (P.S. It rained like Hell the rest of the night.)

It was with a great deal of pleasure that Beta Omicron took part in the Father and Son Night sponsored by the Interfraternity Council of the University of Newark, on October 5, at Griffith Auditorium. Here we joined other groups in bringing before the freshmen, their fathers, faculty and administration, a composite picture of fraternal activity on the Newark University campus. Prominent speakers of the evening were Dr. G. S. Black, Provost of the University, and Dean George R. Esterly of the School of Business. Our own Head Master, Paul H. Gregory, acted as Master of Ceremonies in a masterful manner.

Quoting the University of Newark Observer—"Delta Sigma Pi is remodeling its quarters; we can count on the result to be ultra-swank"—one would think something was going on at 6 Park Place. Well believe it and believe me there certainly is.

When this issue of THE DELTASIG is opened we will be in a New Year. For the fellows here at Beta Omicron at the University of Newark, it will be a case of "examinitis." For our 14 plus pledges it will be a case of looking forward to initiation in February and wishing they were looking back at Hell Week. It is at examination time that Dr. Albert O. Greef, Iota, our faculty adviser, assumes a Jekyll-Hyde role for some of the brothers.

In a quick résumé of our December activities we cannot help but point out a few which we characterize as booming successes. Our professional meetings were, and the current ones are, the talk of the campus. In rapid succession, we had the Emergency Division of the Newark Police Department put on a lecture and demonstration in the auditorium of the university, for the benefit of the entire student body. This was followed by an interesting motion picture portrayal of the invention, growth, and development of the Diesel engine, by W. D. Dawson, of the New York Diesel Institute. He also extended an invitation for the brothers of the chapter to visit the Diesel Institute and inspect its facilities—which invitation we plan to accept in the near future. As pleasantly as you please, we enjoyed a Pledge Coming Out House Party on December 9. On the 16th of December over 35 brothers went on a professional tour of the N.B.C. Studios in Radio City, New York. We all enjoyed the opportunity of being televised and of having the chance to broadcast and see a visual recording of our voice waves. In the television studio, Brother Bill Miners stole the show by putting on a combined Elmer Blurp-Father Coughlin-Ann Corio production. Even the bored technician at the control board laughed himself sick. Brothers McGlynn, Boychuck, and Burns gave out in a somewhat inglorious rendition of the "Rose of Deltasig." Even the petals curled up in apparent misery. Later in the evening we made a very unprofessional tour of 42nd Street and various hostels of cheer in Greenwich Village.

December 23, 1939, marked the biggest house social of the year—our annual Christmas Party. Tinkling spirits, tinkling ice, tinkling guests, tinkling glasses, and "Oh Chef," our colored boy via the white coat, were indications of another Deltasig ripsnorter.

In and among these social and professional activities, we managed to outpass and outrun the pledges in football to the tune of 26-0.

All of this activity is characteristic of the spirit of the chapter—we are going for top points in the Chapter Efficiency Contest. Our completed professional program, our fine pledge class, and general condition of the house lead us to say, with a knowing look to the other chapters, "Heads up, boys!"—CARL THIEME, JR.

Ohio State Initiates Ten

NU CHAPTER STARTED OFF with a burst of enthusiasm this year which is still growing and is showing very encouraging results. A new all-time high has been reached for both the number of active members and pledges. During the week-end of November 11 we initiated ten new members and our next initiation on February 16 should see at least another ten more active Deltasigs. Due to the combined efforts of Head Master Forrest Hutslar, our Faculty Adviser Allen Meyer, and the assistance from the Central Office we have at last formed an active alumni organization which should prove most helpful.

A very successful Founders' Day Banquet was held on November 19 at the Fort Hayes Hotel. Lowell K. Hanson, foreign representative for the export division of the Good-year Tire & Rubber Company, spoke on his recent associations with the European powers. Brother Hanson was forced to leave Europe recently due to the war crisis.

February 2, 1940 is the date which has been set for Nu's Winter Formal. This traditional and gala affair will be held in the Silver Ballroom of the Southern Hotel here in Columbus. All Deltasigs, pledges and their friends are promised an enjoyable time as they dance and make merry to the tantalizing rhythms of Paul Decker and his N.B.C. broadcasting band.—DAVID H. WALBOLT

Alpha Initiates Faculty Member

WITH THE INITIATION of Professor Joseph Howard Bonneville of the finance department of the School of Commerce, Accounts & Finance, Alpha Chapter now has 24 members on the faculty, the highest record among the fraternities on the New York University campus. Brother Bonneville is one of the senior members of the faculty. He is distinguished for his well-known texts in finance: Organizing and Financing Business and Elements of Business Finance, the latter written in collaboration with Brother Lloyd Ellis Dewey. Besides the texts he has written numerous articles on finance. The four undergraduates who shared the initiation with Brother Bonneville are William Carl Florentz of White Plains, New York, John Joseph O'Donnell of Mt. Vernon, New York, Rodney Lohman Stahl of Manhattan, New York, and Peter Churinskas of Kearney, New Jersey. Alpha Chapter extends a hearty welcome to the newly initiated brothers.

The brothers began the current semester with a successful rush smoker under the able direction of William Durgin, John Anderson, Robert Nevin and Bill Boss. Our speaker was Professor Hayward Janes Holbert, of the management department, and one of the most popular faculty members among the fraternity men. "Fraternity life is a most perfect way of adjusting oneself to a puzzling world," he said in his speech drawing the material from his own experience. "By rubbing elbows with students of different ideals, outlook on life, and training, the boy develops a real poise, which is invaluable not only in getting a job, but also in holding it."

Larry Zimmer, Director of the New York University Employment Bureau, stated in his talk that there is a definite uptrend in employment which the 27 guests were as glad to hear as well as the brothers. "Dutch" Byrne, a former Head Master of Alpha Chapter, gave a captivating speech that did credit to Delta Sigma Pi.

None can compare with Province Officer Walt Juengst, the "Benjamin Franklin" of Alpha Chapter, to know and say the right thing. In chapter administration he can smooth out the most difficult complications. He is busy between the Newark chapter and ourselves, but whenever he is with us we are glad to have him sit in on our meetings.—ROBERT C. DIDRICH

Michigan Anticipates Another Successful Year

SIX STERLING MEN, have we initiated, with at least three more on the sure list. This, we feel, is a good step in the direction of filling the gap in our ranks by the loss of nine members last spring. The initiates were Robert S. Travis, John S. Christensen, Edward H. Voorhees, Robert E. Charters, Thomas R. Hancock, and Henry J. Klose. They had promised us a rip-roaring play at informal initiation, but the professors decided about then that it was time for some Marketing reports and such; therefore the play was postponed till Christmas. However, Brother Hancock substituted with a choice bit of dialogue, printed copies of which may be obtained by writing to Xi.

And with our membership ranks again stronger, we are entering all the intramural games, as usual, with the aim of again capturing the All-Year Championship Professional Fraternities Cup. But even though we try hard to get it and fail, we will have had the fun of playing and, for some of us, of learning new games.

And speaking of games, we wish to compliment the Ohio State fellows on the fine performance of their football team here last month and add a word about better luck next time. Several of the Nu Chapter brothers who came up to see the game stopped here at the house, and, with a note of defiance, extended a hearty invitation to visit them next year at game time, when they intend to show us how the game is really supposed to be played. We shall see.

Founders' Day banquet was held at 1502 Cambridge Rd., on November 18, 1939. Max Crossman, our beloved, venerable alumnus, gave a short talk, being followed by Brother Waterman, professor in the Business Administration School. Professor "Bill" gave an inspiring speech on tact, as applies to business and everyday life. Your correspondent, for one, feels he has been shown the light.

At a recent professional meeting, Professor Wolaver led an informal discussion of the German tactics of land-grabbing. He had just recently returned from Austria, where he was at the time of the anschluss; thus he was able to give a very interesting and vivid inside picture of the people's reactions and the monetary and economic ramifications of such coups.

Well, here it is the end of 1939, not such a bad year after all. Coming attractions are the election of class officers, chapter officers, the chapter formal dance, and the Capitalist Ball; and in closing, let us wish all the fraternity a happy and prosperous 1940, whispering a prayer for all those new-year resolutions we made in all good faith.—RICHARD U. STRASSER

Marquette Members Lead in Campus Activity

ACTIVITY is the one word that expresses the semester at Delta Chapter. From the first week of school in September till the Christmas vacation the entire chapter has been hard at work not only in school but in fraternity functions as well. We are proud of our fine program of smokers that have been held thus far this school year. Beginning in September when Dean Pyle gave his talk of welcome till the end of school for 1939, every other Monday night has marked a successful smoker at the Chapter House. We have varied the program with motion pictures of Marquette football games, movies of travels thru Africa, and even movies on how to drive an automobile. The speakers that we presented were of the highest caliber available and inclined Mr. Walker Brooks, President of the Milwaukee Junior Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Douglass Carmen, a prominent investment counselor in Milwaukee and members of our faculty.

Delta Chapter continued to hold its high place in campus politics, for the second straight year we have swept the class presidencies in the three classes, Dick Trefz, winning in the senior class, Ralph Venus in the junior class, and Pledge Howie Burns was the sophomore choice. In addition Bob Scheonecker rules the Interfraternity Council from his President's chair and Ray Apolskis represents the Business Ad school on the Union Board.

Not only has Delta Chapter won out in a political way but our athletes have been making a mark for themselves in the intramural leagues where our basketballers are still undefeated, and have promised to add another trophy to the collection we already have.

This fall saw the initiation of six members into Delta Chapter, and to John McCauley, Len Chojnacki, Marty Dirnbauer, Dick Gardner, Bill Monzel and John Jans we extend our heartiest welcome. Plans are already under way for the next class and there is some hope that we can put through an extra class this year.

Our chapter's social activities have included luncheons and a very successful Homecoming Dance, which was held in the Green Room of the Schroeder Hotel. At present many of the brothers are planning to see the New Year in with the Alumni Chapter, who annually sponsors a swell party. Plans are also underway for an Alumni-Active Smoker after the first of the year. All of the fellows are looking forward to this as the Alumni always put on a great party when they invite the actives.

This about sums up things at Marquette, but the next issue of DELTASIG will carry more news from one of the really active chapters of Delta Sigma Pi.—DICK TREFZ

Beta Xi Pledges Thirty-Three!!

BETA XI CHAPTER at Rider College, Trenton, New Jersey is striving to maintain its reputation as one of the strongest chapters in Delta Sigma Pi. Last year we finished among the first ten in the Efficiency Contest and this year we are serving notice that we are pointing for the "top of the heap." With the pledging of thirty-three, count them (33). Beta Xi already has started off on the right foot and the sails are set!

In the field of sports Beta Xi is right on the top. Intramural football has been stealing the spotlight at the college and has spotted our boys in the finals for the championship of the league. The bowling league is being dominated by our keggers, and, with a strong outfit set to go in basketball, old Beta Xi is riding on the Bandwagon.

On January 20, of the new year, we will hold our Initiatory Formal for our thirty-three neophytes. This dinner-dance is always one of the outstanding social events at the college and this year should be no exception, with the largest group ever to be formally initiated into Beta Xi Chapter. The week-end of December 15, Hal Kemp and his orchestra played at Rider for our Snow-Ball Festival, and heading the dance committee is our Head Master Allen Ziegler.

Scholastically, Beta Xi finds itself meeting the all-man average of the college, which goes to prove that we aren't necessarily socialites and ignorant athletes. A recent visit from our new Province Director Allen L. Fowler, found us to be in the best of financial shape for the coming year.

Well Brothers, there is the contemporary history of Beta Xi at the present writing and we think you will agree that it presents a challenge for first place in the Efficiency Contest. Good luck to all the chapters and let's make this a banner year for the fraternity. In closing, we of Beta Xi, express the sentiments of the whole fraternity in wishing the quickest recovery possible for Fred Floyd who did such a swell job as head of the Grand Chapter Congress at the Philadelphia Congress this past fall. We are all pulling for him and know he will come through like a true Deltasig.—NORRIS L. BULL, JR.

Miami Celebrates Founders' Day

ALPHA UPSILON CHAPTER celebrated Founders' Day on November 18 with a banquet. We were glad to have D. A. Fuller, Jr., Chairman, National Committee on Alumni Placing Service, and an alumnus of this chapter as a speaker for the occasion. Brother Fuller spoke on the subject, "This Business of Getting a Job." At our first luncheon of the year in October we were very fortunate in having the Grand Secretary-Treasurer, H. G. Wright, as our speaker. The brothers of the chapter were very happy at having the opportunity to meet Brother Wright and enjoyed his informal talk which followed the luncheon. It was a fitting start for a new year.

Rushing and initiation of new members is always an important part of a chapter's activities. Hews Peterson is our Rush Chairman and is to be congratulated for the manner in which the rushing program was handled. Several members of the faculty, who are brother Deltasigs, were invited to attend one of the rush smokers. We were particularly glad to welcome Brother Ramsen of Chi Chapter, who is new on the campus this year, and Brother Niswonger, a former Head Master of our chapter, who was away from the campus last year. Twelve men were pledged, and, after the usual training period, were initiated on November 18: Robert Arnholt, Wilbur Deuser, Paul Davis, Keith Witham, James Griffin, Walter Eis, Joseph Rittenhouse, Thomas Bryant, Clifford Erickson, Robert Lehman, Richard Peters, and John Hook.

Fred Jones, as Chairman of the Field Trip Committee, arranged for a trip to Hamilton, Ohio, on November 30. We were taken on a conducted tour through the Champion Coated Paper Company. The trip proved to be of great value and was enjoyed by all. We were especially interested in watching the process by which paper is manufactured. Later in the afternoon we were allowed to go through the Estate Stove Company which is also located in Hamilton. Situated as we are in the industrialized Miami Valley, field trips always provide an interesting part of our professional activities. We are now looking forward to another one of these trips in the near future.—MERRITT GAMBILL

Mississippi Plans for Another Business Day

HAVING LOST SEVERAL of our old members through graduation and through transfer to other schools, Alpha Phi Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi began the present year under somewhat of a handicap. With the infusion of new enthusiasm following the initiation of nine new members on Thursday night, November 30, in a beautiful and impressive ceremony, we are rapidly swinging into action to carry through chapter activities planned for the year. At regular meetings before Christmas we have had the pleasure of having faculty members address the group. Most of these informal addresses have been along the theme of "Delta Sigma Pi, the place of its members upon the campus, in the school, and in the world." These addresses have been very interesting and thoroughly enjoyed by all the members.

Recognizing that plans are of no value without action to make those plans grow into a reality, the new year will find our plans materializing. Immediately following the opening of school on January 3 we start activities with a dinner-dance honoring the new members, and having as the outstanding attraction, lovely Miss Robbie Coleman who has been selected as our sponsor for this year. At the dinner-dance charming Miss Coleman will be presented to the members and awarded a locket designating her as Alpha Phi's new princess.

With the coming of the new year all efforts will be concentrated upon a Business Day. The seed of a first Business Day was planted at our university last spring. That was a successful day, but we want to make this year's Business Day one that will never be forgotten. By getting the cooperation of the entire Business School we hope to establish a traditional day upon the Ole Miss campus that both alumni and undergraduates will look forward to as an annual affair.

Alpha Phi Chapter wishes for the new year, a continued growth and development for the entire fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi and for its individual chapters and members.—FRANK A. McCORD.

Penn State Chapter Has Active Program

SINCE THE BEGINNING of the 1939-40 school year, the Deltasigs at Penn State have had four months of activity of various forms. The year was begun with the usual Thursday luncheons in the Sandwich Shop of Old Main, but later changed to a dinner every other Thursday, with business meetings in the alternating weeks. The chapter's activities for the Commerce and Finance school as a whole began early in October with a smoker for all juniors and seniors. This was followed by an educational moving picture and lecture by the duPont company on sales work. On December 7 a dinner was held by the chapter, having as guests three representatives of the Railway Express Agency. Immediately following the dinner, at a meeting of the entire C&F school, these representatives showed a picture on "The History of Air Transportation." At this meeting, Head Master Evans gave a talk on the desirability of a four year plan separate Commerce and Finance school at Penn State as compared to the present two-two plan as a curriculum under the Liberal Arts School. With this talk, the chapter started an active drive toward obtaining this desirable change.

Initiation for the first semester took place on November 16, seven being initiated: Russel Eck, Joseph Drier, Lawrence Drier, George Terwilliger, James Fitzgerald, William Kitchen and Richard Graham.

At the present time a committee headed by Jonas Kaufmann is working on the publication of the C&F Employment Booklet, a booklet published each year by the fraternity to aid graduating seniors in C&F obtain employment.—BOYD HARRINGTON

Detroit Chapter Moves to New House

THETA CHAPTER opened a new house this year, having obtained a very fine place located one block south-east of the College of Commerce, thereby eliminating all possible excuses for tardiness to classes. Activities have started with a bang! We have scored a direct hit in the eyes of the campus by sponsoring the first hay ride of the season. On October 7, twenty-four members and guests gathered at Devon Gables. After brushing off much hayseed and alfalfa, the group continued the merry-making within the portals of the old English dining room. Much chicken pie was consumed and fallen arches were evident as the crowd departed. Three cheers to Joseph Bauser, our new master of festivities, for he's the man who made the party possible.

On Thursday, October 12, we celebrated our housewarming and pledge party. Every assurance of a highly successful pledge class was evident. Besides the attendance of fourteen prospective neophytes, we were honored by the presence of Paul Lilly and Henry J. Willmes, who is departmental director of economics. Brother Lilly spoke to us of the benefits of fraternity life. Brother Willmes presented his view of the European war situation.

Our officers for this year include Robert Edkins, Head Master, Robert Dietrich, Treasurer, Ray Bernhardt, Senior Warden and Robert Higbee, Scribe. In order to assure a successful year, Head Master Edkins appointed several live wire committees to assist in the various activities of the fraternity. Theta has a group of energetic boys who are putting forth great effort to make this one of the best years of the chapter.

In closing, Theta takes this opportunity to convey its best wishes to John L. McKewen of Chi Chapter, our new Grand President. Last, but not least, Brother Wright, we congratulate you upon your fifteenth anniversary as Grand Secretary-Treasurer. May the next fifteen years bring you even greater success than you have already known.—ED FRANKE

Beta Redecorates House

THE HOUSE REDECORATIONS of Beta Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi are progressing very rapidly under the able guidance of Vic Merle and Vic Payton, our new house manager. These redecoration will provide a complete transformation of the living rooms on the first floor of the chapter house. They will include refinishing of the floors, woodwork, walls and ceilings, new light fixtures, new slip covers, and several new items of furniture. It is expected that this work will be completely finished for the pledge party on December 23.

Our last professional meeting proved to be a very interesting one. Mr. W. McNeil Kennedy, Regional Administrator of the Securities Exchange Commission, spoke on "Securities and Security Exchange Regulations." He explained the causes leading up to the enactment of Security and Exchange legislation and actual operation of the regulations as illustrated by descriptions of cases brought to trial by the commission. He described the methods and principles of bucket shop operations; explained the 14 different types of securities being marketed and whether they are sound or fraudulent. He pointed out that three billion dollars were lost by gullible investors up to 1936 through investment in fraudulent securities. Besides members of Delta Sigma Pi and their friends several professors were present at the meeting.

To all Brothers in the many chapters throughout the land, Beta Chapter extends its most hearty greetings of the Yuletide.—ARTHUR E. LINDSTRUM

Colorado Organizes for Successful Year

UNDER THE ABLE LEADERSHIP of Head Master Donald Thurman, Alpha Rho Chapter opened the current school year with a large amount of spirit and many plans for the year. The first event of the year will be the School of Business dance for which the Deltasigs lend their support. This year the dance will be a cowboy dance which promises much entertainment and fun. Rushing has been in progress all fall and we held our annual Founders' Day Banquet in Boulder with Alpha Nu Chapter of the University of Denver.

Recent elections were held and the following men will lead the chapter this year: Head Master, Donald Thurman; Treasurer, Ferrin Harsch; Scribe, James Dryden; Senior Warden, James Brown; Junior Warden, Benjamin Clark; Historian, Lee Evans; Senior Guide, Carroll Wilson; Junior Guide, Vernon McIntyre; and Correspondent, Robert Bonham. Alpha Rho is well represented in the officers of the School of Business this year: James Brown is President; James Dryden, Vice-president; Lee Evans, Secretary; and Robert Bonham, Junior Board of Directors.

Among other things on the program for the year will be tours of large business concerns and the presentation of many industrial films.—ROBERT BONHAM

Nebraska Opens New Chapter House

TWENTY-TWO MEMBERS returned to the University of Nebraska this fall to form the active chapter of Alpha Delta. By listening to their doings one would think that the Deltasigs of Lincoln have represented this chapter the nation over. Four of them had a taste of army life when they served six weeks at Fort Crook in the R.O.T.C. camp. Four saw the West. Two worked in Colorado, one in Utah, and one in Washington. Two worked and visited in Wisconsin. Four remained in Lincoln to carry on the academic banners of the Deltasigs during the summer sessions. Of the returning actives four were able to tell us of the activities occurring at the Grand Chapter Congress. Their stories of the night sessions have made the rest of us envious. The rest of the fellows seemed to have worked in Lincoln or at their home towns.

The first official get-together of the chapter this year was a rush smoker. The new chapter house is the center of everything. One Wednesday we started the evening at 5 o'clock with a football game with the Sig Eps who were the intramural champions last year. A cold dashing rain gave us a thorough soaking, stopped the game before the half and the game had to be replayed. At 6:15 the entire chapter ate their first dinner at our new chapter house. Following this we listened to Dean Harper, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs. From his talk the problems that come to his office would make a very interesting and entertaining story. But he had the 18 seniors on the edge of their chairs when he spoke of college activities and the securing of a job after graduation.

Four of our brothers still had time in which to accomplish enough to place their names on the Beta Gamma Sigma list. We all extend the heartiest of congratulations to Neal Hadsell, Robert Jeffrey, Kenneth Worland, and Sylvester Wright. To give an additional boost to Alpha Delta's scholastic record, ten members besides those named above were in the upper 10 per cent of their respective classes for the past year.

Of all our fraternal activities, the one which will be remembered the longest is our industrial tour in Omaha. On November 21 three carloads journeyed there. We were met by our Beta Theta brothers of Creighton. If there are a bunch of fellows more cordial and able to make better plans, we would like to see them. Union Pacific buses were waiting for us at their chapter house from where they took us to the headquarters and shop of the Union Pacific Railroad. The afternoon was very successful, but so was the evening, as our Beta Theta brothers had arranged for dates and entertainment. If you think these arrangements weren't satisfactory try and explain, if you can, why two cars didn't get back to Lincoln until 6 o'clock the next morning.

Along with the activities previously mentioned we have weekly dinners at our house following which we have a speaker or a smoker. At each of these, new pledge prospects are always present. For the past week and climaxing on the 8th of December, a nervous excitement has prevailed. The reason for this holiday spirit was the all-important university function, the Military Ball. Twelve of our actives escorted their dates in the Grand March.

We of Alpha Delta feel happy about the future, and to our brothers over the nation, we send our sincere greetings.—KENNETH EGGER

Oklahoma Observes Founders' Day

THE ACTIVITIES of the Beta Epsilon Chapter have been stimulated by the Indian Summer weather which we have been enjoying this semester. Through the haze of cigar smoke we have enjoyed four excellent speakers at the smokers held this year. They include, a bank controller of the largest bank in Oklahoma, a personnel manager, a successful jeweler, and the president of an advertising agency.

Oklahoma has been noted for bank robberies but after a tour of the First National Bank in Oklahoma City, the fifty-six members and guests who made the three hour trip, have decided that prospects in the future are very poor. The tour was made in the evening and special guides were provided. Afterwards a delicious buffet supper was served in the observation room on the thirty-second floor of the building. Two more industrial tours have been made, one to the Oklahoma City Sales Congress, and one to five of the leading industries in Oklahoma including the Progress Brewery where it was on the house.

To celebrate our Founders' Day, a banquet for the members and their dates was held in the University Ball Room. For our chapter birthday, a dinner and social with the Business Girls' Club was a great success. Besides the regular business meetings an Industrial Movie was shown which attracted over a hundred of the local students.

The first initiation for the chapter has been scheduled for January 27 and half of our quota of new members has already been pledged. For the next issues of the DELTASIG this chapter shall have a special surprise for all members of Delta Sigma Pi as one of the leading and most successful business men in the southwest will be initiated as an honorary member of our fraternity.—JUSTIN E. VOCT

Southern California News

ONCE AGAIN, Phi Chapter is headed for a successful year. The first semester is nearly over and we can look back to the activities that have taken place. We have three new brothers and twelve additional pledges, all of whom are capable of keeping up the high standard of our chapter. During the football season, we have given several dances, the highlight of which occurred on December 9, after the last regular game of the season. On this occasion, the Deltasigs gathered for the annual Fall Formal at the Beverley-Wilshire Hotel. The favors, which were a surprise to most of the fellows in the house, were better than ever before and the girls were all pleased with them. Dancing to the music of Ray Noble's orchestra lasted until the early hours of the morning.

Phi Chapter has been well represented in interfraternity sports this year. We just missed the semi-finals in tennis and are right in the thick of the fight for honors in the bowling tournament. Sports Chairman Tom Wylie should be commended for all the work that he has put forth in organizing our teams.

Homecoming Week for the University was really a huge success. Following the theme of, "Ship Ahoy! Sail On To Troy," the school and fraternal groups built elaborate decorations. Our chapter just missed grabbing off a prize. Incidentally, one of our men, Bob Merson, was at the head of the fraternity contacts for the University's entire Homecoming program.

Just before Christmas recess, the Mother's Club surprised the entire chapter with a Christmas party. Novelties and toys added to the gaiety and all of the fellows had a chance to be kids again for a while. Also, this meal marked the last time that our cook, Mrs. Mitchell would be with us. She really put one over on us when she passed the cigars several weeks ago to announce her engagement to be married. We will sure miss her and wish her happiness in her new home.

After Christmas, we have the Rose Bowl game to look forward to and then our old friends—finals!—FREDERICK B. BROWN

Kappa Members Leaders in School

DELTA SIGMA PI is an important name in the eyes of Georgia Evening College students as evidenced by the part the Deltasigs take in the many and varied student activities. Twenty-one out of a possible thirty offices in the various men's organizations of the school are held by men of the "Old Gold and Royal Purple." This is a record which does Kappa Chapter honor, and one of which we are extremely proud. To top it all, we are proud to announce that Jimmy "Red" Griffith is the new president of the student body, which this year has reached a total of 1170 students. We consider his election a double victory, in that he defeated a member of our rival fraternity for the honor.

Supporting Brother Griffith in his all important position are Leonard Kuyper, past Head Master of Kappa Chapter, who is vice-president of the senior class and treasurer of the Student Council; Joe Rhyne, president of the junior class and vice-president of the Student Council; Frank Carter, president of the pre-junior class; Jim Freeman, president of the sophomore class; Homer Brewer, secretary of the junior class; Pat Dobbins, secretary of the pre-junior class, and George Beckham, treasurer of the sophomore class. Backed by this clan of Deltasigs, Brother Griffith is working religiously toward the betterment and growth of the Evening College and its students.

The Speakers Club, which promotes an interest in public speaking among its members and affords those already interested an opportunity to improve their abilities, has as its leaders a complete cast of Deltasigs. Holding the presidency is Ernest Bolen, while Jimmy Davis is vice-president, Walt Buchanan, secretary, Bill Bost, treasurer, and Al Jones, historian. Such a representation in any one group is a tribute to these men's constant efforts to further the development of a higher standard of education.

The honor organizations, too, are well represented by Deltasigs. The most sought for honor in the entire school is election to Delta Mu Delta, scholastic fraternity, which recognizes and awards scholastic attainment in commercial studies. Kappa is proud that brother Jimmy Davis is president of this organization.

Another honor society, Theta Xi Zeta, better known to the students as the Owls Club, has as its vice-president, Cliff Darby, and as its secretary, John Clark. This organization honors those men who have taken active interest in the welfare and activities of the Evening College, and who have attained a scholastic average of eighty or above at the completion of at least two years of degree work. More than fifteen of its active members are Deltasigs.

Still another honor society, Intramural Key, is led by president Leonard Kuyper, past Kappa Head Master, and by secretary John Clark, Kappa's past Treasurer. This fraternity promotes and perpetuates a closer understanding and cooperative spirit among the students, and between the student body and school administration. Its Deltasig members are too numerous to name.

Cliff Darby is governor of the Delta Kappa fraternity, Ed Clark is first vice-president, Ernest Bolen second vice-president, and Homer Brewer treasurer of the Venetian Society. The student publication, the Evening Signal, has George Beckham as its business manager and an array of Deltasigs on both the editorial and business staffs. Buck Flowers is librarian of the school Glee Club. Aldo Garoni was general chairman of the school's annual homecoming banquet which was considered to be the best in the history of the banquets.

We do not mean to speak vaingloriously of these offices, and the many more held by Deltasigs of Kappa Chapter. We rather mean that we are encouraging scholarship and the association of students for their mutual advancement by research and practice. Delta Sigma Pi teaches, he profits most who serves best. And as we all hope to profit, so it is our obligation to serve.—FRANK L. CARTER

Missouri Initiates Fourteen

AFTER A VERY successful year of 1938-39 the Alpha Beta Chapter is looking forward to an even better year with twenty-one active members back. On November 12 fourteen Neophytes were initiated: Allen Baker, Herbert Bassman, Henry Boecler, C. J. Busick, Kenneth Geisert, Louis Handley, Paul Hanna, Howard Harbison, Charles Myers, Paul Rogers, Walter St. Dennis, Max Shemwell, Melvin Vogel, and George Weber. Founders' Day was celebrated in a big way with a banquet on November 18, which was homecoming for the University. All alumni were invited and special invitations were sent to the Beta Epsilon Chapter (Oklahoma), the Kansas City Alumni Club, and the St. Louis Alumni Club. Many registered at the Daniel Boone Tavern in the morning, and sixty attended the initiation banquet following the Missouri-Oklahoma game.

Again this year the chapter found that its surplus account was more than necessary, so $50 was added to the Delta Sigma Pi Loan Fund which was established here last year. This student loan fund is primarily for the students of the School of Business and Public Administration, and the Board of Curators of the University act as Trustee for the fund. The Board loans it to the students, who they feel are most needy and deserving and of good character and ability. Already three Deltasigs have received loans from this fund.

Our business and professional meetings have been well attended. At our professional meetings pictures of Europe and an industrial film, "From Trees to Tribunes," were shown. Also interesting talks have been given on retail stores and politics. At our business meetings a number of the chapter activities for this year were planned. Plans were made for a number of industrial tours which the chapter always takes with the Business School. The chapter has already made one tour with the Phi Chi Theta Sorority to Jefferson City to visit the State Penitentiary, the Missouri Unemployment Compensation Offices, and the State Capitol.

The Thirteenth Grand Chapter Congress was attended by six Alpha Beta members. These men reported that they learned much about the fraternity and enjoyed every minute of it. After coming back to the University and reporting on the Congress, the chapter adopted a resolution to congratulate our new Grand President, John L. McKewen.

Last year sixteen Deltasigs made the honor roll, and our scholastic rank on the campus was 4th among 74 organizations, reporting. The all-men average was 209, and our average was 262. Six of our members made Beta Gamma Sigma, and to top them all Brother Horace Owells received the Delta Sigma Pi Scholarship Key Award.

We are out again to win first place in the Chapter Efficiency Contest as we have the past three years.—KENNETH WOLZ

Chi and Mu Observe Founders' Day at Washington

FOUNDERS' DAY BANQUET was held at the Hotel Benedict in Washington on Saturday, November 4. Grand President and Chi Alumnus, Brother John L. McKewen, Province Director of Washington, Brother Earl Nash, and the head masters and presidents of both chapters were present as Chi and Mu jointly observed Founders' Day.

Grand President, John L. McKewen, delivered a short and interesting talk on the founding and growth of Delta Sigma Pi. He particularly emphasized the opportunities offered for self development in our fraternity. Merle Thorpe, Editor of Nation's Business, was the guest speaker for the dinner. He gave an address on the two lines of thought prevailing today on government control and supervision of business as compared to the unrestricted progress of business in the past. He pointed out on one side the American Business Man's view and on the other the present view of the Administration in Washington.

Brother Nash acted as toastmaster and called on the head masters of Chi and Mu Chapters and the presidents of the Baltimore and Washington Alumni Clubs for short talks. The trend of thought in these addresses was for a closer affiliation between the Washington and Baltimore Deltasigs. Immediately putting words into action plans were made for a group from Mu Chapter to attend Chi's Winter Formal on November 25. Throughout the year groups from each chapter will attend the other's social events.

After the festivities Chi men at the invitation of Mu Chapter adjourned for the duration of the evening to the Mu Chapter House at Georgetown University. The thirty-second Founders' Day was a huge success.

The Baltimore Alumni Club held its first meeting at the Montfaucon Club. The alumni and active chapter members joined in a testimonial celebration of Brother John L. McKewen's election to the office of Grand President. As a token of our pride and esteem a scroll was presented to him containing the signatures of the alumni and active men of Chi Chapter.

Chi Chapter, determined to make their membership quota in the Chapter Efficiency Contest, initiated 6 for the first half on December 1 and 2. On Friday, December 1, the Night of Indignities was held in a madcap evening. The formal initiation was held on Saturday, December 2 at 2:00 P.M. At the dinner after the inquisition Grand President, Brother John L. McKewen spoke on the opportunities that now were theirs upon admission to the fraternity. After which the Keeper of the Parchment Roll was elected and the Yellow Dog initiation held. The following men were admitted: Brothers Charles Butler, Milton Bowersox, James Davis, Jack Ramsen, Steve Sachronoski, and Kenneth Brooks. Chi Chapter has a promising group in the new brothers who are ready to assume the responsibilities of fraternity work.

On Wednesday night, December 6, Brother Charles Steinbock won first prize on Kay Kyser's College of Musical Knowledge program, which was broadcast from New York City over a coast to coast network.

Indiana Initiates Fifteen

INITIATION SERVICES were held on December 3 in the Bryan Room of the Indiana Union Building for 15 pledges: Prof. Donald Blankertz, William Hyde, Edward Bartley, William Keck, Donald Sanxter, Lew Deeter, Howard Blankertz, George McNabb, Donald Davis, Charles Legeman, Philip Cooper, Keith Cox, John Jay, Jack Kistner, and Jack Eason. Following the initiation a banquet was held.

A finance tour was sponsored by the chapter on December 7, about 30 undergraduates and professors making the trip to Indianapolis. The tour included the Indiana National Bank; Thomson-McKinnen, a stock brokerage house; City Securities Corporation; and the American United Life Insurance Company where a luncheon was served for the group. Two Business School luncheons have been held with Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey of the zoology department speaking on "Who Should Marry?" and Dr. Arthur M. Wiemer, Dean of the School of Business Administration, speaking on "School and Organization Relations." This luncheon was in honor of Dean Wiemer, who accepted the position of dean this fall. Omicron Delta, women's professional business fraternity, cooperated in making the affair a success.

John F. Mee of Nu Chapter at Ohio State University, is now the Director of the Personnel and Placement Bureau of the School of Business.

On November 18 Delta Sigma Pi blanked Alpha Kappa Psi, 13-0 in touch football. The Deltasigs dominated the entire game, and at no time did the opposition seriously threaten the Deltasig goal.

The first edition of the Alpha Pi-per will appear in January. Other business tours are planned to nearby cities during next semester. Several more noon luncheons are also planned.—CHARLES L. HEDGE

Beta Nu Plans for the Future

THE GRAND CHAPTER CONGRESS. Like a sculptor with his clay, molding something that was at first only an idea, slowly but surely into a grand masterpiece, so did we of Beta Nu, give all that we had in making the Thirteenth Grand Chapter Congress the finest, most memorable Congress in all of the years of existence of our Fraternity. From the very beginning three years ago, when plans for the Thirteenth Congress were only in their embryo, we set a goal. And on Thursday evening September 7, 1939, with the gala dinner-dance fast becoming just a memory, we felt that we had, aided tremendously by Omega Chapter of Temple University, and with the co-operation of the entire Fraternity, achieved that goal we had striven for. A successful Grand Chapter Congress in our own fair City of Brotherly Love.

We have been doing a lot of things here in Philadelphia since we saw many of you fellows here at the Congress, and we would like very much to tell all about our accomplishments, but space is limited, and it is possible that when reading of these things, you might say to yourselves that you had heard the story before, and so on and so forth, and that would be that. But we really have accomplished some things worthwhile and we are going to get them off our chest, hell or highwater. We had an initiation early in December, and four new brothers were brought into the fraternity. We present: Edward Nevin Brown, Charles Prince, Richard D. Wilhelm, and Robert S. Wilson. They are four good men and we know that they are going to prove their worth as members in Delta Sigma Pi.

We had loads of fun "Hell Night," putting these boys through the usual purging, and also the following afternoon at the formal initiation. The initiation dinner, which was held this year in the Benjamin Franklin Room at Houston Hall on the University Campus, was quite a success, and most of the active chapter went directly from the dinner to the combined active chapter and alumni "Monte Carlo Night" get-together.

We have had a couple of professional meetings too this year that have been worthy of special comment, but there was one in particular that was especially interesting. Our committee had arranged with Captain James Wilkinson, of the British Maritime Service, to be the guest of honor for the evening—to present motion pictures of rare experiences on the sea. However, at the very last minute almost, the captain sent us his regrets that he would be unable to be present at the meeting because he had been called for immediate service, but would leave his films and projector with us if we liked. You can guess what our answer was. We showed the pictures at the meeting, and they were magnificent. We marveled at the pictorial log of a trip around Cape Horn in a "Square Rigger"; one of those beautiful old sailing ships that we never see anymore, except in pictures; and then a short three-reeler on deep sea game fishing. It was a darn good meeting, and we all enjoyed ourselves, as did our guests too.

Our entire house was given a good going over this past summer. New wallpaper all over. A light toned, small figured paper in most of the rooms and halls, that sets off the dark oak woodwork splendidly. And in the ping-pong room, a rough paneled effect that makes it truly a game room. Rugs and furniture in some of the bedrooms were replaced and in others rearranged. The treasurer's desk and file cabinet, wastepaper basket and pencil sharpener too, were taken out of the Chapter Room and installed in a separate small room. All of these changes and improvements, though seeming rather unimportant, necessitated an outlay that was met by the treasury without causing any undue concern. We are accumulating, now, copies or originals of every piece of literature, every bit of advertising, pictures, souvenirs, etc, pertaining to the Grand Chapter Congress. All to be pasted in, fastened on, or even tied to a book that in its completed form will be worth pausing a moment to look over. We are also starting a photograph album that will contain pictures, both old and new, of the active and alumni members of the chapter.

Our committees have all been organized for the coming fall term's work and we have every reason to believe that the various activities will be handled in the most competent harmonious manner in order that our chapter can place well up on the list, or perhaps even in first place, in the Chapter Efficiency Contest. We feel now, even more than before, that our house is one of the finest on the University Campus.

This is the beginning of another year's work in our school life. The mistakes and misunderstandings that we encountered last year, although rather unpleasant at the time, are now valuable to us. Because, as true Brothers of Delta Sigma Pi, we can profit and forge ahead on the knowledge gained in knowing the right way. It is our sincere wish that this year will, in every respect, be a complete success to every Brother, and through him—his Chapter.—JOHN S. SLOAN

Johns Hopkins on the March

A GENERAL MEETING was held at the home of our new Grand President John L. McKewen, Sunday afternoon, September 24. The committee chairmen and the officers gave reports of their operations and activities since the close of school, last semester. The Chapter Efficiency Contest, the membership campaign, the organization of an Alumni Cooperative Committee predominated discussions. Invigorated by the impetus received at the Grand Chapter Congress Chi Chapter has agreed that in 1939-40 they shall score 100,000 points in the Chapter Efficiency Contest. Each classification of points in this contest was broken down into its component parts. A budget with deadline dates was prepared so that the Head Master and the Chairman of the Committee on the Chapter Efficiency Contest would not err.

In reporting on the membership campaign, William R. McGuire, Senior Warden, explained the aims, intentions, and type of program to be pursued during the coming year. Special emphasis was placed upon utilizing to our greatest advantage Saturday afternoon luncheons in the Faculty Club of Johns Hopkins University. Since the club presents a fine atmosphere in beautiful surroundings, it was felt that our most successful rushing could be carried on there.

An innovation in Chi Chapter was the appointment of a committee by the alumni under the guidance of Joseph R. Oberle to aid the membership committee of the active chapter in the training of pledges before and after initiation. During our meeting, the alumni members expressed the need for such assistance and their willingness to cooperate with the active chapter.

Following the discussion of business matters various members spoke briefly on their experiences at the Grand Chapter Congress in Philadelphia. Province Officer J. Elwood Armstrong, Jr., told of the many interesting and spirited occasions which he attended. In closing our meeting John L. McKewen, Grand President, expressed his thoughts and wishes concerning the chapter's administration and told us of his rich experiences in fraternity life since his initiation into Chi Chapter.

Only one note of regret was injected into the meeting. That occurred, when Halsey E. Ramsen's resignation as Chapter Adviser was read to the members. Brother Ramsen has left Baltimore to begin his duties as a member of the faculty at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. Chi Chapter feels that its loss will be Alpha Upsilon's gain.—ROBERT L. BOWERSOX

South Carolina Holds Annual Cabaret Party

ON WEDNESDAY EVENING, December 6, the annual Delta Sigma Pi Cabaret was held. The affair started at 8:30 with a grand dinner being served. A floor show was presented simultaneously with the dinner. On the program were many talented stars which enhanced the enjoyment of the evening. After the floor show the tables were pushed aside and there was dancing. Needless to say there was a capacity crowd present and everybody had a glorious time. Clarence Raybourne acted as master of ceremonies. Anthony Smoak was chairman of the cabaret committee which also included A. C. Lyles and Clarence Raybourne. The Cabaret is sponsored every year by Beta Gamma Chapter for the School of Commerce in order to promote a friendly atmosphere among students in the commerce school. The proceeds of the Cabaret go into a scholarship fund sponsored by the local chapter.

Beta Gamma is very proud of the selection this year of three of its members to represent the University of South Carolina in Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. Those selected were: Head Master, Marvin P. Busbee; Senior Warden, A. C. Lyles; and Chancellor, Kit FitzSimmons.

The alumni around Columbia are considering forming a Columbia Alumni Club. A great deal of interest has been shown but as yet it is in the embryo stage. The active chapter has been cooperating wholeheartedly. Here's wishing them lots of success.

All in all Beta Gamma has enjoyed a most successful semester. There have been many professional meetings along with a goodly number of social gatherings.—ANTHONY SMOAK

News From DePaul

YES! WE'RE OFF with a bang! After a successful rushing season well behind us with thirteen new Neophytes tucked safely under our wings Alpha Omega is going ahead. Like the rolling stone that gathers no moss (or something) we've plummeted forward with increasing speed mapping a program that cannot prove to be anything but successful. After spending an hilarious Thanksgiving weekend with our Delta brothers at Marquette only a few weeks have elapsed when loud and prolonged clamorings are heard for the chapter to make another such trip. With the exception of one unfortunate mishap, a rousing good time was had by all who made the last trip. Together with the warm reception that our Delta brothers extended to us and the abundance of beautiful Milwaukee scenery—I do mean scenery—it is no wonder that plans are being hurriedly formed to satisfy the desires of the "clamorers."

Already a program is being formulated for our annual St. Patricks Day dance which according to advance information, strictly confidential and "under the hat," obtained by that super-sleuth, Frank Tangney, should even surpass all previous affairs of this nature ever held by this chapter.

This year has certainly turned out to be the "prosperity around the corner" era, with Alpha Omega turning the right corners, tackling its problems with gusto and never for a moment letting up in its untiring efforts to become the best chapter in Delta Sigma Pi. With the coming of the New Year new problems will arise and more opportunities will present themselves for Alpha Omega to show its worth and to forge ahead on the speed of its own momentum.

With Hell Week so close at hand all cares are being tossed aside with reckless abandon and a program is being formed to insure that this all important week will prove to be a never-to-be-forgotten one for the Neophytes, more so than all previous initiations ever held by this chapter.

The heat's on fellows. We can't stop now. Watch us! Here we go!—JACK CERNY

Creighton Entertains Nebraska Chapter

BETA THETA CHAPTER was host to Alpha Delta Chapter of the University of Nebraska on November 21 when three carloads of their members journeyed to Omaha to participate in a joint professional tour through the shops and executive offices of the Union Pacific Railroad. This trip was thoroughly enjoyed by both chapters. Previously in November we held an initiation for six of our pledges: Edward Morin, John Heibenstein, Daniel Lynch, Don Moran, Paul Boisseree, and Robert Moehn. Our chapter basketball team has not lost a game all season in the Creighton intramural league. George Mason is the proud father of an eight pound son born Armistice Day, his wife, formerly Jeanette Miller, was our "Rose of Deltasig" a couple of years ago.—PAT CONNELLY

You are fraternally invited to become a

LIFE MEMBER OF DELTA SIGMA PI

The advantages are many. Your national alumni dues are then paid for life. You will receive all publications and services of Delta Sigma Pi forever. Your taking out a Life Membership will materially assist in making possible the adequate development of our alumni activities to the greatest degree of efficiency and service. You will make possible the assistance of many worthy undergraduates to complete their college education through the help of our loan fund. You will make possible a bigger and better fraternity magazine, The DELTASIG. You will put your fraternity in position to render more and better services to YOU.

The cost is nominal. Life Memberships are $35. This may be paid in cash, or at the rate of $5 per month for 7 months. A three-year plan provides for three annual payments of $13 each, if you prefer this longer period of time. An attractive Life Membership Certificate is supplied each Life Member.

Here is an investment which will pay you big dividends each and every year. All Life Membership payments are placed in trust in our National Endowment Fund. Only the income from this Fund is available for fraternity activities. Don't delay. Join our constantly growing list of Life Members immediately. Your application may be sent to J. Elwood Armstrong, Jr., 2822 Bauernwood Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland, Chairman of the National Committee on Life Memberships, or may be mailed direct to
